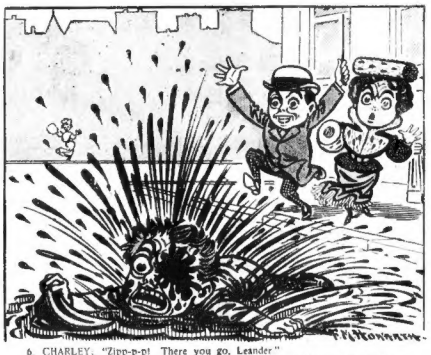
1. LULU: "Oh, dear me, these March winds are just too horrid for anything!"
CHARLEY ONTHESPOT: "Great grief! There goes my hat!"
LEANDER: "Ha, ha! YOU are up against it THIS time, old man."

2. LULU: "Charley will catch it all right. My, my, doesn't he run gracefully, Leander? How quick! What lightness of foot, what agility!"
LEANDER: "Pooh, pooh! About as graceful as a lame cow. I could beat that all hollow."

3. CHARLEY: "Never touched the ground once!"
LULU: "Oh, Charley, I'm so glad!"
LEANDER (aside): "Confound his good luck. I wish it had rolled in that mud puddle."

4. LEANDER: "Great Scott! There goes MY hat!"
CHARLEY: "Catch it, old man."
LULU: "Now give us a sample of YOUR artistic sprinting, Leander."

5. LEANDER: "I'll show her what real grace and agility look like."
LULU: "Be careful, Leander, don't slip."
CHARLEY: "By Jove, Leander, you ARE a fine runner."



6. CHARLEY: "Zipp-p-pt! There you go, Leander."
LULU: "Oh, Leander, I TOLD you not to slip! Oh, how awkward of you. Why didn't you run like Charley? Call a cab and go home, Leander. We can't walk with you in that condition."
LEANDER (aside): "Ye gods! Just hear her! Oh, if a car of Juggernaut would only run over me now."

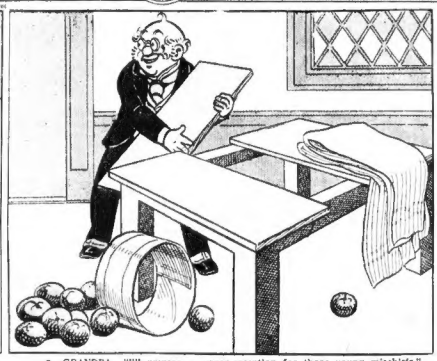
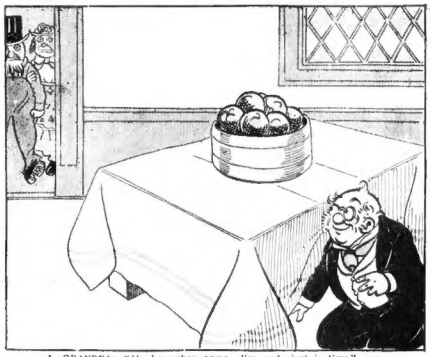
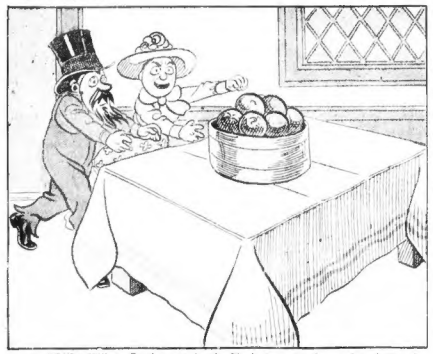
1. BOYS: "We will give Gran'pa a fright when he sees us disguised. Then for a hearty laugh."



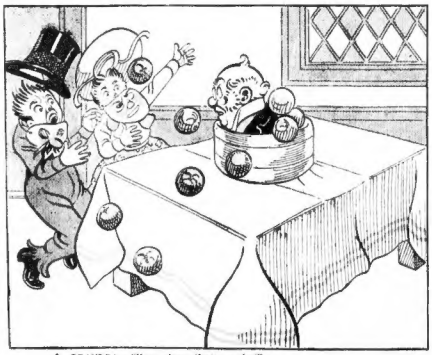
2. GRANDPA: "I'll prepare a proper reception for those young mischiefs."



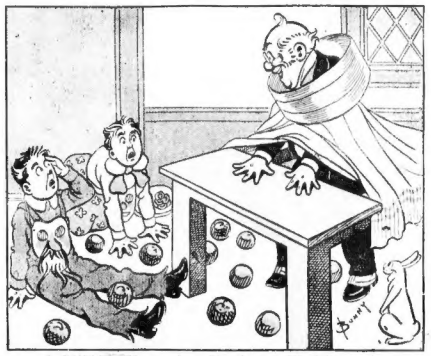
3. GRANDPA: "Ah, here they come. I'm ready just in time."



4. BOYS: "What, Gran'pa not here! Oh, look at the fine apples. Let's eat them while we wait."



5. GRANDPA: "Here, drop those apples!"



6. GRANDPA: "Dear me, boys, it's only you. Why, help yourselves."

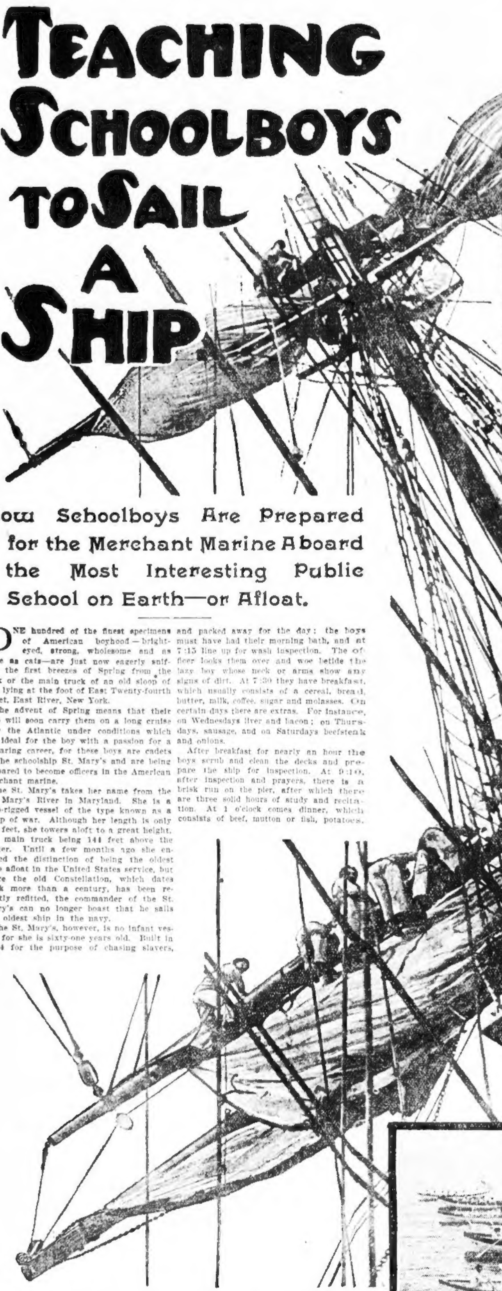
Teaching Schoolboys to Sail a Ship



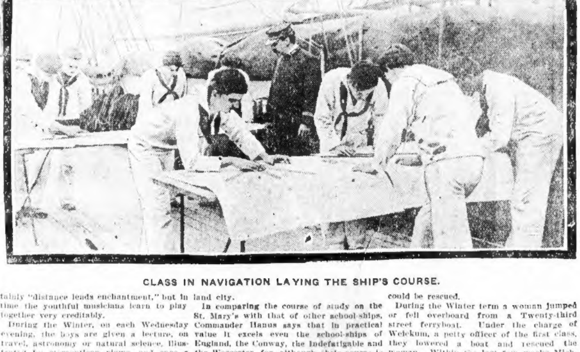
A LESSON IN "FIRST AID TO THE INJURED"

A LESSON IN SAIL MAKING

THE FIRST CLASS TAKING OBSERVATIONS AT NOON

GETTING DOWN THE HAMMOCKS

LEARNING TO MAN THE SHIP'S BOATS.



CLASS IN NAVIGATION LAYING THE SHIP'S COURSE.

How Schoolboys Are Prepared for the Merchant Marine Aboard the Most Interesting Public School on Earth—or Afloat.

ONE hundred of the finest specimens of American boyhood—bright-eyed, strong, wholesome and as agile as cats—are just now eagerly sniffing the first breezes of Spring from the deck or the main truck of an old sloop of war lying at the foot of East Twenty-fourth street, East River, New York.

The advent of Spring means that their ship will soon carry them on a long cruise over the Atlantic under conditions which are ideal for the boy with a passion for a seafaring career, for these boys are cadets of the schoolship St. Mary's and are being prepared to become officers in the American merchant marine.

The St. Mary's takes her name from the St. Mary's River in Maryland. She is a ship-rigged vessel of the type known as a sloop of war. Although her length is only 150 feet, she towers aloft to a great height, her main truck being 144 feet above the water. Until a few months ago she enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest ship afloat in the United States service, but since the old Constellation, which dates back more than a century, has been recently refitted, the commander of the St. Mary's can no longer boast that he sails the oldest ship in the navy.

The St. Mary's, however, is no infant vessel, for she is sixty-one years old. Built in 1844 for the purpose of chasing slavers, she was at one time the fastest sailing ship in the American navy. For the last thirty-two years, however, she has been used entirely for educational purposes, and now is the school and home of New York boys who desire to follow the sea. Commander G. C. Hanus, U. S. N. (retired), is the superintendent, and is assisted by a staff of competent officers, each of whom has charge of a department of study.

No one is permitted to enroll on this schoolship who is not sound mentally, physically and morally; and, moreover, the applicant must be a resident of New York. The school is not a reformatory, as some people imagine, and the applicant's record is thoroughly investigated before he is allowed to enter the nautical school.

The ship may be visited during the Winter at her dock, foot of East Twenty-fourth street. But as soon as Spring comes she proceeds to Glen Cove, L. I., where she is thoroughly refitted and prepared for a long Summer cruise across the Atlantic. The Winters are spent in technical study and the Summers in these long voyages, in which the boys have an opportunity to put into practical use the principles of navigation which they have learned during the Winter months. The usual cruise is across the North Atlantic to Queenstown or Southampton, then to Cherbourg, Lisbon or Tangier, and after giving the boys a chance to see something of foreign countries the ship proceeds to Funchal, Madeira Islands, where food and water are taken aboard for the trip home.

Whether in port or at sea the life of these embryo officers is one of constant activity. In port, from the time reveille is sounded at 5:30 a. m. until taps at 9 p. m., there is a constant succession of studies and practical work. By 6:30 a. m. all hammocks and bedding must have been aired and packed away for the day; the boys must have had their morning bath, and at 7:15 line up for wash inspection. The officer looks them over and woe betide the lazy boy whose neck or arms show any signs of dirt. At 7:30 they have breakfast, which usually consists of a cereal, bread, butter, milk, coffee, sugar and molasses. On certain days there are extras. For instance, on Wednesdays liver and bacon; on Thursdays, sausage, and on Saturdays beefsteak and onions.

After breakfast for nearly an hour the boys scrub and clean the decks and prepare the ship for inspection. At 9:10, after inspection and prayers, there is a brisk run on the pier, after which there are three solid hours of study and recitation. At 1 o'clock comes dinner, which consists of beef, mutton or fish, potatoes, bread, butter and molasses. On Fridays there is also the great American dish—pie. Then, after washing up the dinner dishes, there are more study hours and recitation periods until 4 o'clock. Then come drills of various kinds, and at 5 o'clock supper. At this meal cold corned beef, bread and butter are the staples, along with stewed prunes, apples or apricots, milk and tea.

The boys wash their own clothes every day, so at 5:45 out come the dirty uniforms and for an hour the white duck blouses and trousers are scrubbed until they are perfectly spotless. Then, after an hour's quiet study, the bells sound for hammock formation, and in twelve minutes each boy must be swinging in his little trundle bed. When tattoo and taps are sounded, at 9:05, there is scarcely a boy who is not in the land of dreams.

Such is the daily routine during the Winter when the ship is tied up at her dock. During the long cruise in the Summer time the life is still more strenuous. Although the St. Mary's carries a crew of able-bodied seamen of sufficient number to navigate the ship even if there were not a single cadet on board, yet the boys are trained to perform every operation, such as standing watches, steering, reefing and furling the sails and lowering and hoisting the boats.

While at sea the boys must be up at 4:30. For three-quarters of an hour they scrub their clothes. Then they clean the ship and make all ready for inspection. The boys are divided into watches. One division is always on deck while the other is below. At 7:30 comes wash inspection, just the same as in port. Then breakfast, of crushed oats, bread, butter, sugar and coffee. At 8 the chronometers are wound, the bilge pump is manned, and there are various activities until inspection and prayers at 9:30.

The boys are divided into two classes, first and second year students; and each class is divided into watches. Each watch is under the command of a petty officer called "bos'n's mate," who himself is under the orders of the "officer of the ship's deck." The watches are still further subdivided into "parts of the ship," or divisions. The boys are then known by the terms forecastlemen, foretopmen, maintopmen or mizzentopmen. "The captain of the top" is in command of each division, and the different "tops" report alternately to the sailmaker or boatswain for instruction in sailmaking or seamanship.

Most of the boys received on board the St. Mary's (the age requirement is between sixteen and twenty-one) are already graduates of high schools. Consequently, although the curriculum of the nautical school includes all the branches of a common English education, a rapid review of these subjects is sufficient, and the greater part of the time is spent on technical instruction in navigation.

Lieutenant Christopher Marsden (formerly commander of the American liner Kensington) is chief executive officer and head of the Department of Seamanship and Mathematics. The boys receive practical instruction in knotting, splicing and hitching ropes, cutting, sewing and roping the sail, setting, furling, reefing and bending the sail, and working the ship under sail, tacking, wearing, etc. They are taught how to send up the masts and the yards, to place and set up the rigging, lowering and hoisting the boats, the practical heaving of the log and lead. They are thoroughly drilled in the rules of the road, the use of flags and signals, and steering by wind and by course. They receive lectures on bills of lading, storage of cargoes, freights and passages, rigging anchors, saving life at sea and handling ships in heavy weather.

Many of the boys are so ambitious that on a cruise they frequently work out the ship's position by ten or twelve star sights, as well as by the altitude of the sun and by dead reckoning. They take the time to do this out of their hours of recreation, and in a short time their calculations can be depended upon absolutely.

The Board of Education is not forgetful of the precept that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and the means of recreation have not been overlooked. There is on board a full outfit of sporting goods, such as fencing foils, boxing gloves, punching bags, and all kinds of gymnastic apparatus. There is even a fife and drum corps. In the initial stages of their musical performances Commander Hanus says that certainly "distance lends enchantment," but in time the youthful musicians learn to play together very creditably.

During the Winter, on each Wednesday evening, the boys are given a lecture, on travel, astronomy or natural science, illustrated by stereopticon views, and once a week they receive instruction in singing.

When on the Summer cruise, if in a foreign port, all boys, excepting any who have misbehaved, are allowed "shore leave." This is arranged, however, so that only one-half of their number is absent at a time. They are never permitted to remain on shore over night except when this becomes necessary in visiting an inland city.

In comparing the course of study on the St. Mary's with that of other school-ships, Commander Hanus says that in practical value it excels even the school-ships of England, the Conway, the Indefatigable and the Worcester, for, although their course is four years in duration, they remain all the time at anchor and do not cruise at all. In the Commander's opinion, it is impossible to make a good sailor without practical experience of all the conditions of weather and c'mate.

The boys of the school-ship have on occasion showed conspicuous bravery. Some time ago in New London harbor, R. E. Smith, one of the second year classmen, who could not swim a stroke, fell overboard at night. Immediately, Frank Fitzgerald, also a second classman, jumped in after him. In the darkness he failed to locate the drowning boy immediately, and Brenner, a petty officer of the first-class, jumped overboard and seized Smith. With the help of Fitzgerald he held him up until all three could be rescued.

During the Winter term a woman jumped or fell overboard from a Twenty-third street ferryboat. Under the charge of Welckum, a petty officer of the first class, they lowered a boat and rescued the woman. Within the last few weeks Michael A. T. O'Sullivan, one of the students, jumped into the water, among the floating ice, to save a man who had fallen overboard from a neighboring vessel. After a hard struggle he succeeded in placing a rope round him, and both were drawn ashore. For this act of heroism, O'Sullivan has just been presented with a gold watch by the Board of Education.

How a Real Lord in Real Life Makes Love.

Just How He Proposed by Letter and What He Said When He Called and Just What Followed When His Lordship Was Sued for Breach of Promise.

"THEIR COURTSHIP BEGAN IN THE ORANGE GROVES OF FLORIDA."

"SENT HIM A SCARF PIN."

"THERE WAS A SCENE."

THE breach of promise suit which was brought against the Marquis of Townshend would have been interesting even if it hadn't incidentally cast light upon the love-making of a noble lord.

The suit, it is true, was withdrawn from the courts before it was concluded, but none the less the public was treated to a glimpse of how the momentous question is popped in high society.

Since the day that authors first began to write fiction they have given us pictures of dukes and lords and other noble gallants down on their knees in satins and velvets swearing, with right hand upraised, to love eternally and to cherish and honor till death the lady fair.

One after another these exquisites have spouted speeches to the eyes of Lady Evelina or the lips of Lady Margery that were music compared to the speeches made by ordinary men to ordinary women. They have reeled off sonnets and madrigals extolling the perfections of their fair ones with as much ease as commonplace men utter commonplace phrases.

It was indeed beautiful to believe that all these noble lords and ladies wooed and loved in a world of their own, where speech and manners fitted silks and satins and pedigrees.

If it hadn't been for the divorce courts and breach of promise suits, where the truth, it seems, will out, perhaps we might never have known any differently. We might have believed all lords to be mirrors of chivalry, crying out with Lovelace:

"I could not love thee, dear, so much, Loved I not honour more."

But the courts are in fashion just now, and in one only a couple of weeks ago the Marquis of Townshend thrived quite complacently to a rehearsal of his wooing of Mrs. Evelyn Sheffield, the American widow.

The Marquis of Townshend, belonging to the Townshends who fought in the Armada and at Cadiz, at Dettingen, Fontenoy and Culloden; to the Townshends who took their share of the burden of great work, comes honestly through a long line of distinguished ancestry to a mastery of the manners of the great.

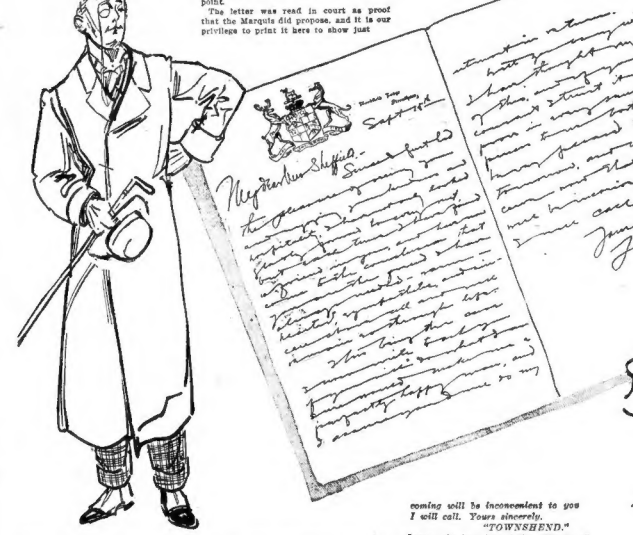
A REAL LORD'S PROPOSAL.

The present Marquis is the sixth holder of the title, and a nephew of the Duke of Fife and of Sir Redvers Buller.

Three months after the Marquis met Mrs. Sheffield he decided to propose. Oh, how that would once have thrilled us—a real proposal from a real lord! So that there might not be the slightest doubt about it he decided to set it down in plain black and white. Plain it was, and to the point.

The letter was read in court as proof that the Marquis did propose, and it is our privilege to print it here to show just how the sixth representative of a noble line went about it.

"THE MARQUIS IN A LONG, LIGHT, TIGHT-WAISTED COAT."



"MORTGAGED TO SOME VULGAR MAN WITH MONEY."

"Woodfield Lodge,
"Streatham, Sept. 15.

"My Dear Mrs. Sheffield—Since I first had the pleasure of seeing you and enjoying your kindness and hospitality, I have not only looked gladly to every visit, but each time I have found a friend in you, and have now come to the conclusion that you are the friend I have always needed—warm-hearted, sympathetic and sincere above all, and will remain so through life.

"This being the case, I now write to ask you if you will do what I am sure would make me a perfectly happy man, and I assure you I will do my utmost to return. Will you be my wife? I have thought every much of this, and if you will consent I trust it will prove in every sense a happiness to us both. I should be very pleased to see you so-morrow, and unless I receive word that my coming will be inconvenient to you I will call. Yours sincerely.

"TOWNSHEND."

Lovers who have burned the midnight oil until the wee small hours of morning vainly trying to compose the proper sort of phraseology to win the adored one will be pleased to have before them so simple a pattern as that set by the Marquis Townshend.

They will be interested to learn, too, that the Marquis called the next day for his answer and that a conversation something like this took place:

"Do you think, Mrs. Sheffield, that you can become my life long friend?"

"Well—er—yes, if"——

"Of course, I will do my utmost to reciprocate your friendship. I mean—or—I do reciprocate it."

"In that case"——

"Then we may consider the matter finally arranged."

"Yes, except that it is customary, you know"——

"Oh, yes," said the noble Marquis, "I know you would like to present me with something"——

"And you?"

"Ah, I have neglected so far to tell you that, although I—er—make a good appearance, I am in reality much impoverished. My estates, the glorious estate of Norfolk, of Ravynhaw Hall, over which you will some day reign, is mortgaged. I regret to say, to some vulgar man with money."

"Then—er"——

"Precisely"——

The lady seems to have understood the difficulty of her noble lord's position, for during the following week she sent him to consummate the engagement a scarf pin which was formed of a gold hunting crop with a fox's head set in diamonds and ornamented with ruby eyes.

Very politely the Marquis thanked the widow for her consideration and on that day, she testified, he really was lover-like enough to hope she had no more headache.

According to the love letters produced in court this was the extent of his fervor.

"I thought him a trifle reticent, but his manner seemed to me quite that of an English nobleman," said Mrs. Sheffield, describing it.

Enthusiasm is for the vulgar, he used to say. "Protestations belong to the common people. I have asked you to be my wife, that is sufficient. Now to business," he began suddenly. "You do not, I take it, need more than a fortnight to make preparations for your wedding. We have known each other three months, quite long enough for those who move in the same circle. Let us lose no time in consummating our contract—let us be married on October 1."

Mrs. Sheffield says she winced a little at the word contract, but the Marquis went on quite unconcernedly and she, supposing his were the ways of the xrest, kept silence.

The next day the noble Marquis appeared with his solicitor, a Mr. Dans, and, according to the widow's testimony, asked her to settle some money on the Reverend Arthur Robins, to whom they both owed so much.

"He it was, you know, who brought us together. Without him you would never have had the good fortune to meet me"—the Marquis paused a moment and then added "or I, you."

THE BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT.

The widow declared that her breath was completely taken away when the Marquis finally asked her to sign an agreement settling £10,000 on Mr. Robins and £5,000 on his son Darrell. The Marquis added that he would like very much to have Mr. Robins live with them.

"And, by the way," he said, quite nonchalantly, "you will understand that in all marriages where the nobility are concerned the—er—securities should be examined."

The lady it seems at this demurred; the Marquis wept; the solicitor solicited. There was a scene. The Marquis cried dramatically, "This will put a stop to our marriage."

"But you have compromised me," the lady burst forth. "I will be revenged if I have to carry the case to the courts of England."

The courtship had been begun in the orange groves of Florida, where the Marquis did not hesitate to acknowledge that the lady having been presented to him as a wealthy widow, he had consented to court her.

"Money is a necessity," he is reported to have said. "Sometimes to secure it one must take a wife."

When, later, the lady made him the defendant in what promised to be a most sensational suit, he did not deny that he had promised to marry her, he merely pleaded that her inability to make proper settlements vitiated his side of the contract. She had represented herself as a wealthy woman. As such the sixth Marquis of Townshend frankly acknowledged he had courted her.

At thirty-two he had come to America in search of an heiress, one rich enough to rehabilitate his fortunes. He had been received as to the value of Mrs. Sheffield's inheritance. Incidentally, he was prepared to testify that the plaintiff was an adventuress and a clairvoyant, also a person whose moral character unfitted her to be the Marchioness Townshend.

In Justice Grantham's court the other day the case was called. A crowd of curious people, anxious to see what a real lord would do in such a predicament, brought face to face with the woman he had once sought to make his wife, filled the room. A few Scotland Yard officers and a couple of gentlemen supposed to represent pleases of the widow's past flitted about importunately.

They were completely overshadowed, however, when the principals entered. The widow, an extremely good looking woman of about forty, conferred with her counsel. The Marquis, exactly the sort that we in America have typified in the columns of our comic papers, was in a long light coat, made very tight about the waist, looking extremely bored. The lady, one could see, was anxious.

She listened intently while her counsel, quoting from the exclusive pages of Burke, described her as the daughter of Commander Edward Tournour, R. N., and a Spanish lady named D'Glario.

"She was born," said the learned counsel, "in Cadiz, came to England at her father's death, and at the tender age of fifteen married clandestinely Mr. Digby Sheffield, the second son of Sir Robert Sheffield, Bart., of Normandy, and the uncle of the present baronet, who is descended from Edward Sheffield, second and last Duke of Buckingham"——

Suddenly at this point there was a commotion in the court room. The plaintiff's counsel paused abruptly in response to some one who said sotto voce, "Stop, stop." Every one looked startled, and it was remarked that the plaintiff had disappeared while her pedigree was being glibly reeled off. A few minutes' hurried whispered conference and the learned counsel for the plaintiff announced that his client's case would not be proceeded with.

Instantly the noble lord who had been involved in it was surrounded by a host of admiring friends all congratulating him upon having discovered the handsome widow's pecuniary disabilities.

No sooner had the plaintiff's counsel announced that the case was called off than Mr. Gill, representing the other side, jumped to his feet.

"Of course," he said, "I can't allow the case to be disposed of in that way without making a reply. A statement has been made which is a tissue of falsehoods with regard to this woman—a tissue of falsehoods. The defence is that her statement with regard to her case, her connections, her birth, her distinguished friends, is one tissue of lies from beginning to end.

"We have every certificate for the purpose of tracing her from her birth.

"She was the daughter of a woman who was a servant in a respectable family, and her father kept a public house in Southampton, where she was a barmaid.

"It is important that as her story has been told I should say that I have here the witnesses, the documents, and the certificates. This woman actually has had the audacity to put in 'Burke's Peerage' a statement with regard to her identity and her parentage which is disproved by the certificates at Somerset House."

Imagine the excitement in the crowded court. The clerks rapped for order, Mr. Justice Grantham pounded with his gavel and every one talked at once. From the general hubbub one learned that the plaintiff had withdrawn her claim after an inspection of the court room, where she beheld the shadows of her past rushing in various corners, dug up from somewhere by the defendant.

The Marquis, however, had provided some compensation—he had permitted a crowd of lion worshippers to hear for themselves the proposal of a real lord as it flowed from the tip of his pen.

He is, by the way, not the only hero of romance that his house has provided. The third Marquis of Townshend, who died in 1855, was connected with one that made history. His wife, after a fashion in vogue even then, secured a divorce from him and married a brother of C. Fox, to whom she bore several children.

The lady had deserted her husband, but she still had designs on his title—she preferred it to that of the brewer. To perpetuate it she handed it down to her eldest son. This child was registered as the son of the third Marquis and was actually elected to Parliament as Earl of Leicester. A long trial in the House of Lords was necessary to prove the succession of the rightful heir. He was a distant cousin, and from him is descended the hero of this recent breach of promise suit.

The sixth Marquis of Townshend is widely advertised as still on the market. He still needs an heiress and his friends declare he is willing to accept an American, in spite of his recent unpleasant experience with the Widow Sheffield.

"THE NOBLE MARQUIS APPEARED WITH HIS SOLICITOR."

"CALLED THE NEXT DAY FOR HIS ANSWER."

Some Things That Will Make Married Life Smooth.

THE simple "making up of the mind" is more powerful in smoothing rough places than many of us realize.

If, when a man and woman entered into the bonds of matrimony, they made up their minds to live together, come what would, they would find fewer causes for disagreement, fewer chances to go home to mother, fewer lawyers' bills, and fewer suits for alimony.

If young people made up their minds to love each other in spite of each other's faults, and not because of each other's excellent qualities, there would be fewer disappointments, fewer disillusions, fewer broken hearts.

Such is the value of this "made-up mind" that after years of patience a man cannot be impatient; after years of forgiving, a woman cannot be unforgiving; after years of searching for naught but good, neither man nor woman can become enraged at the little faults which spring up.

If a woman forgives a man's carelessness to-day, to-morrow she forgives a little easier, and so up until she sees in the omission of a little courtesy naught but the memory of some tender word.

It a man forgets to-day that there was less heartiness than usual in the evening greeting, so much easier will he forget an imagined coolness in to-day's caress. There may be a number of things which men don't know, but they know what qualities are adorable in women, and they know enough to recognize them when they see them. They know, too, just how to discriminate between what is real and what is artificial.

Woman may take the poor, abused man under her wing on numerous occasions, and he may yield to woman's judgment sometimes, but he doesn't need any instruction from his mother, sister, friend or any other woman when it comes to picking out the woman he admires.

WHAT DOES THE CZAR THINK NOW?

These Remarkable War Pictures by Verestchagin, the Great Russian Painter, were Destroyed by the Czar as being "Too Horrible to be True."

"WORK FOR THE RAVENS"

"THE APOTHEOSIS OF WAR"

WHEN Russia had completed her great trans-Siberian railway and was busy fortifying Port Arthur against possible attack by the Japanese, one day the Czar received in his palace at Tsarskoe-Selo a high official of his Government who craved His Imperial Majesty's opinion of two framed paintings which he had caused to be brought with him.

"These pictures by Verestchagin," said the official, "I have thought it well to withdraw from public exhibition—although I fear they have been already photographed. In case Russia should be compelled to go to war I believe they would create a false and unfortunate impression on the public mind.

The pictures were unwrapped and placed against the wall of the Czar's cabinet. One of them represented a vast pyramid of human skulls and was labelled: "The Apotheosis of War." The other, called "Work for the Ravens," pictured a flock of those sombre and ominous birds circling above a heap of dead soldiers on a battlefield.

The Czar cast one glance at these graphic and terrible portrayals of the real meaning of war—the heap of skulls of nameless dead, and the bodies of husbands and sons slain only to fatten carrion birds—and, pointing at them with a gesture of anger, said:

Ordered Masterpieces Destroyed.

"Take them away—destroy them! That is not war; it is imagination. They are false, and will have a mischievous influence upon my people. Let them be destroyed immediately!"

The Czar's orders were obeyed. Nothing now remains of these two most powerful and terribly truthful of Verestchagin's war paintings but photographs, which had the fortunately been taken before they left the painter's studio.

Now, less than two years after the occurrence of this scene, every Russian who saw these pictures knows that they did not exaggerate, but told even less than the terrible truth of what has happened in Manchuria. When this page reaches its many hundreds of thousands of readers, Kuropatkin's loss in dead—many unburied and food for birds—may reach 150,000, with himself and his officers on the road to Tieling, prisoners of the completely victorious Japanese. At this writing the enemy has surrounded him; he must do more than he has yet done to save himself from capture or annihilation—must not only retreat to Harbin, harassed by a victorious army in the rear, but break through another victorious army which bars his way.

On a dozen battle fields beginning with Lalo-Yang photographs have been taken showing as great horrors as Verestchagin ever painted. Some of these have reached the people of Russia, in spite of the censorship now, and they know that these are not "imagination." On one hillside near Port Arthur the camera shows long rows of dead Russians awaiting burial, while Russian soldiers still living take from their bodies cartridges sorely needed for their own protection.

War never appears so horrible to those responsible for it as when its horrors are capped by the humiliation of defeat. All these war photographs which the Czar now gazes upon represent horrors not only greater than Verestchagin painted, but horrors that have been suffered in vain. Port Arthur, that "impregnable fortress," is in the hands of the enemy, and the bulk of Russia's navy lies under the waters of her harbor.

Horror Greater than Verestchagin's

These are facts which oppress the Czar's soul and must convince him now that no painter can exaggerate the horrors of war as they are in reality. Perhaps now he wishes that he had permitted Verestchagin's pictures to teach the lesson which was their inspiration. Then, theoretically at least, the Czar was the world's most prominent advocate for universal peace. The great painter had given up the larger part of his life studying war in all its aspects. In order to paint pictures which, by graphically portraying its horrors, would be effectual arguments for its abolition.

He painted the whole war history of Napoleon, from Marengo to Moscow—a gallery full of pictures. And no historian portrays the truth of the scenes of that awful Winter retreat, which brought 80,000 frozen and haggard wretches back to Paris, out of the gay and confident 600,000 who started on the fatal expedition. These pictures, more horribly realistic than those which he ordered destroyed, the Czar purchased and now owns.

Russia's Best Peace Advocate.

The Czar knew that Verestchagin was a fervent peace advocate than himself, for the painter was sincere. He was so sincere that, old as he was, he begged and gained permission to share the perils of Admiral Makaroff and his crew in the battleship Petropavlovsk, of the Port Arthur fleet, in order that he might picture the horrors of naval warfare as they really are. When the Petropavlovsk went down, under the fire of Japanese guns, the great painter went with her.

In his knowledge of what war means the Czar is a more infant to what Verestchagin was. The Czar's actual experience of war is confined to his reviewing of military and naval manœuvres. Once, when on a visit to his country to paint the battle of San Juan Hill, Verestchagin was induced to tell a little about his actual war experiences. He said:

"Every one said I would be killed. But what could I do? How could I paint war without seeing it? Yes, I found it rather dangerous. I had to do some fighting with the rest now and then. When I was on another and more luxurious vice—that is, to crowd the house with furniture in order to outdo the neighbors. The young couple are soon quite persuaded into the idea that every spare penny must be lavished on "the home."

"I remember a time in Central Asia when we were surrounded—some forty of us—by many thousands of men. Then we had to defend ourselves for many days, and I took a rifle and fought with the rest. Once I was painting the figure of a dead man, when the fighting grew so hot that I had to leave off and fight for four days before I could put in the legs.

"Ah, yes; I know what war is! I have killed men, and I have been wounded. But it was necessary. There was no other way of getting to know the facts. War painted in any other way is simply an illusion, a farce, a myth."

And this from his own lips is Verestchagin's opinion of war, and the reason why he painted war as it is:

"War is stupid—a stupid sport. In the old days men killed one another in war, and then roasted and ate one another. There was something practical in that. It was a way of getting your food. But they don't do that now. They would be ashamed of it. Still they go on killing one another. Why, there's no object in it. To bring the matter to a point I would make it compulsory that in war men should eat their slain enemies. Perhaps that would put a stop to a senseless practice."

War a "Stupid Sport."

Yet he was a faithful subject of his Czar, even when disappointed in the latter's ability to practice what he preached about universal peace. "Russia is behind the Czar in this matter of the 'Peace Rescript,'" he said. "Things cannot go on as they are—we are being led to death. Ah, the misery of Russia! There are the masses of the people without education, without food—and all the money is going for this—for this stupidity—this stupidity of war. It cannot go on. Something must be done."

Verestchagin lived to see his pictures represent the most effective part of the universal peace propaganda. For this reason he was put forward as a candidate for the Nobel prize, given annually to some great world's benefactor. It was admitted few Russins who had deep misgivings about the outcome. His passion for the truth about war caused him to go aboard the Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur; but as he started for the central scenes of the coming war he was depressed about his that his influence was like Tolstoi's, and nearly, if not quite, as powerful.

He used all his influence against a conflict between Russia and Japan, and when that became inevitable he was one of the few Russians who had deep misgivings about the outcome. His passion for the truth about war caused him to go aboard the Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur; but as he started for the central scenes of the two war pictures photographed on this page was a compliment which no one could appreciate better than himself. It was as though the Czar had said:

"If my people see these pictures there can be no more war for Russia."

Perhaps now the Czar wishes that he had let his people see them.

The Folly of Taking Too Big a House and Filling It With Useless Furniture.

"COSTLY thy habit as thy purse can buy," Shakespeare's Polonius said; but the wise old man didn't advise costly raiment many does too large for the wearer. That, however, would be just as sensible as the habit young people about to be married have of taking a house not only larger than they will need, but more expensive than they can afford.

They start out with the one thought of "How big a house can we afford?" Not "How small a house can we contrive to live in?"

The desire for the large house leads to another and more luckless vice—that is, to crowd the house with furniture in order to outdo the neighbors. The young couple are soon quite persuaded into the idea that every spare penny must be lavished on "the home."

But the thing doesn't end there, for the husband catches the complaint and begins to talk about "the home" to his friends, who probably hate the subject. Instead of being a man, as he was before his marriage, he becomes a kind of male chatterwoman—only even more incompetent. If that were possible—wandering about "the home" with a tack-hammer, and full of anxiety for his carpets.

Larger issues—the things that move the world—are as nothing compared to the Joneses' sideboard, and whether we can get one larger—on credit.

Of course, people should have a "home." The thought of home life appeals to every one, although some pretend to scoff at it. But that is no reason why the only home that is to be possible is the one that is too big for the people who are to live in it. Nothing does a home become homelike and strong.

Highly ornamented and delicate furniture should only be bought by people whose means allow them to replace it without affecting their purse in the slightest.

Nothing looks worse, or exposes the owners of it to such contempt and ridicule from their neighbors, than showy furniture run to seed, or a big house that cannot be properly kept up.

The drawing room, although the housewife spends hours every week in dusting it, and keeping it clean, is practically never used—perhaps once or twice a year at most. Of course, it is no formal and uncomfortable that this is hardly to be wondered at. But is it worth while to spend all this money on a room that is so seldom occupied?

Another room that is often quite unnecessary is the spare bedroom. People who can ill-afford to entertain visitors, nevertheless feel themselves bound to have a spare bedroom; no one exactly knows why. Probably, however, as in many other of the instances mentioned, fate has got something to do with what the Joneses next door have.

Of course, the people with the spare bedroom have no choice but to invite them, and have to spend money on providing food and lodging on distant relatives instead of spending it on entertaining their neat and personal friends.

It amounts to this: Live in as small a house as possible, and so save your money. Don't fill it to the attics with cheap furniture—or even good furniture, for that matter—that is of no use to you. Buy pieces of furniture every now and then, simple, good and, if possible, old-fashioned.

THE GRAND DUKE AT HEAVEN'S GATE

BY FATHER GAPON.

MOSCOW, March 8.

THE secret police of the Russian Government have found in the hands of several active revolutionists a printed arraignment of the bureaucracy, with a picture of the woes of the common people more terrible and convincing than anything that has come from the pen of either Tolstoy or Gorky. It is in the form of an anonymous allegory entitled, "Grand Duke Serge at Heaven's Gate," but it has been established that it is the work of Father Gapon, who fled from Russia after the recent massacre of petitioners under his leadership before the Czar's palace.

Father Gapon fled to Geneva, where this allegory is believed to have been written, and is understood to have gone to England. The secret police have confiscated all copies of the document they could lay their hands on, as the simplicity of its language and the graphic and direct argument it conveys, showing the absolute moral unfitness of the ruling class, make it better calculated to arouse the mass of the population than anything ever before put into Russian type.

It will be seen that Father Gapon's allegory, forwarded herewith, with its picture of a hundred thousand of those sacrificed in the Czar's war with Japan being instantly admitted into heaven, while the Grand Duke Serge is rigidly barred therefrom, is well calculated to inflame the most ignorant peasant.

"Grand Duke Serge at Heaven's Gate"—By Father Gapon.

I.—Army of Dead on the March.

IN yonder far away place, where heaven and earth meet, a curious procession creeps along slowly, laboriously, silently—vast rows of cadaverous men, swathed in ragged uniforms and with bare feet. Their cloaks are too short, their head coverings either too large or too small; only a few boast boots without soles, or gloves without fingers. Thousands hobble on crutches, or carry their heads under their arms. And all faces wear the hue imposed by misery and thievish commissaries—pale, ashen, the uniform of death and starvation. Others are without arms, or minus leg, ear, eye or tongue.

With noiseless step they glide over the hard frozen snow. Of all the ten thousands of feet, the forest of crutches, not an impression remains.

"It's a far cry—to heaven, Gawrill," whispered one in the crowd to his mate. His head was bandaged, and he walked with the utmost difficulty on a single crutch, his left arm and left leg being shot away. "A far cry, comrade, and I am so tired, so tired. But not too tired to proceed, for the place we seek offers rest and food for mind and body, does it not, Gawrill? And Gawrill," he continued, "you are quite sure that we are bound for heaven; that the colonel and the generals are not deceiving us as they have been doing ever since the war began?"

"Being only a common soldier, I am not certain, Nicholas, yet am half convinced that we are going there. I speak on the authority of good Father Ivan. There"—pointing to his waistcoat—"is the saint's picture he gave me when I was lying in the hospital at Port Arthur. I am glad I kept it during all this long journey. It will enable me to identify my patron when I come to heaven's gate."

And after a little while: "I am not sure that heaven is for poor devils like ourselves, mere soldiers. Perhaps only the generals and officers go there."

"Gawrill," cried Nicholas in anxious tones, "I just noticed . . . my ikon is gone. The grenade that tore away my arm . . . d leg also stripped me of clothes. I was unconscious for a long time, and the sanitary official neglected to pick up my valuables. However, I trust the Lord will forgive the oversight and at the final reckoning will put to my credit all I have suffered for the Czar and Russia. And, indeed, I ought to be credited with the sufferings my poor wife is enduring for my own and the Czar's sake, all of which should weigh heavier than an ikon. The Lord will surely forgive me its loss even if the priests, who sell them, swear that no orthodox Christian is admitted to heaven without one.

"Ah, I so long to go to heaven—the hope of heaven alone kept me alive in those long days and nights of suffering in snowbound Manchuria, when for weeks and months and months upon months, we saw nothing but death and wounds, heard nothing but groans and curses, felt nothing but hunger and cold and exhaustion. The long run of death, wounds, hunger, exhaustion made us unfeeling wretches, I admit, brought out all that's beastly in our nature, but we atoned for our wickedness by suffering so much, did we not, Gawrill? And now I want to go to heaven, and if I have no other claim to eternal bliss I will say to the gatekeeper: 'Behold one who died for the Czar and Russia, for the saints and the Church—let me in.' A poor devil like me wont take up much room. To heaven, Gawrill, to heaven!"

As Nicholas pronounced these words a gust of wind passing by carried them to the ears of all who preceded and followed him. And they took up the cry: "To heaven, to heaven!" And saying and singing this, Stoessel's, Grippenberg's, Stackelberg's, Keller's and Kuropatkin's men marched on in the nebulous mist of the strange landscape. The snow had vanished. They were now walking over gray clouds, and the earth lay deep beneath them.

II.—The Tocsin of Moscow.

SUDDENLY the ringing of bells and chanting of pious litanies arrested the ghostly army's progress. The men stood still to listen. "Some great church event going on," they said to one another. At that moment the clouds parted, and they saw that thousands of miles below lay a great city.

"Gawrill, an exalted one must have departed life. Hear the clamor of bells—thousands must be ringing at once. And yonder procession of priests in garments of cloth of gold, in silks and ermine! Witness, Gawrill, the many, many soldiers in parade uniform."

They were marching along a great thoroughfare, preceding and following a golden hearse, drawn by eight horses. On the coffin a grand ducal crown, and black velvet was spread over the snow. And there were almost as many priests as soldiers and officials, thousands of them.

"It must be the funeral of a Prince," said Gawrill. "An imperial highness has an easy time of it when he gets ready to die. The priests sing and pray for him without being sold, while the Holy Synod orders all orthodox Christians to mourn and beseech the Almighty for the repose of the great one's soul. If we ever reach heaven, Nicholas, I suppose we will find the angels waiting there for his imperial highness to conduct him to the throne of God."

As Gawrill concluded the clouds drew together again, and so more of the earth was seen.

III.—Highway to Heaven.

MANY more weary miles the troopers marched, until at last they reached a beautiful valley, at the far end of which rose a majestic gateway, flanked by colonnades. "Brother Nicholas," cried Gawrill, "there are the gates of heaven!" And the two soldiers and their comrades fell upon their knees and raised their thin arms and crutches in supplication.

The roadway leading to the gate was filled with waiting multitudes, but when they saw the soldiers they respectfully withdrew to both sides, making way for them. For such is the majesty of duty well performed that every heart is filled with respect and love for the man who dies for his country. The masses of dead Russian soldiers marched right up to heaven's gate, and, coming near, saw St. Peter sitting outside with a roll of paper in his hand, from which he read long litanies of names. And whoever was called walked in joyously.

IV.—St. Peter and the Grand Duke.

THE poor soldiers were almost within reach of the heavenly goal, when a dark-visaged, proud man came scrutinizing after them. When he came to the vanguard he pushed forward, demanding elbow room in a shrill, drill-ground voice, and scattering the invalids to the right and left.

"Nicholas," whispered Gawrill, "it's Grand Duke Serge. I recognize him both by face and figure and by his manner of treating the common people."

"By the Holy Mother of God, you are right. It is His Imperial Highness!" cried Nicholas."

The Grand Duke took no notice of the frightened, cringing soldiers, but walked straight up to heaven's gate and introduced himself to St. Peter.

"Grand Duke Serge, Governor of Moscow, Aide-de-Camp General, Honorary Colonel of numerous regiments," etc., etc.

Saint Peter listened with a surprised air. "Repeat that name," he said. "Never heard it before, and don't think that it is on my lists."

Now it was His Imperial Highness's turn to be astonished. "I am Grand Duke Serge," he repeated, "uncle of the Czar of all the Russias, adviser to the crown, instigator of the war against the heathen Japs."

Again and again Saint Peter turned his leaves, but finally closed the book with a bang and said: "As I surmised, thou art not on my lists. Hence thou wilt have to wait until God sends word to admit thee." With that he turned a benign face to the troop of soldiers and called: "Gawrill Oseroff."

"Here," replied Gawrill, and walked through the gate of heaven with swinging steps.

"Here," shouted Nicholas. He threw away his crutch and fairly leaped into eternal bliss.

Grand Duke Serge repeatedly tried to attract the good Saint's attention, but Peter, as often, motioned him to keep quiet, and only when the last of the soldiers had gone into heaven he advanced anew toward Peter.

"Art thou now ready for me, good Peter?" he asked in an attitude of supplication.

"It all depends," replied the Saint; "let me see, what was thy name? Somehow or other, it wont stick in my memory."

"Grand Duke Serge, uncle of the Czar of all the Russias."

"Serge, Serge," mused Peter, consulting his index. "As before said, thou art not on my lists."

"And when, pray, will my name be inscribed?" demanded Serge. His imperious nature was about to break through the veneer of humility, and Peter looked upon him with pity and indignation.

"When? God knows—that is the usual mode of proceeding."

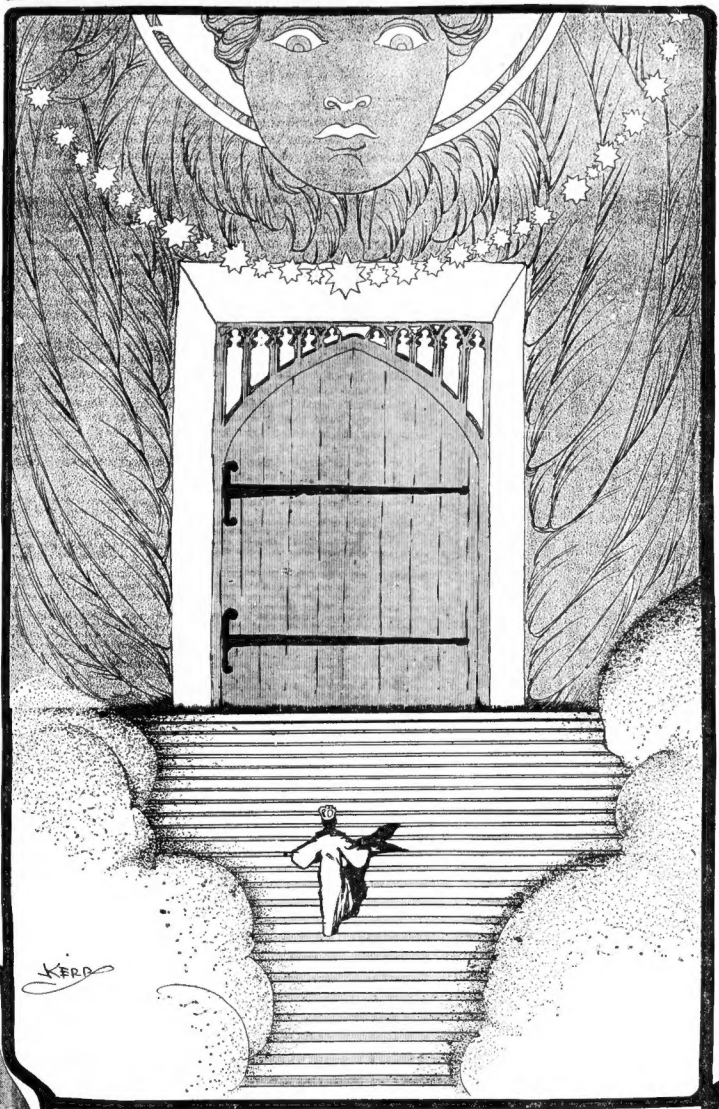
V.—Evil Deeds Must Be Forgotten.

"WHEN the last echo of the sufferings that thou hast caused thy fellow men has died away," said Peter impressively; "when all the wounds inflicted by thee upon the bodies and souls of men; when all the widows that denounce thee for robbing them of loving husbands; when all the women and girls that thou didst cause to be knouted have lived down and forgotten the wrong thou didst them; when every tear shed on account of thy crimes is dried and turned into a rose; when men, women and children no longer go about shuddering at the name of Serge, then the Lord, in His infinite grace and kindness, will set thy name upon my lists, then thou wilt be permitted to enter the hall of glory; not before."

The Grand Duke fell upon his knees, and, raising his beringed hands in supplication, cried: "Peter, good saint, there must be a mistake, a dreadful mistake. Just think! The Holy Synod ordered a hundred thousand monks throughout the vast Russian Empire to pray for me; the bells of a million churches were rung at my funeral, and I dare say a good many loyal Russians sent supplications in my behalf to God's throne."

Saint Peter shrugged his shoulders. "As to thy praying monks and bell-ringing, it would have been better if thy relatives had employed the money to dry some of the tears that thy cruelty and greed exacted from the poor.

"Go now and reflect on what I have said: When all the evil thou hast done to thy fellow men, directly or indirectly, be wiped out and forgotten, only then will God, in His infinite grace, put thy name on the list of candidates for eternal bliss. These are heaven's immovable rules for ploughboys as well as for Grand Dukes."



Grand Duke Serge, Most Implacable of the Czar's Advisers, Who Was Assassinated.

THREE PERPLEXING SOCIETY MYSTERIES OF NEW YORK AND LONDON FASHIONABLE HIGH LIFE

2.--Why Would Sir Philip Egerton Rather Go to Jail Than Live With His Beautiful American Wife, Who Was Miss May Cuyler of New York?

WHILE the unhappy domestic life of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough has been an open secret for more than two years in New York and Newport as well as in London, the reports of impending divorce have only recently been the gossip of club and drawing room. The many circumstances which have contributed to the more and more strained relations are explained below on this page.

At the same moment society gossip is busy with the singular mystery of the matrimonial disaster of another American girl who married a distinguished British title—Lady Grey Egerton, who was Miss May Cuyler, the famous New York beauty. Suddenly deserted by her husband, Lady Egerton was determined that she should not be placed in a false position. She went to the courts and has secured an order commanding her husband to return forthwith and live with her, or to state his reasons and at once bring a suit for divorce. Sir Philip Grey Egerton has astonished everybody by declining to do either; and he will be brought back from India and indefinitely imprisoned for contempt.

And still a third mystery surrounds the recent doings of the Duke of Manchester and his American wife, who was Miss Zimmerman, of Cincinnati. A quite unexpected cutting down of the bride's allowance by her millionaire father has upset all their ambitious plans. They have been forced to lease Kimbolton Castle, to sell off to the tenantry all the acres surrounding Tanderagee Castle, to offer the old castle itself for rent and to hand back to its original owner the magnificent new Irish estate, Kylemore Castle, which they had partly paid for. While the young Duke and Duchess of Manchester are now visiting in America, money-lenders, tradesmen and others are suing them in England for unpaid bills.

and perhaps pitied the Duchess whose jewels had set them envious.

It was the original plan of the Duke to buy up all the surrounding property, but the prices demanded for non-expired leases were prohibitive and quite even beyond the reach of a father-in-law who was a Vanderbilt.

THE PLIGHT OF THE DUKE IN POLITICS.

It has all along been stated freely in diplomatic circles that there is not at present the remotest possibility of the Duke of Marlborough ever becoming Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, notwithstanding the constant reports which have been so often circulated concerning his appointment to the post.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra would very much like to see the Marlboroughs established at Dublin Castle, as the Duchess is a great favorite of Her Majesty, and her tact is proverbial. It is said, however, that the Marlboroughs are not in a position financially to accept such a position unless, of course, W. K. Vanderbilt considerably changes in his attitude toward his son-in-law.

The Earl of Dudley was compelled to entertain more royalty than any previous Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The amount which he has spent out of his private purse is variously estimated at from $500,000 to $750,000.

Will Mr. Willie K. Vanderbilt go down into his pocketbook again to that amount, even for the sake of his beloved daughter?

Next came a very gloomy Christmas at Blenheim for the dependents of the family of the great Marlboroughs. The dependents had become accustomed to the munificence and beneficence of the second American Duchess. They had no idea where the money came from—only it came from the Lady Bountiful, who in this case happened to be simply the ... daughter of Mr. Vanderbilt of America.

The palace was closed for this Christmas, and the Duke and the Duchess, with their children, spent Yuletide with the Duke's sister, Lady Sarah Wilson, in Leicestershire.

CHRISTMAS GLOOM AT BLENHEIM.

The tenantry, who expected her to be Lady Bountiful as usual to the women and children around the estate, were sad.

Every year since her marriage she had distributed toys and comforts to them with her own hand, but this season there was no bestowing of gifts of any kind.

The next unexpected news creating something like consternation was revealed in Woodstock by the report that the Duke of Marlborough intended to close Blenheim Palace for two or three years and leave the whole place in charge of caretakers. Blenheim was closed by the late Duke for several years owing to money difficulties, but when the present Duke married Miss Vanderbilt it was considered a sure guarantee that Blenheim would be kept permanently open. The explanation offered here is that the Duke and his father-in-law do not get on together, and this, it is declared, is not W. K. Vanderbilt's fault, but the Duke's. It is known that the Duchess was loath to give up country life, as her happiest moments have been passed at Blenheim with the children.

The $3,000,000 of a marriage settlement that the Duchess had brought her husband was almost gone, fooled away as only his kind know how to fool it. There was not enough money to keep up the style he considered necessary to maintain the dignity of his position and title, and just here was fric-princely entertainments they have been wont to give in the past.

That they are in need of dollars seems indubitable. The recent sale of many of the valuable pictures that adorned the walls of Blenheim accentuates this. Dukes selling works of art at auction means only one thing. Many impecunious titled folk in England from time to time have parted with their art treasures to tide over financial stringency, but sales of this character are privately arranged. It is so vulgar to summon an auctioneer.

There is no doubt that the little Consuelo—so we used to characterize her, although she is "uncommon" tall—has met with troubles. What is the exactitude of these intimate disturbances cannot be judged with certitude just now.

Their estrangement and possible divorce, anyhow, is on the tips of all tongues.

A RARE BEAUTY WITH INTENSE YANKEE SPUNK.

By the Order of the British Court

Sir Philip Grey Egerton is by this decree directed to return to his home, Oulton Park, Cheshire, and resume his relations as husband in fact to Lady Grey Egerton. Unless he can show by means of a suit of his own that he is justified in abandoning his wife.

This order shall be published in India.

One may easily imagine the fashionable tumult in Mayfair when this stern order from the staid British tribune got bruited abroad.

"What?" "Where?" "When?" "How?" "What's the rumpus all about, anyway?"

St. James had really quite a new sensation. And St. James has had so many shocks of late that one would suppose that end of London had got inured to them.

Of course, all Mayfair knew that there had been a little rupture between Sir Philip and Lady Grey Egerton, but society being so used to these little "huffs" gave it only a moment's consideration and tossed it away with a wave of its fan.

But what they hadn't reckoned on, nor even dreamed of, was AN AMERICAN GIRL WITH SPUNK.

Where the Duchess of Marlborough had her many millions and the Duchess of Manchester her million to commend them as enticeable to the strawberry leaves of England, the wife of Sir Philip Grey Egerton had almost nothing except her face. Literally her face was her fortune or—perhaps now, in looking back—her misfortune.

At any rate, when Sir Philip wooed and won the captivating May Wayne Cuyler, of Morristown and Washington, U. S. A., it was the unanimous opinion of society that if ever she had succumbed to his title and his vast estates over the water, he had very desperately fallen all over himself in love—for Her and Herself alone. Not only in America among her friends here, but in Grosvenor Square in London this union was regarded as perfect—underneath "the voice that breathed o'er Eden."

And why shouldn't they?

The fruit of the union was an exquisitely beautiful little girl and their twin boys, all three most notable for their beauty, even in Great Britain, where aristocratic child beauty is perhaps unparalleled on the face of the globe.

And, too, there is no greater worshipper of beauty anywhere than the Briton. And the voice of the men of the realm proclaimed Sir Philip's wife as almost peerless.

In fact, one enthusiastic Londoner remarked recently that the handsomest women who would go down to history in the British book of beauty would be Americans, and moreover declared that among those Lady Grey Egerton would probably bear off the palm.

Only seven years ago this lovely American was selected particularly to be illustrative of the whole beauty of the Victorian era, which lasted from 1837 to 1901.

AN AMERICAN WOMAN, WHO, IT WOULD SEEM, WOULD MAKE ANY MAN GLAD TO HAVE AND TO HOLD.

Unlike many great beauties, Lady Grey Egerton has the good fortune to take an excellent photograph, but no colorless picture could convey the richness of a complexion, dark, but exquisitely clear and rosy, nor the wondrous lights and shadows lurking in her eyes and hair. There is about her face and figure a girlishness that would never suggest to the stranger the fact that she has now been married more than a dozen years and is the mother of three children. And her figure is still admitted to be glorious, even in the midst of her enemies, the Dowager Duchesses, who instinctively hate American girls.

Now what is the mystery about this alliance? One would think that Sir Philip, with such a queenly wife, whom he had adored and took without any dot whatever, who had borne him children that any man, noble or commoner, would be vastly proud of, and whose beauty had not only fascinated all England, but whose complete loveliness had not only made her a friend to the King, but his Queen, would have held her in his arms against the world.

It's the old story. Cherchez la femme. Find the woman in the case. Lady Grey Egerton nobly kept her secret to her conscience as her king—until her heart was near breaking and her whole soul aroused to its righteous outburst.

Then the spunk in this Yankee girl awoke not only to revolt, but to rebellion.

The secret kept leaking out, and it came this way: Sir Philip and his wife separated last Spring. He went off to India and Lady Grey Egerton practically retired from society and devoted herself to "the three most beautiful children in England."

There was a lull until Sir Philip stung his wife with this ignoble insult—after all their friends at court had finally comprehended the seriousness of the case and had meddled to effect a reconciliation.

Lady Grey Egerton, under pressure for the sake of her children, in spite of the ignominy of her position, agreed, if not to forget, to forgive and wrote to her husband making overtures for reunion at least before the eyes of the world.

The retort which stung her to the quick was this:

"I've definitely made up my mind not to live with you again."

"Be that as it may, then," retorted Lady Grey Egerton, "we shall see."

Then his particular friends came to the rescue and argued that Sir Philip was gallantly giving her a chance to secure a divorce from him and end a life that would be most miserable for both him and her.

"No, no," responded her ladyship. "You may call it gallantry. I call it—I call it despicable cowardice. And he shall come back alone for this humiliating insult."

THIS AMERICAN GIRL IS GOING TO HALE HER NOBLE LORD TO PRISON TO MAKE HIM OBEY.

So Sir Philip brutally rejecting all overtures to become reconciled to his wife, Lady Grey Egerton, determined not to have her position misunderstood, brought the suit in the divorce branch of the Court of King's Bench, to fix the status of her rights, and the Court made a decree directing Sir Philip to immediately return and live with his wife or else to show in a suit brought by him that he was justified in tion. Would Vanderbilt pere be squeezed for more?

3.--Why Did the Millionaire Papa of the Duchess of Manchester (Miss Zimmerman, of Cincinnati) Suddenly Cut Down Her Allowance So They Had to Sell or Rent Their Fine Estates and Go Visiting and Boarding?

The report most common to the public is that the marriage of William K. Vanderbilt, the father of the Duchess, has actually now cut off the cash supply; that the Marlboroughs find themselves really hard pressed for money and unable longer to keep up the

The Duke and Duchess (Miss Zimmerman) of Manchester

LONDON, March 11.

THE dream of the Marlboroughs—at least the dream of the Duke—was, after the complete rehabilitation of the old splendor of Blenheim, the famously historic palace given to the first Duke as a reward for his victories for the English against the French by Queen Anne, to buy back Marlborough House in London, the town residence of the present King Edward when Prince of Wales, and restore that also to the former glory of the Marlborough name.

Then, after this accomplishment, with the invasion of American millions, the next move was to be in the direction of a Viceroyship, and the first important point to be attacked was Ireland—then India, by way of Paris, Berlin or St. Petersburg, in between times, perhaps, or even Washington, and then to the very highest point that an Englishman can aspire to.

But in the meantime came two distinct and abrupt disillusionments.

First, William K. Vanderbilt married again, and next his son-in-law, who had been paid three millions of Uncle Sam's dollars for the privilege of marrying the lovely, innocent little Consuelo Vanderbilt, came a cropper, and did not accomplish brilliancy in British politics.

The first distinct rift, it seems, in the lute of love between the Duchess and her lord the Duke came when he furiously forbade the open sale of her pictures to the public. Now, as all English women of title indulge in this practice except the Duchess of Portland and that was due alone to the questionable title held by the Duke of Portland, who forbade her pictures to be sold in order not to attract attention to the famous lawsuit—this seems an unreasonable bit of oddity on the part of the Duke of Marlborough.

Marlborough got extremely bitter about the sale particularly of one of her portraits. It was that very charming dry-point etching of her by Helleu, by the way, which especially irritated him.

Why, no one knows except those who know him.

THE RUMPUS OVER HELLEU'S PORTRAIT.

"I don't wish her face flaunted in the eyes of every Tom, Dick and Harry. I forbid it."

"But," gasped the shop dealer, with quite some amaze and much daring in a London shop dealer, "you really can't do that, Your Grace, M. Helleu holds the copyright. And, furthermore, dozens of the Duchess's portraits have been sold and scattered all over the world."

The Duke stamped his foot.

"No, no, not so. I will prevent Helleu permitting any more of the Duchess's portraits getting out.

"I paid for the original, and nobody—neither he nor anybody else—had a right to barter and sell this private portrait."

"I didn't understand it that way. Her Grace made it quite plain, I think, that her father, Mr. Vanderbilt, paid for it, and that it was done to please her, himself, and perhaps you.

"Would it not be wiser to see Messrs. Vanderbilt and Helleu? I can't really quite see as yet any objection to the sale of the etching going on and that I have no right to further profit from the sale."

The Duke went out early and discomfited.

One of the biggest tomfooleries of the ambitiously silly young Duke was the purchase of the land in Curzon street, when he paid Lord Howe nearly three times what the site was worth. Was he emulating the Count Castellane, the husband of Anna Gould, Jay Gould's daughter, whom he despises with the English contempt of the French. He engineered the whole business himself and kept all the world guessing what was doing behind the mysterious hoardings. When the paling was removed London's polite society kept politely snickering, and the lower half plainly jeered.

"It was the 'sight' of London," says a commentator, "and the longer the British gazed at the great pile the more they were amused until 'Blunderland House,' as it is now called, rivalled 'Punch' as a laugh provoker in the English mind. 'So like the Duke!' they said."

HOW HE MADE HER LOOK FOOLISH IN THE EYES OF THE WORLD.

Then imagine the mortification of the Duchess after all the plans had been laid to set London agog, when Mr. Vanderbilt married, the funds from home were suddenly cut off and work lagged and almost stopped. So, in this immediate extremity, they gave a great reception for charity in the Curzon street house. The Duke was absent, but no one else in all London's smart set. They wanted to see the inside of the circus, and they got their money's worth.

Not a room was finished; even the Duchess's own boudoir was almost bare of furnishings, and but half completed. Great spaces yawned in the walls where priceless Boucher tapestries were to have hung and carpetless floors echoed to the tramping feet.

London snickered again at the Duke, rather admired Mr. Vanderbilt for the way he had fooled this whipper-snapper of a ninth Duke of Marlborough, abandoning his wife.

If Sir Philip does not obey the mandate of the Court he will be adjudged guilty of contempt and can be subjected to imprisonment for an indefinite period or until he purges himself of the contempt.

Lady Grey Egerton is only one of that large army of lovely American girls who have captured English hearts with coronets and then had her heart broken.

Lady Grey Egerton is noted for her wit. Once at a family union there was considerable solemnity, which was finally broken by her remarking: "Instead of being called the Grey Egertons we should have been called the Blue Egertons." They are all "Blue Egertons" just now.

In betwixt and between there is a peck of trouble in the present house of the Duke of Manchester. Some say that Papa Zimmerman, in order to satisfy every whim of his only daughter, was willing to go to the whole length of the rope until he struck a knot in it—and then the stern orders came, "Be careful, my children."

It was this sagacious American who, counting up the cost of what it meant to have King Edward with his Queen and all his multitudinous retinue to bestow upon her the so-called honor which so many lovely American girls covet and so many of their fond parents despise—that is, the King's descending on a house that he is pleased to glorify by his presence that Mr. Eugene Zimmerman, of Cincinnati, got cautious.

"Let them play at it a little while. We'll find out if there's any stuff in the fellow."

There's plenty of it in Mr. Zimmerman, that's sure. A careful, painstaking expert decided that it must have cost Mr. Zimmerman $150,000 just to entertain the King and his Queen for ninety-six hours.

After that he (Mr. Zimmerman) cried "Halt!"

In the case of the young Duke and his Duchess of Manchester disaster has fallen fast and fallen faster after each disaster. The financial affairs of the Duke and his Duchess must have been of most immediate import when they fled, for instance, to America last November. Only the week before the Duke, it was published, consented to judgment being entered against him for $10,000 in the suit of Wilton & Co., a money-lending firm in the West End of London, where he was not even represented by counsel.

Judgments began piling up against the ducal house of Manchester as quick as leaves pile up in historic Vallombrosa.

"Who is going to pay for all this?" asked the English and Irish most concerned in it all.

MANCHESTERS IN ANOTHER HOW-DE-DO.

"Will it be Mr. Zimmerman, of America, or the Dowager Duchess or the Duchess of Devonshire?"

The Duke's grandmother refused stoutly to open her purse. She loves to hang on to money. She picks a penny out of her pocketbook as one would pick a bit of bone out of a mouthful of shad.

The Duke's mother, who, by the way, was Consuelo Yznaga, and for whom the Duchess of Marlborough was named, evidently hasn't loosed the latch strings of her wallet since she inherited the million-odd dollars made by her brother Fernando in Wall Street—and there you are.

After the money-lenders had won their suit for $10,000 more trouble heaped themselves on the heads of the young couple.

"My, my," said people in conjecture, "where is it all going to end?"

"In an American boarding house," interpolated a cosmopolite, who was accustomed after Kimbolton Castle was leased.

During the same week, in the Court of King's Bench, in Dublin, the Duchess was sued personally by three tradespeople who had executed repairs at Kylemore Castle to her order, amounting in the aggregate to about $1,500.

They applied to the court for leave to substitute service of the writs on the Duchess's Irish agent at Tanderagee Castle. She had left Great Britain and was not likely to return for several months. The court granted the permission requested. So these creditors proceeded at once to recover their money.

The purchasing of Kylemore Castle for $200,000 got people somehow into believing that Eugene Zimmerman, the Duchess's father, made a most munificent settlement on his daughter, and that he was to keep the couple in splendid grandeur just like as if it were a fairy tale.

So here's the last cry in the matter. It was announced on February 18 that the Duke of Manchester had sold his magnificent Irish estate, known as Tanderagee, in County Antrim. The sale was consummated the day before and netted $1,000,000, the tenants being the purchasers.

We may wonder if Mr. Zimmerman was really delighted to see him. Anyway, a very nice little fishing excursion to Florida was got up. Most likely it was cheaper to go visiting and boarding around, and certainly must be more convenient than keeping three castles in Great Britain going at the same time.

How A Love Romance Led To The Greatest of Religious Revivals

While Conducting Revival Meetings in Birmingham, England, Last Spring, Mr. George Alexander, the Singing Partner of Dr. Torrey, Met, Loved and Married Rich Miss Helen Cadbury--- And Then Began Their Real Labors Which Have Caused the Religious Awakening of All Great Britain.

London, March 10.

W[illegible] this great [illegible] serves as the background [illegible] romance now in the [illegible]

It is [illegible] the romance in no way [illegible] face of the American [illegible] form [illegible] the [illegible] there with [illegible] simple [illegible]. Perhaps [illegible] he loved [illegible] in Birmingham [illegible] face to him from among the throng that Mr. George Alexander's voice is more thrilling than ever as he sings [illegible]

This [illegible]

Since this romance began a wave of religious enthusiasm [illegible] and by the simple [illegible] of Dr. Torrey has swept [illegible] end to end and brought to the [illegible] barrooms of a dozen [illegible]. It has also [illegible] Evan Roberts [illegible] awakened [illegible] countersides aflame. The [illegible] of this were prepared the London [illegible] for the coming of the evangelists, and now the influence of several aristocratic women has sent it beating against the worldly barriers of West End [illegible].

Won by a Silvery Voice.

Lord Kinnaird, the Earl of Portsmouth, Mrs. Wells [illegible] and Miss Grace Morley, sister of John Morley, M. P., are among the great folk of England who are helping the American revivalists to convert [illegible]. Pretty they have been won by the silvery voice of George Alexander [illegible] rich Miss Cadbury of Birmingham was [illegible].

The revivalists had come to England from Australia, having made an evangelical tour of the world. Before this, in Chicago, where he was superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, the Rev. Dr. R. A. Torrey had been [illegible] as the great revivalist's partner [illegible]. Mr. Alexander was declared [illegible] possess all the qualities of the singing evangelist which distinguished the [illegible].

[illegible] England from Australia Mr. Alexander was sent through the English [illegible] among [illegible] Dr. Torrey did [illegible]. He was [illegible] singer and [illegible] and while he was [illegible] Birmingham in that dual capacity Miss [illegible] first saw him and [illegible] American with the [illegible] face [illegible] and the [illegible].

[illegible] Birmingham [illegible] industry Great Britain [illegible] Miss [illegible] was a [illegible] in Birmingham [illegible] spirit of the [illegible] more than [illegible] Brothers' [illegible] of men as well as [illegible].

Mr. Alexander [illegible] as far as the Cadbury employees were concerned [illegible] did not require [illegible] services. When he visited [illegible] he found there a large hall with [illegible] and a pipe organ where services were regularly held as the beginning of each day's labor. In another part of the grounds was a gymnasium [illegible].

Well Named "Cadbury Angels."

Then he understood [illegible] were called everywhere [illegible] Cadbury Angels." They [illegible] distinguished everywhere by their fine carriage as well as their [illegible] counted [illegible] angels [illegible] petation. These [illegible] owed in the beginning to the head of the firm, Richard Cadbury, a philanthropist as well as a [illegible].

The present [illegible] the firm, George Cadbury, is proprietor of the London News and spends much of his time in the [illegible].

[illegible] the 'Cadbury Angels' [illegible] Mr. Alexander.

[illegible] was the answer.

And one day in a room where several [illegible] were pasting labels on cans of cocoa Mr. Alexander came face to face with their benefactress—the girl with [illegible] in her own right and with [illegible] coming to her from her father's estate, who was devoting nearly all of [illegible] time to maintaining her father's benevolent reputation.

He saw by her manner among these girls that she was looking after their welfare, moral, mental and physical, and he saw that they fairly worshipped her. He saw also that she was herself chief among the "Cadbury Angels."

[illegible] and not falls she introduced herself to the young evangelist.

[illegible] Mr. Alexander, I heard you at the revival meeting last night and enjoyed your [illegible] so much. I am Miss Cadbury."

Could Learn from Miss Cadbury.

"Miss Cadbury," he said earnestly, "you are a better evangelist than I am. There is no work for me among your people—except to learn from them and from you."

Miss Cadbury laughed. He saw that she [illegible] and spontaneously like all [illegible] Angels."

"If we can teach you anything," she said with the very least emphasis on the pronoun, "you must come often. You may depend upon our attendance at all of your meetings."

Miss Cadbury proved as good as her word. At the head of a bevy of the "Cadbury Angels" she attended all the Birmingham revival meetings. Often he visited the [illegible], and soon was a visitor at the Cadbury home. It was still a matter of evangelical work, but now the chief evangelist was Cupid.

Probably never did the courting of a great heiress by a comparatively poor young man proceed more smoothly and [illegible]. It was a clear case of true love on both sides. The Cadbury family seem to have approved of the match from the start. They are Quakers, having no [illegible] no one nor great social ambitions. The American evangelist was good enough for the English heiress, and so without [illegible] delay there was a quiet Quaker wedding, and the happy couple sailed for America for the first part of their honeymoon.

Their return with Dr. Torrey seemed to be the signal for the real religious awakening of England. Miss Cadbury had not only married the singer of the evangelical partners, but had thrown her enthusiasm and much of her wealth into the cause. She accompanied her husband to Wales, and soon London was hearing news of wonderful accomplishments there, the results of real, old-fashioned revivals.

The Bride Evangelist.

Now they are in London filling Albert Hall nightly with crowds [illegible] to the [illegible] the preaching. The [illegible] ladies who are active patronesses of the revival [illegible] the bride of the young [illegible] one of themselves [illegible] simplicity of [illegible] she is a great English [illegible] of the proprietor of [illegible] London daily news[illegible].

[illegible] revival in England has [illegible] West End [illegible] Albert Hall revival meetings [illegible].

It is practically as though the Earl of [illegible] of John Morley [illegible] the sum [illegible]. It is really an extraordinary position for [illegible] the [illegible] rows of revival [illegible].

And neither Dr. Torrey nor Mr. Alexander spares the feelings of the over-sensitive individuals in their great audiences. The sermons and the songs, many of them, are leveled straight at their particular vices. Dr. Torrey [illegible] severely against bridge, which is [illegible] the favorite dissipation of the smart set. Of the vices that dwell in Mayfair he thunders:

"Then you have your 'bridge dives,' accompanied by what is called 'the bridge look' and 'the bridge nervous look.' I don't think the case against cards is as clear as that against dancing, but cards have transformed family drawing rooms into gambling hells where innocent girls have been introduced to disgrace."

Strengthened by Adverse Criticism.

While Dr. Torrey thus denounces high [illegible] Lord Kinnaird sits on the platform as presiding officer of the meeting.

But [illegible] the whole of London society be [illegible] to these [illegible]. Several London ministers have preached and sent letters to the newspapers [illegible] against the attacks of the American evangelists and intimating that their revival is not what it [illegible] to be. The Rev. Dr. Price said:

"There is an Almighty revival which is of [illegible], another, a sham revival, a mockery, a blasphemous travesty of the real thing."

The Rev. Forbes Phillips, whose play, "Church and Stage," was recently produced by Mrs. Brown Potter, declares:

"All men of clean and healthy mind must be indignant at the [illegible] utterances of Mr. Torrey on the ballroom and the stage. Just as there are loose places of worship, so there are loosely managed theatres; but a [illegible] to the [illegible] about the latter soon [illegible] things right. Not so loose chapels. I am no dancer, but I like to see people dance, and I encourage it in my parish as a healthy form of amusement. Only a [illegible] mind and a jaundiced life could imagine such things, and I should hope all sweet [illegible] women will hesitate before allowing their daughters to attend the ministrations of Mr. Torrey."

The fact that Dr. Torrey is a thoroughly educated and cultivated man, a doctor of divinity and a recognized authority on theology, causes most of the orthodox clergy of England to give him at least the respect of their silence. The Free [illegible] Council, too, under whose auspices the revival is conducted, is composed of [illegible] and others whose names have great influence.

But when it comes to Evan Roberts, the [illegible] Welsh man, the criticism of the clergy is more emphatic. Several have declared his [illegible].

Nevertheless, the great revival goes on triumphantly. The [illegible] of the audiences are people of the [illegible] classes, and they regard these attacks by [illegible] pastors of the rich as so much proof that the American evangelists are [illegible] servants [illegible].

[illegible] London [illegible] to the [illegible] spirit, [illegible] influence gained [illegible] Miss [illegible] of Birmingham [illegible] fortune [illegible].

[illegible] religious awakening [illegible] and [illegible].

George Alexander, the singing Evangelist, and his wife, who was Miss Helen Cadbury, the Birmingham heiress.

"Perhaps, indeed, it is because the woman he loved and won in Birmingham lifts her face to him from among the throng that Mr. George Alexander's voice is more thrilling than ever."

THE SMART BRIDE of SPRING

BY

MRS. OSBORN

CREATOR OF FASHIONS FOR THE FASHIONABLE WOMEN OF AMERICA

C—Smart Going Away Gown of Punjab Check Silk, Ring Dotted.

The smart bride harks back to the dignity of satin duchesse. Princess effects and elbow sleeves the rule in new bridal gowns. Folds taking the place of flounces in trimming the bride's gown. Chiffon popular for brides-maids' dresses. Taffeta a new material for the going away gown.

A.—Bridal Gown of Duchesse Satin, Made Princess Style.

THERE was a tendency last Summer here lace or even a scroll pattern worked little frilled sleeve, with a double ring curto make bridal gowns of tin im ted in bands of silk peating or shirred ing up on the outer side. A lace ruffle has the charm of novelty, also, to some embroidered materials. In the Spring chiffon can be employed for trimming if longs to the elbow over a small lace cuff, no fit. richly embroidered suits were exploited in any case a bride's train is and in the Autumn embroidered crepe de long and the hem of the gown must be cared downward over the front and the ebines had a vogue, together with the graceful. a-la, clinging embroidered stuffs.

All this has been changed with the sweep ress of Fashion's wand. The bride has returned to the dignity of satin, a material which was never lost its place as a smart bridal for wedd ng gowns.

Satin duchesse is pre-eminently the material of which the best wedding gowns will be made this Spring. It is lustrous and has enough "body" to it to cause a train to set out well, while it is not enough to enable the modiste to arrange the most charmingly graceful draperies. Dead white is rarely chosen in a wedding gown, for the reason that it is rarely becoming. A tint of ivory, just off the white, called "ecrue," is the favorite shade for a bride, but a woman verging on to ripe years would probably look better in a gown on the cream tint.

There is something stately as well as graceful about the princess gown for a bride, and this style of cut has grown more and more in popularity, until it is quite the smartest thing for a bride this season. The under slip of the bridal gown fits to the figure and terminates in bolero ruffles of chiffon and lace. These hold out the bottom of the satin train, which is adorned with two groups of three folds each around the bottom. Figure A illustrates this style of gown.

Fashion does not make it imperative that the bottom of a wedding gown should be trimmed in this manner; it is simply the newest form of trimming. A flounce of the same shall be as simple a fig- ure as pon the gure of the bride. A princess gown looks best with a simple bodice, but this must be trimmed to make the wearer appear to her best advantage. Only a good figure can stand great simplicity.

Figure B shows a very dainty gown for a bridesmaid. It is smartest in pink or white and pretriest in chiffon.

This gown is of white chiffon with a full baby waist gathered to an inch wide band of shirring around the decolletage. A second band goes around the lace yoke, parallel with that which ruffles the decolletage.

The Smartest Color Schemes for Our Smartest Bridal Frocks.

A bride receives a great number of callers, and it is therefore important that her reception gown should be smart in make and color.

Light colors are in vogue for house dresses and white is worn a good deal. One can have either plain or figured material, and there is no set rule for smart colors in a dress, except that very light tints are not fashionable then any other sort.

Pink for going away gowns is an unborn color. This is still at the back, bordered with a fold of the material and edged with braid. A smaller cuff below that is worn as a wrist gown does, and wrist dust of travel as a wrist gown does, and wrist ban ds. The sleeves, while the neck

With this costume it was quite the vest and an artful thing that a white stock and pair of tiny ruffles of lace, and the dainty open mousseline, chiffon, fine lace or English embroideries which are so in the line. Fine cotton laces will also be quite effective, pretty for a wash gown.

The hat of the gathering was of white as such as is fashionable. Plain lawn also will match it in color and texture and the best weaves of linen, according to the nature of the garments flowers in brown. White hats are never becoming. Simple trimmings are the best. Hats sell quickly and are in for the getaway hat.

The going away gown does not need one of these in skirt ruffles of as a street gown for the bride and bridal dinner and evening gowns also. The street white and cream colored get in as great a variety as her purse will permit.

The wedding gown, with some alterations, will make a smart dinner and evening gown. This gown will be made with a full underskirt. The bottom will have to be shortened, thus a full underskirt. The bottom of satin, with a deep quilling of lace ton of the skirt and a fold is put on below the ruffles, becoming wider in the back.

A relative of sliked folds is worn, fashioned in the back with rosettes, and the neck of the bodice is cut round, with a shirred band upon the lace yoke, paralleled with that which ruffles the decolletage.

The Smartest Building of One of This Season's Gowns.

Whether the bodices of all wedding gowns shall be as simple a figure as the bride's best advantage. Only a good figure can stand great simplicity.

Some "Don'ts" for Afternoon Callers.

AN afternoon call must be a short and not a hurried one.

Don't enter the house saying that you have not a moment, and don't leave declaring that you must hurry on to another friend, or you give an idea that your visit has been paid grudgingly.

Don't monopolize the conversation. Your hostess likes to retail her own news, to air her own grievances, to discuss mutual friends from her own point of view. You may be the most amusing person present, but your very brilliancy gives others the desire to shine also, and courtesy demands that you should give them their opportunity.

Above all, don't talk of yourself. It is a letter of the alphabet to be omitted as much as possible. Who does not know the Let this Machine do your Washing Free.

There are three parts to the tub. These springs do nearly all the hard work when you are washing and are the washing machine part of the tub. There are slats on the bottom portion of the tub. These slats act as paddles, to swing the water in the same direction as you turn the handle.

You throw the soiled clothes into the tub first. Then you throw enough water over the clothes to float them.

Next you put the heavy wooden cover on top of the clothes to anchor them, and to press them down.

This cover has slats on its lower side to grip the clothes and hold them from turning around when the tub turns.

Now, we are all ready for quick and easy washing. You grasp the handle on the side of the tub and, with it, you revolve the tub one-third way round, till it strikes a corner spring.

This momentum throws the tub back till it strikes the other corner spring. Back and forth in this way the tub goes, like a pendulum. Every time it swings back on the first corner spring.

The machine moves just a little bit away from you, and every swing, and then the springs, and the ball-bearings do their work with a fine, hard swish.

You cannot do a washing easier and do all that the washer machine does. A child can run it easily full of clothes.

When you revolve the tub the clothes don't move. But the water moves like a stiff rain through the clothes.

The paddles on the tub bottom drive the soapy water THICK through the clothes at every swing of the tub. Back and forth, in and out of every fold and through every mesh in the cloth, the hot soapy water runs, like a torrent. This is how it carries away all the dirt from the clothes, in from 6 to 10 minutes for the cloth.

It forces the dirt out through the meshes of the fabric WITHOUT ANY RUBBING—without any WEAR and TEAR on the washboard.

It will wash a Sheet as fine without treating a thread, or a button, as it will wash a heavy, dirty carpet with equal ease and rapidity. Fifteen to twenty garments, or five large bed sheets, can be washed at one time with the "1900" Washer.

A child could do this in even more minutes better than any able washer woman could do the same clothes in TWICE the time, with three times the wear and tear from the washboard.

This is what we SAY now how do we PROVE it? We send you our "1900" Washer free of charge, on a full month's trial, and we even pay the freight out of our own pockets.

No cash deposit is asked, no notes, no contract, no security.

You may use the washer four weeks at our expense. If you find it won't wash as many clothes in half the hours as you can wash by hand in EIGHT hours you send it back to the railway station,—that's all.

But, if, from a month's actual use, you are convinced it saves HALF the time in washing, does the work better, as labor it takes as easy as could be done by hand, you keep the machine.

Then you mail us $1 cents a week till it is paid for. Remember that 50 cents is part of what the machine saves you every week on your own, or on a "man-servant's" labor. We intend that the "1900" Washer shall pay for itself and the cost you nothing.

You don't risk a cent from us first to last, and you don't pay it until you have had a full month's trial. Could we afford to pay freight on thousands of these machines every month, if we did not positively KNOW they would do all we claim for them? Can you afford to be without a machine that will do your washing in HALF THE TIME, or with half the wear and tear of the wash board, when you can have the machine for a month's free trial, and let it PAY FOR ITSELF? This offer may be withdrawn at any time it overcrowds our factory.

Write us TODAY, while the offer is still open, and while you think of it. The postage stamp is all you risk. Write me personally on the offer, viz.: R. F. Johns, General Manager of "1900" Washer Company, 355 North Henry st., Binghamton, New York, or 355 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada.

How to Give an "April First" Dinner.

A Smart, Humorous Little Affair Described by Mrs. Linda Hull Larned, Author of "The Hostess of To-day."

A HIGH-HEARTED, happy young matron writes that she would like some suggestions for an "April First" frolic for a party of six. It would be a Saturday night supper, as the first of April comes on Saturday this year.

Those who are able and willing may spend a tidy sum of money to make this function a success, for there are plenty of good materials of foods and to his accessories to be found in the shops. We do not in these days of magnificence indulge in sawdust cakes, cotton dough nuts, chewing-gum covered onions and red pepper candies of our childhood remembrances. These simplicities have gone out of style, nothing being too well known to fool any but babies or simpletons.

We may not accomplish the undertaking with great eclat, for a visit or two to the shops of our great cities brought forth the following attractive, even though expensive scheme.

Beginning with the invitation, it should state that "An April Fool"—our hostess's birthday being the first day of April—requests the pleasure of your company on Saturday, April 1, at 7 p. m., and the house address to be in the upper right hand corner of note and in the lower left hand corner the date.

When guests are all assembled in the dining room they find their places by floats a small clam or two. This is a perfectly harmless medicine, made weak with water, and it will hurt no one even if a big spoonful is swallowed.

This Dinner Is Not So Foolish as It May Seem.

In fact, it is a soothing preparation for an irritated stomach and not a bad thing for the normal one when "big eating" is the order of the day. After this there should be cups of real clam bouillon served with sawdine crackers. The second course is served on separate plates—Russian style. A brook trout and a boiled potato—both good imitations in papier mache—and cucumber wheels, also imitation. Of course, the real fish and potato should be forthcoming when this course is removed. Then plates of ham and eggs, for real ham and eggs are a suitable supper dish. In the meantime our guests should find delicious looking dinner rolls—these come in sticks and crescent shape. Instead of the mouthful of crispy bread, the first normal taken will reveal a paper wad which, when unwound will furnish a paper cap or bonnet to be donned as headgear for the remainder of the feast. Guests will be so delighted, little boxes at each plate. These are cakes bearing the title on cover: "Sweet and Keep Out," to be filled with bonbons and nuts. These the hostess will open and from three to time during the feast. The favors are chocolates and the salted almonds, in the interior of which are tiny rings, pearl dills, gilt hearts, pipes, wrist watches, fourleaved clovers and trifles.

Keeping One's Guests on the Qui Vive of Expectancy.

In order to fill to the brim some of the [illegible] to be our guests. Some chocolate and coffee should be served with this, and [illegible] gift and notices.

Dancing Plates to Astonish the Guests.

Some member of the party This is a tiny rubber bulb, at the end of a small hollow tube, at the other end of which is a small ball. This is all concealed under the table pad, and the hostess squeezes the bell, which fills the bulb at the other end and tips the plate just enough to disturb the equilibrium of the guest seated before it.

After this fruit and nuts will be served. This fruit, consisting of pickled pears, grapes, oranges and even bananas, so natural as life, in boxes for bonbons or containing cups and glasses. There are even cherries, in which are all mental resolves, and the English walnuts will be brought in—one for each guest. These are made of rubber, looking very realistic to be filled with choice perfume which when squeezed will send a delicious vapor, with which to sweeten the pathway of the departing guest.

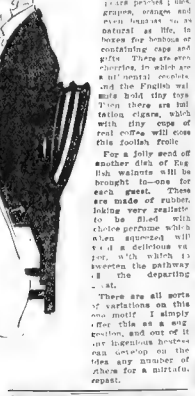
There are all sorts of variations on this one motif I simply offer this as a suggestion, and one of the hilarious hostesses can go on the ideas any number of times for a mirthful repast.

The First Bite of Bread Reveals a Paper Cap.

Polichinelle and Columbine cards These are white cards with a large cut-out projecting clown for the men and circus dancers jumping through hoops for the ladies. The table will be decorated with paper flowers—orchids are especially beautiful, and bouquets are funny for no real flowers should be used for this day. Each guest should be corsage bouquets at bouton-nieres if one wishes one may bring to the feast by cherry cocktails in glasses. This will be a real mixture of liquors—the most deadly of known concoctions—made especially weak for this occasion. All of the contents of the host's glass will be stirred with goodness that it can neither be drunk nor eaten, but the host will carelessly spill a drop of it in drinking to the health and pleasure of his guests. After frantic but futile efforts to secure the cherry at the bottom of the glass, the real cocktails will come in.

A Polite Little Bit of Tom-Foolery.

To really begin the supper we will have cups of cream of celery. This will be like the pink tea of our grandmothers, made from "milk of magnesia," to which



After the Imitation Cocktails Comes the Imitation Bird.

To return to our menu, we will now have a vol au vent—an imitation one to be sure—followed by the real one, filled with sweetbreads and mushrooms. A chafing dish course might be introduced here instead of the imitation or real patty. For this purpose we will have Welsh rabbits in individual dishes. Upon removing the covers fluffy little cotton rabbits pop out.

The piece de resistance at this time of year should be a bird or a chicken, so we shall serve for each guest a beautifully-roasted squab, with a real salad of grape fruit and romaine. The imitation bird may then be replaced by the real thing or the breast of a broiled chicken.

A Little Bit of Fun with the Cheese.

After this some asparagus or tomatoes with Edam or Camembert cheese—all excellent imitations, or a vegetable course of carrots in cream sauce. There are all radishes, pretzels and olives these days for foods. And the butter also masquerades—a natural as life in a large square block in ice cut from as needed. These are pretty little boxes to be filled with ice cream or candy. The desserts come next, so a block of Neapolitan ice cream is placed each cover. These are perfect in their chocolate, vanilla and strawberry coloring as I side are boxes filled with real candy. The real ices should be three eggs in a nest of cotton. Guests will fight shy first of the cotton, but finally eat it with great gusto, and by so doing reveal that it is really delectable. It is cocoanut candy, now spun from a large kettle in the confectionery departments of many of our stores. Some chocolate and coffee should be served with this, and [illegible] gift and notices.

Some Queer Home-Made Beverages Used in Other Countries.

OF all the concoctions invented for the quenching of thirst that made of sawdust sounds the oddest. Two tons of sawdust are boiled with sulphuric acid for three hours, the resulting matter then extracted by pressure, neutralized, left for eighteen hours to cool and settle, and then fermented for five days.

The result is said to be afterwards distilled and purified, but a pint of about nine grains and a half of spirit to every hundredweight of sawdust is obtained. Quantities of this are consumed in France.

Among African tribes exists an equally intoxicants, though they make use of neither grape juice nor malt extract. Palm wine is made from the sap oozing from the cut of branch stems of the oil palm tree, and of this a favorite, refreshing beverage, and mild sort of intoxicant, known as Mobiti, the banana wine of the Uganda natives, is made in a curious manner.

When boo is made in the ground lined with banana leaves, filled with unripe bananas and kept covered by mats and earth, the fruit has become completely ripe.

Then the bananas are skinned, mixed with water, and pressed in a large, boat-like wooden trough, having an emptying pipe at the end.

Water is added and the whole thoroughly mixed, with stout wooden sticks after passing the trough is covered with banana leaves, and the mixture left standing for a couple of hours.

It is then ready for use, and represents a sweet, agreeable, and not intoxicating beverage. If left for three days, however, the beverage becomes vinegar, having undergone fermentation.

In Madagascar is the weird name given to a deadly intoxicating drink made from ginger by the natives of Natal. An analysis of this drink made some time ago by an eminent doctor showed that it was fifty per cent stronger than any known alcohol.

Devastate drinking is the name given in Ireland to the habit of drinking methylated spirit.

In Bethnal Green, Bacon ditch, and other parts of East End London, in County Derry, and in Edinburgh, and Glasgow, such drinking is declared on the increase.

One of the queerest of these thirst quenchers is that known as "fuss fungle." It is peculiar to the Hosiery or slum district of Mckeesport, Pennsylvania, and a regular's worth, properly distributed, is sufficient to keep the patron busy for several days. It is a tiny rubber bulb, at the end of a small hollow tube, at the other end of which is a small ball. This is all concealed under the table pad, and the hostess squeezes the bell, which fills the bulb at the other end and tips the plate just enough to disturb the equilibrium of the guest seated before it.

Even to day their fame is not dead, and they are frequently resorted to by housewives in hot weather, and when any small ailment shows itself in their families.

A tea made from sage was the favorite concoction of John Wesley, while a ginger tea was quite a weakness with Coleridge, the poet.

Leaves plucked from strawberry plants and currant bushes make a fragrant beverage, as do rowort and thoroughwort, the latter, both a preventive and a curative, being found in very many households.

Liberty tea made from loosestrife, and hyperion tea from raspberry leaves are other prime favorites.

Who has not tasted the delicious mead and sighed for more? This luscious beverage is made from honey, and formerly fermented more frequently by cottagers from the liquid honey which remains in the comb after the usual processes of draining and squeezing, is one of the finest of thirst quenchers.

New Interpretation of the "Cubit."

GOLIATH, the giant whom David slew, of the great bed of Og, Solomon's Temple, the Ark and all other Biblical things measured by the mysterious "cubit," have been reduced from the vast dimensions with which they were once credited.

The reason is the new interpretation of the word "cubit" lately made by the Rev. Mr. Shaw Caldecott, a well known English Biblical learner.

The scope of his discoveries is explained in his new book, "The Tabernacle: Its History and Structure," published by the Religious Tract Society.

From the evidence of the Bible itself and from scholarly deductions from the Rabbis of Senkereh tablet, he believes he has proved the former existence of three separate "cubits." This would account for the perplexing inconsistency of measurements and disproportion of things in the Bible.

A thousand years before the birth of Abraham there three "cubits" or "reeds" were in use, according to Mr. Caldecott.

One "cubit" was only nine tenths of a foot long. This was used exclusively for measuring gold and gold cloth, something as our troy weight is used.

The second "cubit" was one and one-fifth feet. It was used only for building and for the measurements of objects and persons. This was the "cubit" most frequently spoken of.

The third which represented eighteen inches. This "cubit" was used only for measuring areas.

Judge the world's "cubit" the mighty Goliath accredited with twelve to twenty three feet in height, would dwindle to less than eight feet. At the highest drawing the modern Chinese giant, would look over the top of his head by. After all, perhaps Goliath merely lifted a tall man.

The great bed of Og dwindles to something just more than ordinary. And Solomon's great temple would be a paltry 144 feet.

But, worst of all to the inquiring mind is the effort on the dimensions of the Ark from the old more generous cubit expand to make the sacrosanct box method North's only chance.

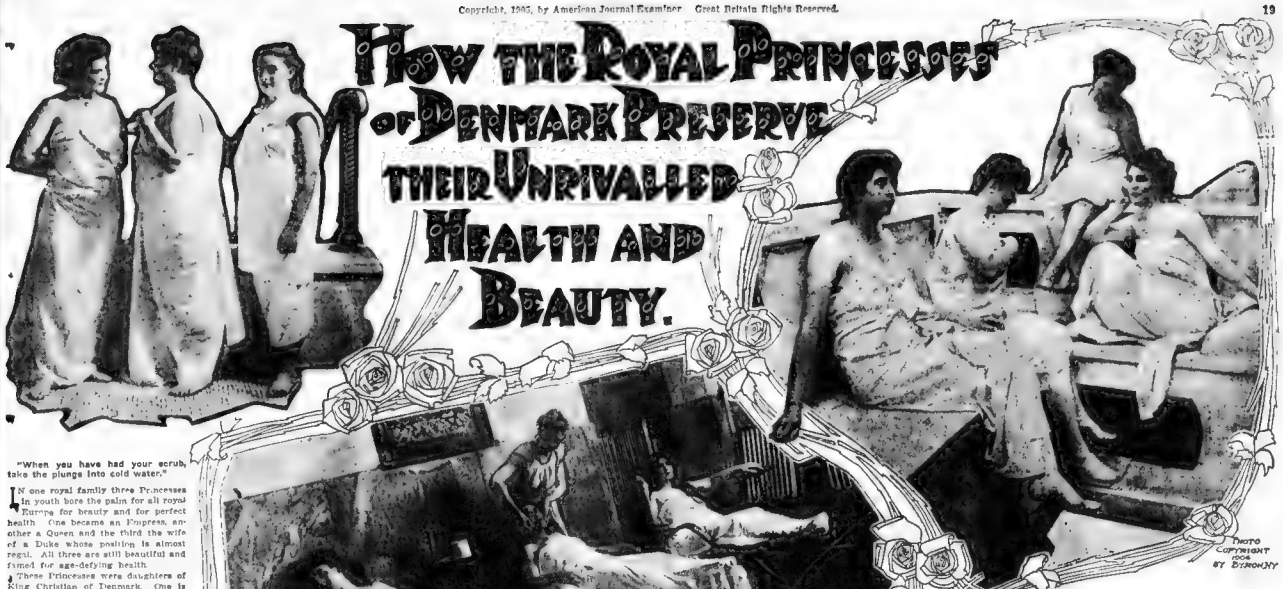
How the Royal Princesses of Denmark Preserve Their Unrivalled Health and Beauty.



"When you have had your scrub, take the plunge into cold water."

IN one royal family three Princesses in youth bore the palm for all royal Europe for beauty and for perfect health. One became an Empress, another a Queen and the third the wife of a Duke whose position is almost regal. All three are still beautiful and famed for age-defying health.

These Princesses were daughters of King Christian of Denmark. One is the Dowager Empress of Russia and mother of the present Czar; another is Queen Alexandra of England, and the third is the Duchess of Cumberland.

What is the secret of their constant health and of their beauty retained unimpaired for years past middle age? They were taught when young Princesses to practice daily the common and simple rules of health—proper diet, proper exercise, proper bathing—which insure also beauty.

The detail of how these Princesses muddy? Or is it mottled? In either case your beauty is diminished as greatly as 50 per cent. In other words, your beauty is half gone. It is a serious situation.

If your complexion is not clear get to the greatest medicine in the world. It is because of indigestion. You bring on indigestion, of course, by [illegible] you never have had dyspepsia. You have no trouble with your stomach. Perhaps but there are various forms of indigestion, some quite as serious as any dire disease, the stomach, and some one of these is [illegible]

Flood that distressed stomach with hot water. It will relieve the head at once. For years and you spend $10,000,000 for patent medicines, you get not half the greatest medicine in the world. It is because of indigestion. You bring on indigestion, of course, by [illegible] you never have had dyspepsia. You have no trouble with your stomach. Perhaps but there are various forms of indigestion, some quite as serious as any disease, the stomach, and some one of these is [illegible]

Hot water and rest—that is all. Drink a pint of hot water and recline in the bath chair in the hot room, relax utterly. Unite the knots habit has tied in your tortured nerves. You have a faithful brought a friend with you in the bath? If you have, half the value of the bath is gone—stolen from you by yourself. You must not chat at the baths. As nearly as possible you must not even think. Close your eyes. Be perfectly quiet. Get as nearly as you can into the state of semi-stupor that comes just before going to sleep. I beg you not to read. Do nothing. Help the body to be may have, what I prefer, the Charcot shower, which is a slow graduation of the temperature from warm to cold, less violent than the method of the Scots. Again, if you wish, you may go into the steam room. Old bathers sometimes visit the steam room a half dozen times, having found that the oxidization from hot to cold beneficial.

Here again you must be your own physician. Do what you have found is best for you. Let experience teach you and remember moderation in all things.

When you have finished the cleansing part of the bath, and have been thoroughly dried, you are ready for the repose, long or short, according to your needs, and you may take, if you wish it, your electrical bath.

The electrical bath is both a stimulating and sedative tonic. It strengthens while it soothes. For men patients, I place the negative pole at the small of the back and stand upon the iron platform which forms the positive pole. Thus while I globule of steam being saturated with extract of pine.

Throughout the bath drink hot water as freely as possible. If that is nauseating try cool water, but be sure to merely sip it, for when cool water is introduced suddenly into the stomach it chills and defeats the functions of the gastric juices. At all times, madam, let me advise that you drink plenty of water.

When you go home massage the scalp lightly with oil, which will be needed after the shampoo.

"When you go home massage the scalp lightly with oil, which will be needed after the shampoo."

Remember, madam, that you must aid the good effects of the Turkish bath by remembering that there are three great factors of health. Most important is diet. Second in importance is exercise. Third is bathing. They are all essential, and to the consideration of all of them you must bring your keenest observation.

"She is dieting," we hear of a woman. We are to understand that she is eating only those things which are best adapted to her personal condition and only so much as is necessary. She should be the best judge of these. But let her watch her own habits of eating. Is she careful to chew her meat well? And this most important lesson she was taught when she was a little girl. Is she careful to see that the gastric juices in her stomach have their proper work upon them?

I believe that the reason that most women are unhealthy, that they are less healthy than men, is because they put into the stomach things that do not belong there. They eat candy and pastry in excess. They eat when and where and as much as they please. The chief troubles of women arise from an abused, cruelly maltreated stomach.

Sweet drinks that are popular in Summer cause more trouble among women than alcohol, although it is my observation that women are drinking more and more every year. It is the heavy syrups used in the soda fountain instantly in the stomach and deprive the gastric juices of the power to do their work. The gastric juices then become sulky, and when summoned to do their needful work refuse to obey, and women and the revenue of the patent medicine manufacturers.

Worry causes the gastric juices to become inactive. In time they are as useless as the muscles of an arm that has been bound in a sling for years. There are no more gastric juices.

Smoking, and smoking is becoming more and more prevalent among women, also acts deleteriously upon the stomach. It shrinks the gastric glands of the stomach, and again aid must be summoned for digestion. That is the reason that smoking in nearly all instances leads to drinking.

In conclusion dear madam, walk. Commence at once. In a large city it is the best exercise for women. I am not favorable to indoor gymnasiums, for they are almost always dirty and the dust is injurious. Commence walking to-day, no matter what the weather.

Stop before you are tired, if you have only walked ten blocks. If you increase the distance gradually in six weeks you will be able to walk ten miles without fatigue. But never walk so long that you are too tired to go about your pursuits the moment you return. The long rest after a walk aids flesh.

Keep constantly in mind that diet gives to the body such material as it needs for building, that exercise stirs it of effete matter and that bathing removes from the surface of the body such matter as has been cast off, and unless removed by a brush and bath may in large part be absorbed

[illegible] are almost no healthy women. [illegible] will say to me when I am asking for advice and treatment, 'I am a healthy woman, but'

And then follows an appalling list of maladies, both actual and imaginary.

I believe all realize that we are not as well as nature designed them to be, but women well informed as they may be concerning the universal organic disorders and personal hygiene as they [illegible] rather than know [illegible] much of the ways of health and are fold-ing [illegible] or they are absolutely careless about their physical organism and begin treatment after some serious disorder is well under way.

There is such a thing as personal hygiene which is to the body's condition, as [illegible] life itself. Every woman should study [illegible] and so find she finds are peculiarly adapted to her case.

[illegible] women [illegible] Either they think about their health all the time or they don't think of it at all. It is an old thing to direct constantly upon your symptoms and to become [illegible] them. Dedication should be the love of life in [illegible] things.

There should be moderation in the bath. While the bath is the greatest adjunct of all to matter how [illegible] woman may take too much or not take them so much as to get [illegible] they are a positive detriment.

No woman of luxurious life or sedentary habits needs baths more than the woman of active life, although it intelligently taken they are of utmost benefit to all.

For a general toning up of the system, the Turkish bath is enough. For rheumatism or other chronic disorders they may be taken as often as a complete physical prescription.

But women who go to Turkish baths do not know they make them "feel better." A few admit they go because they know that by taking them often and in the manner required for that purpose they will rid themselves of innumerable fresh Marie Take Pe-ru-na because they believe turn to be healthy, supple lady of the [illegible] and in this they are right.

The fundamental requirement of healthy [illegible] is a good complexion. Is-fact. Have you ever seen a woman who was beautiful without it? The gray, lifeless complexion is a veil obscuring the greatest beauty in the world. Is it not?

Does your complexion displease you, Madame?

Is it of that gray tinge we describe as [illegible] essentially the cause of that unlovely condition in all things should be the rule of life. There is a [illegible] of bathing that we owe [illegible] as well to eating.

What must be done for the marsh that is flooding the lowlands and filling the air with malarial germs? No waste matter must be drained and turned into proper channels for carrying it away.

So in your case the circulation must be stimulated, the congestion must be removed by diverting the blood into normal channels.

Your daughter complains of nervous headaches.

"Oh, no," she says, "my stomach is all right. More are nervous backaches."

Every backache is caused by the condition of the stomach. The nerves [illegible] sympathetic direct with the [illegible] head and when the head aches the stomach aches, too. Treat the stomach and you will cure the headache.

Now what must be done.

Stop [illegible] in the hot room until you have had enough. As in eating, your intelligence should guide you. Finally you should remain until you are in a profuse sweat.

We perspire whether we wish to or not. The waste matter is constantly being exuded by [illegible] action and heaven help us if it does not. If those pores become sealed we would die in twenty minutes. That involuntary action is perspiration. But without it there is no bath.

Having had what you call in this country "a real" take the plunge into cold water and then go to the steam room for the reaction. Over the steaming floor the [illegible] will [illegible] a delightful stimulus to the nerves. Or you massage him the electricity passes through my body into his, forming a complete circuit.

My wife gives the same form of treatment to female patients, but we find that while a man usually requires practically the same treatment for all parts of the body, the woman patient requires the most manipulation over the stomach, where centre the sympathetic nerves. By concentrating the treatment in that quarter, where there is nearly always congestion in a woman's body, nervous headaches and sluggish circulation, tired nerves and loss of beauty may all be relieved.

Vibromassage, a method of massage in which electrodes are applied to the body, is a new and accepted method. It is less thorough than the other method of electrical massage, because not so deep, but it is deeper than ordinary massage with the hands. Ordinarily the deeper the massage the bet

A New Spring Coat and a Child's Pretty Frock, Easy to Make at Home

AFTER a season of long and three quarter length coats, the short jacket has won its way back into favor and promises to be more popular this Spring than ever before. The design shown on this page is for a very pretty little coat which can be easily made at home with the aid of the Sunday American-Journal-Examiner pattern.

In addition to the coat design, a very charming frock for a little girl is shown on this page. The original model for the frock looked most attractive in golden brown cheviot opening on the side with the collar, cuffs, belt and side plait stitched in red or piped with a narrow gold braid.

To obtain either of these patterns fill in the proper blank for the pattern desired, giving the name, post office address and size of pattern desired, and mail with ten cents to "Coat and Frock Patterns," P. O. Box 260, New York City.

The pattern ordered, together with full instructions showing how the garment may be easily made at home, will be forwarded to you postpaid by return of mail.

Please note before ordering that the coat pattern, No. 152-2776, has been cut in the six following sizes, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The frock pattern, No. 153-2761, has been cut in five sizes, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Orders for patterns of any other sizes than those specified above cannot be filled.

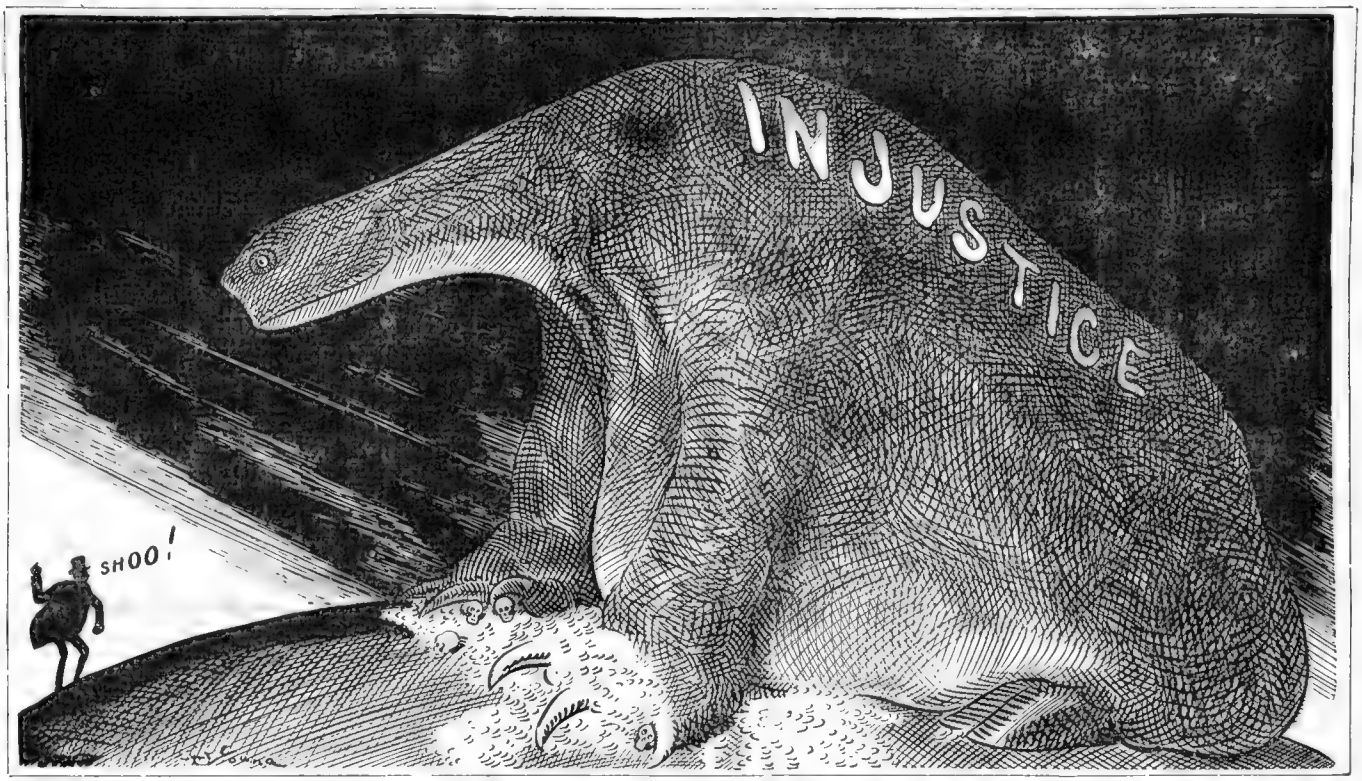
WE HAVE A NEW GOVERNMENT--HERE IT IS



Our Old System Still Exists on Paper, but the Real System of Government Is Shown Here, and It Cannot Be "Shooed" Away

THE doctors in a big hospital tell about a man—his trouble was alcoholism—who started to go home and landed in Hawaii. He didn't know how he got there, couldn't understand how he had made the trip.

Are you aware of the fact that the nation to which you belong has done something more extraordinary, harder to explain, than the feat of the alcoholic gentleman mentioned?

This country, a hundred and twenty-nine years ago, started out, as it supposed, to reach a certain point in government.

The nation was established by thoughtful people, intolerant of special privilege, determined that every man should have a chance.

These people decided to have a government of equality, one governed By The Will Of The Majority. They started their government out on a voyage to a state of ideal republican government, with equal opportunities for all and special privileges for none.

We started well, but we have landed in a strange port. If you look around you, and study the government under which you have the honor to live, you will find that this nation has zigzagged off very far from the originally planned itinerary.

For instance, how much have the PEOPLE of this country to say about their government?

We still have on paper our original plans for ruling the country and keeping all men equal, ALL OPPORTUNITIES OPEN.

Read Bryce's "American Commonwealth," and you will get a good idea of the kind of government that we wanted, AND THAT WE HAVEN'T GOT.

The THEORY was that the people were to elect officials—occasionally selecting very wise men to do the voting for them. For instance, wise men sent to the legislatures were to choose the Senators.

What has happened is this: Political tricksters -a vast majority of them absolutely corrupt -are sent to the legislatures. They are picked out by bosses OWNED BY RICH MEN, and these rich men make themselves Senators by buying the bosses and paying the legislators.

The people of the United States HAVE GOT NO MORE TO SAY ABOUT SENDING MEN TO THE UNITED STATES SENATE THAN THEY HAVE ABOUT ELECTING THE GRAND LAMA OF THIBET.

The United States Senate illustrates the extent to which we have turned away from the original American path. But that is only one small detail.

The striking fact is that the ruling power in this country IS power unauthorized by the people, and therefore illegal.

The very rich man has every possible advantage, everything conspires to add to his wealth.

The poor man finds that monopoly has closed almost every avenue of wealth against him. He must be content henceforth to be the clerk of the man who has succeeded in monopolizing the opportunities for prosperity.

How much do you think the people of the United States have to say about the TAXES laid upon them?

If you are an intelligent man, you don't doubt that seventy millions out of eighty millions BELIEVE IN AN INCOME TAX.

A majority ought to rule in a republic. The great majority here favors an income tax, believes that the man who gets a good income, and is protected in its enjoyment, ought to pay a tax in America, as he does in other countries.

But the people, in spite of their great majority, CANNOT HAVE AN INCOME TAX. The Supreme Court, having voted first one way and then the other in an interesting and hesitating fashion—decides that the constitution will not permit an income tax.

The constitution was based on the theory that the PEOPLE were to have their way in taxation.

We find to-day that the constitution, which allows the INDIVIDUAL through monopoly to accumulate a thousand millions, will not permit the ENTIRE NATION to tax the income of that thousand millions.

The men who drew up the constitution and launched the ship of state for us would be quite surprised if they could read that Supreme Court income tax decision.

The most powerful man in the United States is not the President, whom the people elect, nor the judge whom they put on the bench.

The most powerful man living in America is John D Rockefeller—for whom nobody ever cast a vote.

JOHN D ROCKEFELLER TAXES THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES AS HE PLEASES.

The taxes laid on the people by Mr. Rockefeller and his associate monopolists are very far in excess of the taxes of the English King, against whom we fought.

Mr. Rockefeller taxes the kerosene oil in your lamp. If you give up kerosene and use gas, you find he owns that, and he taxes you again. By an arrangement with public officials, the Gas Trust charges you what it pleases—which is a tax.

If you give up gas and try electricity—the invention of an American genius shown in the incandescent lamp—you find that Mr. Rockefeller and the trusts actually have monopolized the electric current, and they tax you THERE. When you eat beef, the trusts tax you. If you buy a pair of rubber overshoes, another tax.

The power of taxation on income, which the Supreme Court says the government cannot use to raise revenue, IS USED RECKLESSLY AND VICIOUSLY BY THE TRUSTS TO RAISE REVENUE.

The Supreme Court tells you that this government cannot tax Mr. Rockefeller's income in order to meet expenses of government.

And at the same time you know that Mr. Rockefeller is taxing YOUR income to meet his expenses, or rather to add to his hundreds of millions of dollars.

Do you doubt that we have wandered a good many thousand miles from the original path laid out for us?

What are the United States people going to do about that situation!

This picture shows pretty well what they have done thus far. The eminently respectable reformer gentleman has stood off at a distance from the trust monster and yelled "shoo." That's a good way to treat a hen when she gets in the garden; it frightens her. But that isn't the way to frighten a trust. You can't "shoo" away a system powerful enough to push the American people out of the seat of government and sit down in THEIR PLACE.

If you go to the White House you find a President who tries, in a very mild way, to do something to the trusts. They smile at him good naturedly. They don't really let him DO ANYTHING. They don't snub him entirely, they don't show their real power. They believe that he isn't very dangerous; that he will be satisfied to talk a little. They think it a good thing to have him there. Too harsh treatment of him and his mild ways might perhaps result in an election that would give the trusts a REAL problem.

If you look in the United States Senate—the most powerful body in the land, since it can stop all laws, treaties and presidential appointments—you find the one big power in a man named Senator Aldrich. If you ask any questions, you will find that Senator Aldrich's DAUGHTER married John D. Rockefeller's SON. It is not very hard under the circumstances to realize that Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Aldrich together—controlling between them the money of the United States and the law-making machinery of the United States—are a good deal more powerful than the American people.

This isn't written—great American "Sovereigns"—with any idea of stirring up excitement or immediate action. You all know perfectly well what the situation is. You know that this isn't REALLY a republic now—the fact that nine-tenths of the people want a thing doesn't give it to them.

But what everybody knows, everybody takes pretty calmly. The people in India get used to being bitten by snakes after awhile. Many thousands are killed; nothing much is done about it.

The people in the United States are thoroughly reconciled to being killed off by consumption. If a foreign enemy landed and killed two hundred thousand people a year, if a gang of poisoners got to work and killed two hundred thousand people a year, we should be dreadfully excited FOR A FEW MINUTES. Consumption kills more than two hundred thousand a year; consumption could be killed off, just as dishonest trusts could be killed off.

But we don't get much excited about consumption, and we are not very much excited about the trusts.

This editorial and picture are presented to you merely to invite you to consider facts SQUARELY. It is just as well to KNOW where you stand, and what kind of a government is running you.

The time has gone by for talking about "the INFLUENCE of corruption in government." The INFLUENCE of corruption has nothing to do with it. THE GOVERNMENT ITSELF IS CORRUPTION. The government of the United States consists of the men in the United States that are worth ten millions of dollars and over. THAT IS THE REAL GOVERNMENT. AND THERE ISN'T ANY OTHER.

Ordinary citizens go through the motions of voting, without having anything to say about nominating the men they voted for. The ordinary citizens put men into the Legislatures, into Congress. After they get there they belong to the railroad and to other trusts.

Do you know the sad story, kind readers, of the old mother scorpion? It is quite pathetic, and it parallels very well the experience of old Uncle Sam, his constitution and his government.

The mother scorpion has a lot of little scorpions, and she treats them very kindly. When they are born they attach themselves to her body, and she wanders off in search of the kind of food she eats. While she travels along the little scorpions cling to her, AND THEY SLOWLY EAT HER UP. About the time the little scorpions are big enough to take care of themselves they have actually devoured their mother absolutely, leaving nothing but the hollow shell of her carcass.

After that operation, if you should come across her, you would see the little scorpions running away in all directions, and you would see the shell of the old mother scorpion. It would look to you just like a real scorpion, but it wouldn't BE one.

The United States government, to the casual inspector, LOOKS EXACTLY LIKE A REPUBLIC, BUT IT ISN'T ONE.

As the little scorpions fasten themselves to the old mother, so the little trusts and the little trust owners have fastened themselves to this republic. They are about big enough by this time to walk alone, to take care of themselves, and they have eaten the old mother government until there is very little left of Republican government except an empty shell.

While you are waiting to get ready to do something about it you ought to have these facts clear in your mind.

The Love That Will Not Die

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

In the set of the sails, and not the lake
That tells them the way to go

It is not the happenings of Fate which decide our characters, it is the use we make of those happenings. Whatever experience, it is yours to make it a fertilizer for the soil of your soul. Do not flatter yourself with the idea that had some cherished wish been granted instead of denied by cruel Destiny, that you would be a better greater or happier being, and that all your shortcomings are the result of this denial. It is not so. We will be what we will to be.

Every circumstance in your life can be turned into a blessing and a source of strength, and every sorrow and pain can be made a ladder on which to climb to heights of usefulness and success. The success of a noble character, a worthy life and a sympathetic nature. For unless these three things are yours you can never hope for real success, though you become a Croesus of wealth and an autocrat in power.

"I Walk on the Flag? NEVER!" Says Maxine Elliott

The Actress Discusses That Boston Episode, and Tells Eleanor Ames How It Feels to Be Beautiful.

By Eleanor Ames.

I WAS a bit previous, which, after all, is better than being late. Over the telephone, a mellow, vibrant voice had told me that its owner, Maxine Elliott, would receive me that evening at quarter after ten in her dressing room at the Hollis Street Theatre. I knocked at the door. There was the rustle of silken skirts.

"Wait just a second, please," said the same charming, velvety voice of the afternoon.

There was more silken rustle, and then: "There! You may come in now," and the door swung open.

Through the frills and furbelows of a black lace gown, which her [illegible] was just slipping over her head, Maxine Elliott extended a hand of cordial greeting.

"I'm a little late," she said; "so you'll forgive my talking while I [illegible], won't you?" The maid was fastening the black lace gown [illegible] back, while Miss Elliott fluffed a comb through her wonderful [illegible] black hair.

"'Her Own Way,'" she said, smiling, "seems to be to dress and [illegible] and dress again. I have five changes of gowns, but the play is well worth the trouble. In this act I'm supposed to be in [illegible]." She clasped a string of pearls about her throat, where they gleamed against the sombreness of her gown.

"About the flag episode," I began.

Miss Elliott raised her hands in protest.

"Don't let's talk about anything so absurd," she said. "When I first heard of it I was in Baltimore, and a reporter came to see me about it. Why, I thought it was some joke.

"Then I thought it might be some press agent story, so I inquired, only to find that it was neither, but actual fact."

She half knelt in the chair and rested her arms across the back. The lights were just right to throw her lovely face half in light, half in shadow.

"Don't move," I said. "I wish you might have a portrait painted like that." She laughed and changed her pose.

"Where would you put that flag?" she asked. "I will not have it under foot any more than your Common Council—Comic Council, I should call it."

"Then it really isn't under foot in the play?" I asked.

"Assuredly not," she said emphatically. "Why, that story was the height of asininity. The Council must have been destitute of working material.

"The man who made such a report must have been suffering from obliquity of vision the night he saw the play.

"You know such things do happen to men, even in the best regulated families."

She laughed again, and then listened at the door.

"I must go now," she whispered over her shoulder. "I'll be back in a minute."

As she left the room a noble looking bulldog crawled out from a soft bed in a warm corner and surveyed me, first with suspicion, then with hope, and finally lay down by my feet, and with a sigh of contentment set the stamp of approval on me.

I patted him gently, and he wagged his abbreviated tail and smiled amiably.

Miss Elliott came back radiant with smiles. She looked indulgently at the dog, who rat-tatted his tail in greeting.

"That is Sport," she said. "Isn't that a silly name? He doesn't deserve it. He ought to be called Bill Sykes or something like that."

"Tell me more about the flag," I asked. "The editor told me to get a good interview."

She started in alarm.

"Oh, this isn't an interview!" she exclaimed. "It mustn't be. It's just a call. You came to see me, and I am enjoying a chat with you, but I'm never interviewed. Dear, no! Interviews are such silly things. They are so absurd.

"Some one comes and asks you questions, and then you say a lot of things about yourself.

"You say, 'I get up at such an hour and go to bed at such a time, and I use this cream or that cream for my complexion.'

"Now, I get up when I have had my sleep and go to bed when my work is over, and I use whatever cold cream I happen to find at the druggist's. So you see I am not interesting."

I protested, and she laughed.

"I'd like to help you out," she confessed, "but don't you think interviews are silly?

"Who cares what we think about ourselves? If it were made an impressionistic study it might do."

"Well, I want to know what you think about the flag," I persisted, going back to first principles.

She grew serious.

"I [illegible] [illegible] shows that fact is stranger than fiction."

Again there was a call to the stage, and when she came back the curtain had fallen on the final act of the play.

And the report of the trampled flag had been disproved, and Maxine Elliott, lovely as ever, had relaxed from the [illegible] strain of the evening and was chatting carelessly of every-day topics.

I can never think of anything but a perfect [illegible] rose when I see Maxine Elliott. She has such a wealth of color and life and beauty. She seems so thoroughly complete.

When you meet the average woman [illegible] you are frequently made aware of some lack or some [illegible] not be tangible, perhaps, but which is still apparent. With Maxine Elliott, every angle has been softened to a curve, not only in her appearance, but in her mind.

Her thoughts are well rounded, her words well chosen, her voice mellow and pleasing. Her beauty is [illegible] named. It is distinctive. No raven's wing [illegible] or glossier than her hair. No Oriental houri ever [illegible] marvelous eyes. Her clear, richly colored skin needs no beautifiers. Her teeth are perfect, her figure superbly commanding [illegible] supple and full of grace. Those who have seen her only on the stage do not realize the majesty of her height or the splendid shoulders which make her bearing what it is. She will tell you that she believes health the greatest blessing which any woman [illegible] off the stage can enjoy. That for those who possess [illegible] has a heart full of [illegible]. She loves the [illegible]. If you have ever seen her [illegible] the theatre door [illegible] and rising to her full height, fill her lungs with it, you will realize what outdoors and air means to her.

When she is not in the theatre and when the [illegible] she will tell you that she plays golf, "blissfully, every [illegible]."

More than that, she is a formidable opponent [illegible] she puts up a very strong game.

Maxine Elliott is a firm believer in singleness of purpose. [illegible] as she is, she has never found it possible to do a whole [illegible] and do all well, and no woman has less patience with half-hearted attempts at what should be thorough accomplishment.

She believes in the simple life for those who [illegible] strenuous one. In other words, she does not believe [illegible] strength, health, energy and ability by burning [illegible] ends. "Nothing is above infinite pains," is another of her maxims.

Beauty alone would never have given Maxine Elliott the position she has on the stage. It has taken brains and hard work. Not until a play has been discarded for a new one does Maxine Elliott stop working over it. By the way, in September, in New York, she will appear in a new Clyde Fitch comedy, of which she expects great things.

"Just the plot and the scenes and some of the [illegible] [illegible] the dialogue [illegible] but every one knows that the dialogue [illegible] play will be all right."

I remember hearing a well-known modiste say [illegible] Maxine Elliott displayed more intelligence about her gowns than any woman she had ever made frocks for.

"To begin with," said the modiste, "her figure is a delight and her long, svelte back is the main secret of her beauty. That is also the great secret of her girlish figure.'

"She designs many of her gowns, and she will stand [illegible] a murmur in order to have them perfectly fitted. She [illegible] slightest imperfection, and insists that it shall be [illegible] when the gown is finished the result is worth all the [illegible] wears her clothes with a regal grace, and is frankly [illegible] praise of any gown that suits her.'

All these facts fixed themselves [illegible] not interviewing and being interviewed.

It was Sport that broke the spell.

He seated himself in front of his owner and howled that it was time to go home.

"Remember," said Miss Elliott in parting, "that I do not walk on the flag."

"Individual and Corporate Stealing."

WEEKLY SERMON FOR READERS OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN

By Rev. William W. Bustard, Pastor of the Dudley Street Baptist Church.

Ex. xx., 15, "Thou shalt not steal."

HAS the world any use for the Ten Commandments in the Twentieth Century? Some are teaching and preaching that we have outgrown the laws of Sinai; others that it is impossible for us to do business and carry on the politics of the country with any regard for the Ten Commandments. Unless we can prove that there is a need for these ancient laws they are worthless. In order that we may have some idea of the way these Commandments are broken at the present time, let us look a moment at the Fourth, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." Only a week ago there was a hearing at the State House in regard to the so-called "sacred concerts" given Sunday nights in Boston. The evidence of one of the witnesses revealed the fact that the notes which he took of one of the performances were too indecent to be read to a respectable audience.

The teaching of the Sixth Commandment is "Thou shalt not kill," and yet there were 10,000 suicides in the United States last year and 50,000 people killed and injured by the railroads of this country in twelve months. We Americans seem to care less and less about the sacredness of human life, and allow corporations to run their business for the dividends of the stockholders and not the safety of the public.

The Seventh Commandment teaches "Thou shalt not commit adultery." Divorce in the United States has become in many cases nothing but legalized adultery. Many things may be said on both sides of this great question, but here is the astounding truth—in one year there are more divorces in the United States than in all other Christian countries in the civilized world.

Not long ago Columbia University issued a table of figures which seemed to be beyond all belief. Canada, Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Russia and Australia granted a total of 20,111 divorces in one year, while in the same time the United States granted 23,472 divorces, an excess over all other Christian countries in the world of 3,361.

According to the census of 1900 there were 2,457 divorced women in the United States under the age of twenty, and 13,175 divorced women between twenty and twenty-five years of age. The other day in New York fourteen divorces were granted in one court by one judge, the average time of each being about thirteen minutes and twenty seconds, while the same day in Boston eleven divorces were granted, the average time being thirteen minutes and seven seconds. Thus marriage is to some extent becoming a mockery, and the union, which at first God and Nature ordained to be life-long, is often broken at the wish or whim of either party.

We come now to the Eighth Commandment, "Thou shalt not steal." Have we any need of such a teaching as this to-day? Look at the daily papers and you will find they are filled with the news of fraud, deceit, dishonesty, forgery and embezzlement. According to the figures of the Fidelity and Casualty Company, $10,000,000 was embezzled in the United States during the year 1904. These figures are exclusive of Mrs. Cassie Chadwick's operations. Adding her embezzlement of $2,000,000 we have had stolen in this country $1,000,000 a month or $12,000,000 in the last year. New York State is at the top of the list with embezzlements amounting to $1,851,585. California was next with $1,058,825; then came Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts with $644,087. These were straight-out steals, followed by confession, conviction or disappearance.

"We are an honest people," said Mr. Hennessy; "We are," said Mr. Dooley, "but we don't know it." In the face of these facts we need to remember that "Honesty is the best policy," not merely because it is policy, but because it is right. Honesty is the backbone of society; it is not exactly broken, but it is fearfully bent. We may not be ready to agree with the words Shakespeare puts into the mouth of Hamlet, "Oh, sir, to be honest as this world goes is to be one man picked out of ten thousand," but we cannot help but feel the necessity for a revival of honesty and integrity, when, as the King says in his Proverbs, we will "buy the truth and sell it not."

The deepest meaning of the Eighth Commandment is a recognition of the rights of property. By creation this world belonged to God. He sent it whirling out into space, clothing the earth with beauty and the stars with glory, so that the heavens declared His majesty and the firmament showed His handiwork. Then God made man in His own image, and said, "Be fruitful and multiply and subdue the earth, for thou shalt have dominion over the fish of the sea, the fowl of the air and every living thing." History records the way in which man has executed this regal commandment, and for centuries man has been going over the earth gaining dominion. He has made the fish feed him, the animals serve him and the lightning obey him. He turns coal into power, fur into clothing and clay into brick—he is the uncrowned king of the universe.

Thus the right of property rests on God's mandate to subdue the earth, and the basis of ownership becomes human labor. God has ordained that a man has a right to his own effort. This is a world in which primarily each one has a right to what he wins. A man owns his own, and is not under obligation to own everything with everybody. This simple truth has become one of humanity's greatest blessings. It has given man the power of initiative so that he works, invents and produces because he knows what he gets will be his. We cannot believe in any such a communism that teaches that the first man who comes along can claim the benefits and the products of another man's labor. If this is to be done then men will not work so hard or so long. No forests will be cleared, no farms cultivated, no factories built, no homes established. The individual ownership of property has its disadvantages, but it has been the one great thing to cultivate those sterling qualities of industry, economy, integrity and morality.

The Eighth Commandment forbids individual stealing. This is a vice which often breaks out in boyhood, but grows larger in manhood. It will not do for us, either in boyhood or manhood, to deviate a single inch from the straight path of integrity. A desire for display, a love of pleasure, fast company are the things which make our young men take what does not belong to them. In their minds necessity becomes more than law, and seeing the power and influence of wealth they do not always stop to ask, "How did the man make his money?" A good name is better than great riches, says the Bible, and if a man achieves financial success at the cost of his character, he has paid too high a price for his popularity.

This Commandment forbids dishonest transactions in business. I do not think for a moment that business men are robbers, but there is a feeling among some business men that shrewdness is the prime requisite for success in life, and so they have their mottoes: "Each one for himself," "The buyer is at the mercy of the seller," "Don't get caught and you are all right." Now a fair definition of business is this, an honest exchange of commodities for the equal benefits of both, so that, when one man tries to gain as much as he can at the cost of the other man's loss, it is not business but robbery.

Millions of dollars are being made yearly by different firms out of the confidence of an unsuspecting public. Take the one evil of adulteration. This is one of the impositions of the business of to-day upon the people. There is very little that we get which has not been adulterated. Liquors, milk, butter, meats, canned and bottled goods are far from what they are sold to be. Recently a large manufacturer of maple syrup declared before a United States court that the pure maple syrup would only supply 57 per cent. of the demand of the country, therefore it was necessary to adulterate it in order to do the business. It is not known to very many yet, but only last week in this city the Grand Jury returned an indictment against the Red Fox Ale company for adulterating their goods with the poison known as a compound of sulphurous acid. The chemist rendered an analysis which showed that if a man drank enough of this beverage he would be killed in a little while by the poison which it contained. If such a violation of law as this occurred in England and Germany a heavy fine would be imposed, the license revoked and the firm allowed to do business no longer. Such measures as these should be followed in this country against this and every other firm that violate the trust and impose upon the people in the adulteration of what they eat and drink.

There are many other forms of stealing practiced in the gambling games, in the stock market, in the cornering of the necessities of life, and in the refusal of the people to pay their honest bills to the milkman, meat and grocery stores, landlords and doctors.

One of the violations of this commandment is seen in the present greed of corporations. Many railroads are operating on the public highways for the special benefit of the owners and not for the general interest of the people. It is a well established fact that railroads and corporations are breaking the inter-state laws of this country. They enrich one shipper and bankrupt another; they can and do charge more for carrying the same goods in the same cars, over the same line to one station than they do to another station hundreds of miles farther away.

Men seem to lose personal responsibility when they become part of a great corporation and do things of which they would be ashamed of individually. That is the reason many corporations have no souls and why the public can't trust the trusts. [illegible] there is only one kind [illegible] He alone sits on a throne [illegible] of universal sway [illegible] robbery is robbery [illegible] poorest workman [illegible] Both should be made to [illegible] injustice to jail a poor man for [illegible] of bread for the sake of his [illegible] while corporations plunder the [illegible] lions of dollars and are [illegible] the community. [illegible] steals a suit of [illegible] politics or a [illegible] that man [illegible] should suffer the penalty [illegible]

There [illegible] Commandment which [illegible] that is unfair wages [illegible] sell labor the same as [illegible] to get for it something [illegible] It is wrong to hire [illegible] has, namely, his labor [illegible] Every man is entitled [illegible] country just as [illegible] he should be paid [illegible] On the other hand [illegible] to the work he [illegible] a fair equivalent [illegible] ingmen are [illegible] thing that [illegible] capital and labor is to [illegible] can for the work and do as [illegible] can for the pay. First we [illegible] wage for an honest day's work [illegible] an honest day's work [illegible] and soon all strikes [illegible] trouble end.

Let [illegible] Washington the [illegible] [illegible] I consider the most enviable of all titles, [illegible] character of an honest man,' for surely an honest, Christian man is the noblest work of God.

Following are details of all the attractions at the local playhouses for the coming week:

Majestic Theatre.

[illegible]

The story of "The Filibuster" has already been given, and has been considerably altered since the original production. Briefly, it concerns the adventures of a filibustering expedition and their attempts to give aid to one of the small South American republics. The first act of "The Filibuster" [illegible] Gussie Crow, Louise Hayes, Virginia Deering, Katherine Denning, Albertine Marr, C. Compton and A. C. French. There is a chorus of sixty pretty [illegible]

Colonial Theatre.

[illegible] Humpty Dumpty is said to be a great laughing show, and fun and jollity are never lost sight of in all the stage pictures that greet the eye from the rise to the fall of the [illegible] Wood for the American presentation. Frederick Solomon, Cole and Johnson, and J. M. Glover composed the music.

Boston Theatre.

For the second and closing week of [illegible] engagement at the Boston [illegible] to-morrow evening, [illegible] In addition, a pretty heiress, who loves him for himself alone, despite the coachman's wig, is the gist of the story, which is said to be very prettily and logically [illegible] excellent opportunity. The stage pictures in "Terence" are said to be most artistic, [illegible] singing would [illegible] Consequently for [illegible] Mr. Olcott has written and composed a number of new songs, including "My Own Dear Irish Queen," "My Sonny [illegible]" [illegible] to Know" and [illegible]

Tremont Theatre.

"The Cingalee," which comes to the Tremont Theatre for two weeks, commencing to-morrow night, is by James T. Tanner, and the music by Lionel Monckton, while [illegible] their ex[illegible] scene of [illegible] is in [illegible] which is the sub-title of the piece, and the story is concerned with [illegible] Harry Vereker, a tea planter, who loves Nanoya, one of the girls who work on the estate. But she is really the owner, and a lady of high caste, who has been married, as a child, to one Boobhamba, a noble of Kandy, whom she has not seen for fourteen years or so. There is also a famous black pearl in the plot, which a certain baboo lawyer, Chambhaboy Ram, was sent to buy back from a collector in London, but gave away. Boobhamba lays a complaint before the High Commissioner and claims the [illegible] augmented orchestra.

Globe Theatre.

Williams and Walker are a pair of amusing colored comedians whose fame is great in both America and England, and who will come to the Globe Theatre to-morrow night at the head of their own company, which numbers sixty people. "In Dahomey" [illegible] Among the [illegible] and musical entertainers are Ada Overton Walker, Lottie Williams, the Great Cutha, J. A. Shipp, J. Leubrie Hill, Alex A. Rogers, Hattie McIntosh and many others, including thirty-five handsome colored chorus girls with trained voices. "In Dahomey" is claimed to be a decided departure from the [illegible] ored plays, and in place of the ordinary [illegible] it presents a brand new style of negro entertainment.

Keith's Theatre.

Edmund Day, the noted actor-author, will be one of the leading entertainers at Keith's Theatre the coming week. Mr. Day, who is frequently referred to as "the Clyde Fitch of the varieties" owing to the number of sketches he has written, will present his latest effort, "The Sheriff," which is reported to have scored a hit everywhere it has been presented this season. As a special attraction the Six Musical Cuttys will make their debut at this playhouse. This organization has an international reputation for the superiority of their instrumental performances, and they'll score a big hit with the music lovers of this city. The great Kaufmann troupe of bicyclists, made up of daring and expert riders of both sexes, will give the finest exhibition a wheel ever seen on the local stage. Paul[illegible] Hall, as comely of face and figure as when she was the star of the New York Casino forces, and still possessed of a pleasing voice, will be heard in up-to-date songs. Parker's troupe of trained dogs, than which there is none better in America, will interest the grown folks as much as the [illegible] [illegible] part of the management [illegible] them for their farewell appearance in America. They will be seen in "The Willow Pattern Plate," which has added largely to the fame and popularity of Stuart Leslie, the composer, whose fertile brain was responsible for "Florodora" and other favorite light operas. Billy Single Clifford has consented to give just one week of his time to vaudeville this season, and that one week begins to-morrow afternoon at the Empire. Music lovers are promised a treat by the Grand Opera Trio—Miss Edyth [illegible], William Xanten and Signor Al[illegible], [illegible] of them singers of some note, [illegible] the boards in "The Sailor and [illegible]" by Will M. Cressy, which [illegible] Harry La Rose company will present [illegible] skilled fashion. Then there will be the Four Bards, in acrobatic and balancing feats of a wonderful nature; Ray [illegible], whose original songs and dances in [illegible] Welsh and Lates, [illegible] at the Show"; the Drummers' Quartette in their vocal specialty, "Dandy Walters of the Golden Gate," and a new set of highly interesting motion views by the vitagraph.

Empire Theatre.

Grand Opera House.

Interesting, and heretofore unknown species of criminals are said to be introduced to the stage for the first time in "After Midnight," the successful new melodrama which will be seen at the Grand Opera House this week. As its name implies, the principal events depicted in "After Midnight" are those happenings which transpire during the mystic hours from 12 o'clock till daylight in a big city. Criminals work under cover of darkness, and the most strenuous hours in the life of the professional cell-door are between midnight and [illegible] The story of the play takes for its basis a tale of engaging heart interest, opening in the beautiful green hills of New York State, and carrying its principals in the following acts through various phases of life in the great metropolis, introducing many and various characters and depicting some exciting events new to the stage, while the comedy elements are well represented. The leading role is played by Jack Webster, who is supported by a cast of twenty-five selected players.

Hollis Street Theatre.

Maxine Elliott enters upon the second and last week of her stay at the Hollis Street Theatre to-morrow night in Clyde [illegible]

Park Theatre.

Charles Hawtrey and his company have been attracting large audiences to the Park Theatre during the past week by their enjoyable presentation of "A Message from Mars," and will doubtless continue doing so during the coming week, which will be the last of their engagement. "A Message from Mars," in the guise of a comedy, teaches a very wholesome lesson, and carries conviction while it amuses. And it certainly does the latter, for the dialogue is bright and the situations are very cleverly contrived. Mr. Hawtrey's performance is [illegible] support is excellent throughout. Robert Edeson comes to the Park in "Strongheart," a week from Monday.

Howard Athenaeum.

Another fine variety show is billed for the Howard this week. The big feature act will be that of the Three Josearys, a trio of wonderful tumblers. Another big card will be the Empire Comedy Four, who are to make their first appearance here in several years. Charles Kenna has a reputation of being the model exponent of the one man sketch business, and will have one [illegible] Murphy and Willard are known as one of the funniest pairs of comedy people on the stage. The Williams-Gilliam Trio is a coon team, two comedians and a soubrette, who have a musical comedy sketch called "The Booking Agency." [illegible] West [illegible] George and Harrington, in a laughable horizontal bar act; Humes and Lewis, in their acrobatic comedy sketch; Williams and Dermody, two fine dancers; Henry T. Waite, violinist, and Mike Scott, the dancing Irishman. A lot of new moving pictures in the Kinetograph will make up the balance of the variety end of the show. [illegible] will appear in a new skit, entitled "Quick Action."

Castle Square Theatre.

"Romeo and Juliet" will be the offering at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week, this being the first presentation of [illegible] Romeo, Mr. Hauser; Mercutio, Mr. W[illegible]dron; Benvolio, Mr. Davis; Paris, Mr. V[illegible] Buren; Lord Capulet, Mr. Wade; Tyb[illegible], Mr. Jennings; Peter, Mr. Ben A. Fl[illegible]; Juliet, Miss Kemble; Lady Capulet, Miss Bradley; nurse, Miss Ryan.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"Her Only Crime" will be presented at the Bowdoin Square Theatre to-morrow, with Charlotte H[illegible] in the leading role. The play is said to be a melodrama of the most stirring sort, with sensational situations and scenes that move the heart. Other leading parts will be interpreted by [illegible] Wilmer Walters, Eugene Du Bois, Corinne Cantwell, Pearl de Sousier and Rose Howard.

Columbia Music Hall.

The Columbia offers this week a company known as the Kings and [illegible] of Burlesque, and it is heralded as one of the very best travelling. Its musical play, "The Bashful Venus," is said to be a clever infusion of funny dialogue, situation and lyrics set to bright music. W. B. Watson, the well known comedian, comes especially to take the leading part, and Jeanette Dupre has the title role. There are twenty-five show girls accompanying them. In the olio will be Ah Ling Foo, Chinese magician; May Allen, danseuse; Sabine and Mullany, knockabouts; Harry Stewart and Agnes Behler; Eldora, juggler, and Jeanette Dupre, the French chansonette.

Lyceum Theatre.

The show at the Lyceum during the coming week will be furnished by the Merry Maidens company, which is said to be equipped this year in a very lavish manner. The [illegible] the Hiatts, in a musical act; the Vans, in a comedy sketch; Sam Rice and Sheppard Camp, and Patti Carney, soubrette. The burlesques are entitled "At the French Ball" and "In South Dakota," [illegible] presented with a chorus of handsome girls, attractively costumed.

Palace Theatre.

Sam Devere's company will be the attraction at the Palace Theatre the coming week. Sam Devere is known from one end of the country to the other, is said to be [illegible] will come here with a company of comedians and pretty girls. Two burlesques will be given, entitled "The Dollar Line" and "Kings of the Harum Scarum Islands." The olio will include the [illegible] Alice Schrode, [illegible] and Pearl, and [illegible]

Austin & Stone's Museum.

There comes to Austin & Stone's to-morrow a man who is slowly turning to stone, and who is asserted to be one of the greatest puzzles that has been encountered in many years. His name is [illegible] comes from Hiram, Me., where he is known as the "fossilized man." He is said to be as rigid as a stone image, as a result of the ossification of his joints, yet his flesh has remained sensitive to the touch and his circulation and digestion are perfect. All the other features the coming week will be new and [illegible] ged boy; the [illegible] spinners, [illegible] Myers, the [illegible] vaudeville [illegible]

The Elks Benefit.

The Boston Lodge of Elks, No. 10, will hold its [illegible] performance at the [illegible] Thursday afternoon, [illegible] and lasting until 6 [illegible] volunteers [illegible] in town the coming week [illegible] acts from attractions playing [illegible] towns and New York. To-night's Concerts.

At the Empire Theatre another high-class Sunday evening concert will be given by the following named artists: Orisks Worden, Adele Archer and Lucille Gergl, in "The Queen's Fan"; Pearl Andrews, the [illegible] vitagraph views and other features.

The concert at the [illegible] to-night will contain some very good things in the way of amusing singing, dancing and comedy acts. The Rocco sisters, a pair of Russian dancers, will head the list. There will also be nine other acts, each of individual excellence, and the Globoscope with new views. Ford and Dot West will be an added attraction.

There will be a big concert at the Howard to-night, under the auspices of the Suffolk Dispensary. This is the concert usually held by this institution at the Bowdoin Square Theatre, but owing to that theatre having been given up for other uses, for this evening only, the concert will be given at the Howard. All the variety people who have been playing at the Howard this week, as well as others, will take part, the list of participants including the [illegible], Lew Hawkins, Wesson, Walters [illegible] the Brooks [illegible] "Chalk" Saunders [illegible] and Lon Dan, Caffery and Grant. Interest of Society Now Centres in After-Easter Weddings, Florida and the Lighter Diversions of Lenten Season.

Preparations for the many after-Easter weddings, Florida and the other Southern resorts, Washington and its Lenten free round of dinners and dances, and musicales and the other mental diversions of the penitential season, are the only matters which are of interest to society just at present.

Mrs. John L. Gardiner has been in Washington during the week, and on Wednesday was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean.

Mrs. Augustus St. Gaudens has returned from California and with her husband is now at the family home in Windsor, Vt.

Mrs. William B. Thayer, of Brookline, and Mr. Thayer's mother have gone to Pinehurst for a few weeks.

A Washington engagement which interests Boston is that of Miss Isabel Mauro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Mauro (Emily Rockwood), and Charlie Stratton French, son of Mrs. J. J. French, of Commonwealth avenue. He is a Harvard '95 man, and his only brother, Philip, who will be best man, was graduated in '99. The wedding is to be at St. Thomas Church, Dupont Circle, on Tuesday, the 28th. Miss Margaret Mauro, the sister, will be maid of honor.

George Passaroff Messervy, a former Boston man, who was married at Riverside, Cal., a fortnight ago, will build a residence on the Pacific Slope, being attracted by the climate and the opportunity to indulge his fondness for outdoor sports. Mr. Messervy's bride was Miss Harriet Laurie Colgate. Her father, who formerly lived in Washington, is now a resident of New York, and her mother is descended from an old Albany family. Mrs Messervy is a first cousin of Major Charles L. McCawley of the U. S. Marine Corps and one of Roosevelt's aids in the social functions of the White House.

He was once a conspicuous figure in paper chases and anis-seed hunts at Jamestown and Newport, and was introduced to society there many years ago by Mrs. John Drexel. He is a Boston man, but has made his home in New York for a number of years, and is a member of the University and Players Clubs. He is middle-aged, quiet-mannered and possesses a comfortable income.

Young Walter Jones felt so much sympathy with Captain Arthur von Saarburg of the Austrian army, who had been thrown over at the last moment by his sister, Miss Minna Twombly Jones, that he accompanied the disconsolate officer to Europe in order to explain to Captain von Saarburg's superior officers how it was the wedding did not take place.

PARAGRAPHIC NEWS OF LEADING BOSTONIANS

Andover is to have a very beautiful Easter wedding in Christ Church, which has been the scene of numerous similar affairs. The bride will be Miss Helen F. Baldwin, daughter of Mrs. Eben A. Baldwin, and the groom, Mr Julius Burdick [illegible]wards of a thousand cards will be issued for the ceremony.

William Lindsay, of Bay State road, who still retains many of his English interests is going over to London for a few weeks early in April. Mrs. Lindsay has [illegible] company him on the trip.

Miss Toby and Miss Bray, of Brookline, have taken a suite at the Hampton Court, Brookline.

Mrs. Jessie Seymour, of Brandon Hall, Brookline, is about to start for a three months' sojourn in Italy.

Mr and Mrs. Franklin D. Field, who have been at the Royal Poinciana, Palm Beach, will sail for England in June, and are to establish themselves in Devonshire for an [illegible] period.

The engagement is announced of Miss Gertrude Brown, daughter of the late Steveton Brown, of Washington, D. C., to Mr George Lewis Huntress, Jr., of Boston.

Philip Sawyer of Elmira, N. Y., has arrived at Brandon Hall, Brookline, where he is visiting his father, A. H. Sawyer.

Dr. and Mrs. Parker, of Worcester, have returned from their trip to Camden, South Carolina, and are staying at the Hampton Court, Brookline.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. North have returned from their wedding trip and will be located for the present with Mr. W. H. North at his home on Beacon street. In the Fall they expect to take up their residence in Brookline.

Professor and Mrs. Edward Stickney Wood, of Marlboro street, have been recent visitors at the Virginia Hot Springs, where they were guests at the Homestead. Mrs. Wood, who was formerly Elizabeth Richardson of Cambridge, was easily one of the prettiest women at the exclusive resort.

Mr and Mrs. Wallace Pierce, Mrs P. A. Gillespie and Cornelius Hatch are among the latest arrivals at the Homestead, Virginia Hot Springs.

Boston is well represented at the Royal Poinciana, Palm Beach, by three well known club men, Harold M. Appleton of the Somerset, Theophilus Parsons, of Beacon street, and Charles A. Proctor, of Commonwealth avenue, all of whom are Harvard men. Others registered at the hotel are Mrs. George Quincy, with Miss Jennie Quincy, Mrs. J. K. Richards, Miss Ruth Richards and Miss Lydia Dennison.

Langwater Gardens, the beautiful country home of the Ames family at North Easton, is being made ready for the occupancy of John Stanley Ames and his sister, Miss Mary S. Ames, of Dartmouth street, who are to spend the Spring season there.

Mrs. Roland Seeger, of the Somerset, and her daughter, Mrs. McMichael, are spending a few months abroad.

Mrs. S. L. Palmer and Miss Natalie Palmer, of Middletown, Ct., are recent guests at the Somerset, having come to visit Mrs. Palmer's son at Harvard.

Miss Helen Russell has returned to town after a very delightful tour of Southern Europe and Egypt.

The many friends of Mrs. Nathan Matthews are very glad that she is resuming her place in the fashionable world once again. Mrs. Matthews was in [illegible] for Mr. Matthews' father.

Of the many Bostonians who are to Summer abroad are Mrs. Richard J. Hall, of Bay State road, and the Misses Hall, who are sailing in April [illegible] a very beautiful [illegible] estate in France, where they intend to spend some months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Nelson Parker, of the Vendome, have as their guest, their daughter, Mrs. F. G. Farquhar, of Philadelphia.

Mr and Mrs Gilbert Tolman, who are at present in Jamaica with several friends, will return home the last of the month. The Tolmans did not come to town as usual this Winter, owing to the poor health of Mr. Tolman.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Thayer, of Stearns road, Brookline, are spending a few weeks at [illegible]. Master Booby Thayer, the youngest of their family, is with them.

The continued improvement of Miss Louise Coolidge of Beacon street, who has been spending some weeks in Southern California, is good news to her many friends. Miss Coolidge is one of the Winter's prettiest debutantes, and was presented at a brilliant tea and dance early in the season.

The operetta, "Alice in Wonderland," which the Vincent Club is [illegible] by Miss M[illegible] Daniels, of Brookline, is both tuneful and catchy, and is pronounced the best Miss Daniels has ever written.

PORTLAND EXODUS TO SOUTHERN RESORTS

Portland, Me., March 18.—Many of the most prominent Portlanders are passing the Lenten season in the South. The Hotel Ormond, kept by Anderson & Price, of the Bretton Woods hotels, has a large Portland contingent, during the season's visitors being Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Mansfield, Dr and Mrs. F. H. Gerrish, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Jordan, Mr. Elias Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Short, Mr and Mrs. George F. Duncan. Mrs. Duncan is prominent in all social functions at that place, her beauty, striking style, superb gowns and many social graces making her one of the most noticed women in that assemblage of fashion and wealth.

Dr. John Wilder Bowers, who has enjoyed an interesting trip to Jamaica, has returned to his home in this city.

Among those who have recently sailed for Jamaica are Mr. and Mrs. George F. West, of Mellen street. Mr. West is a relative and heir of the late George P. Wescott, and is carrying on many of his business projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Davis, of West street, have left for a trip to the Pacific coast.

Mr. George Burnham, of the Cumberland Club, is passing a month at the springs at West Baden, Ind.

Mrs. Shute and Mrs. Sturdivant, formerly the Misses Irene and Ethel Phillips, of this city, who are visiting their mother, Mrs. Morton Phillips, State street, are receiving much social attention and numerous events are being given in their honor.

Dr. and Mrs. James A. Spaulding have sailed for a trip to the West Indies.

Mrs. James P. Baxter, Jr., and Master Baxter have returned from a month passed in Chicago with Mrs. Baxter's sister, Mrs. Arthur Flint Brown.

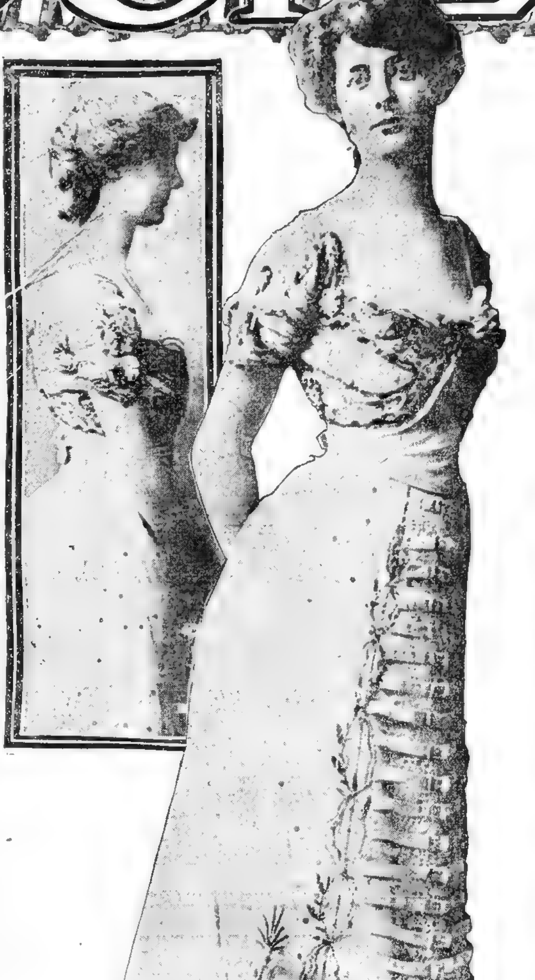
At the annual meeting of the Portland Golf Club, held Monday, the following officers were chosen: President, Edward D. Noyes; vice president, Arthur S. Bosworth; secretary, Philip F. Jones; treasurer, Chase Eastman; governing board, Mrs. Dion Bradbury, John C. Allen. The club numbers 180 active members, seventy nine associate members.

Two engagements of interest to society have been recently announced, that of Frederick H. Oliver and Miss Gertrude Mae Cornish, and of Miss Mary Merrill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry P. Merrill, to William Edward Stanwood, of Wellesley, Massachusetts. Miss Merrill is one of the most attractive of the young society girls.

Mrs. Willis M. Chenery and Miss Lida Chenery, who have been passing six months in Europe, arrived by the Romanic, of the White Star Line on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Noyes, and Mrs. W. R. Chapman, wife of the promoter and director of the Maine festivals, are to sail for Europe early in April.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Baxter, who have been passing two months [illegible], returned last week to their home on Spring street.



Miss Mary J. Sullivan

Who is to be the bride of Stephen Codman, the Brookline millionaire.

Many Engagements in Washington Smart Set

Washington, March 18.—Washington has more than the usual number of recently announced engagements. The nearest is that of Miss Julia Kellogg, daughter of the late Colonel Sanford Kellogg, U. S. A., and Mr Andrew Bradley, a prominent young lawyer and the referee in the Waggaman bankruptcy case. The date selected is March 25. An after-Easter wedding will be that of Miss Marian Hubbard Bell, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell and David G. Fairchild, agricultural foreign expert in the department of Agriculture. Both are prominent socially.

Miss Daisy Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Wilson, whose elder daughter married a member of the Swedish Legation several years ago and lives abroad, will shortly be married to Mr. Ernest Howes, of Newport, whose mother is Mrs. Arnold Hague. The summer home of Professor and Mrs. Arnold Hague is at Newport.

Miss Anne Phelps Brown, daughter of Mrs. Leveton A. Brown, and Mr Charles Bradley have lately announced their engagement, as have a sister of Miss Anne, Miss Gertrude Brown, who will marry George Lewis Huntress, Jr., of Boston, and Miss Annie McCauley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCauley, and Charles O'Donnell Lee. The list is unusual in one regard, that all are Washingtonians with one exception, and equally prominent in the smartest circles.

That the average be kept up of the natural predilection for international marriages there are two others of the near future, Miss Susan Morrell Chapin, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Philip E. Chapin, wealthy residents, to Captain T. H. Clarke of the British Royal Army Medical Corps, and Miss Frances Newlands, daughter of United States Senator Newlands, who will marry Lieutenant Leopold von Bredow of the German army.

A wedding of interest here, where the happy bridegroom is well known and much liked, will take place in St. Louis after Easter, when Miss Hester McLaughlin, a very pretty and wealthy girl, marries Lieutenant Carlo Pfister, the handsome naval attache of the Italian embassy, in whose good fortune his Washington friends are rejoicing.

Francis L. Higginson was also down at his Pride's place Monday.

Those who are versed in such matters say the coming season on the North Shore is to be one of the smartest for many years. Hardly any of the Summer estates remain unleased, and from indications there will be many newcomers to the shore this year. James Higg[illegible] of New York [illegible] Mrs. S. Parker Blake, will be among the newcomers to the Manchester colony. Formerly he has had a place on the South Shore, but he has just taken the Blake villa here for the coming season.

Among the earliest arrivals the coming month will be the S. Parker Bremers, whose beautiful estate on Smith's Point is even now being put in readiness. They will open their house the early part of April. Mr. Bremer's fast boat, the Velthra, is being put in commission at Dennisport, Cape Cod.

Robert Edeson, as the college bred Indian hero of "Strongheart," the new comedy drama by William C. DeMille, is the attractive offering announced for March 27 at the Park Theatre. This actor is widely popular here, because of his success in "Soldiers of Fortune" and "Ranson's Folly." William C. DeMille has laid the scenes of "Strongheart" at Columbia University and furnishes a vivid and amusing picture of college life.

One of the greatest melodramatic successes of the [illegible] sented at the Grand Opera House during the week of March 27, when "The Queen of the White Slaves" will be the attraction. There are four acts and sixteen scenes, all of which abound in thrilling situations and climaxes.

Robert Edeson in "Strongheart" plays an Indian, the son of a chief, who, through his prowess on the football field, has become a hero [illegible] at Columbia. His love for [illegible] of his chum forms the motive of this play which, so serious in its problem, is related amid scenes of Billy (Single) Clifford's last engagement in comedy in this city was at the Hollis Street Theatre, when he appeared in "[illegible] Court," Marie Dressler playing the role originated by May Irwin.

The Three Mitchells, who are billed to the Howard next week, are three as clever singing coons as there are on the stage.

The Imperial Troupe of Russian dancers, who will appear in conjunction with the Russian ballet in "Siberia" at the Boston Theatre, is said to be one of the most remarkable corps of dancers ever brought to this country. At the Academy of Music, New York, these dancers proved a revelation and received round after round of applause at every performance.

William H. Windom, the well known ex-minstrel, who appears at Keith's the coming week, has been for twenty years prominent as a vocalist, comedian, producer, originator, stage manager and songwriter, with the leading minstrel companies of this country. His act, "The Colored Nurse Girl," is said to be one of the best things of the kind ever done in the varieties.

Two of the dancers in the sensational "Julep Dance" in "The Filibuster" come from the Tiller training school in London—which also sent out the pony ballet seen in "Piff, Paff, Pouf" last week. The other four are American girls.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes:

"I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use.

Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. [illegible] and pain, with severe bearing down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would bloat after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had an acrid discharge and pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number [illegible] recommend [illegible] Vegetable Compound [illegible] female [illegible] fails. It [illegible] sick women."

Women cannot buy such testimony as this [illegible] alone can produce such results [illegible] specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Experience has proved this.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is free and confidential.

Children of Youthful Parents Weaklings By

Prof. G. Stanley Hall, Prof. Caspar L. Redfield, Prof. William C. Farabee

THE child of youthful parents has a small chance for success against the child whose parents are of middle age. This is the rather startling conclusion reached by biologists and anthropologists in their study of the very newest subject of these sciences: The effect upon children, mentally and physically, of the age of their parents. As yet this particular field of study has been traversed by few of the scholars of the world. Of these, President Stanley Hall of Clark University, Worcester; Professor Caspar Lavater Redfield of Chicago University and Professor William Curtis Farabee of Harvard are the leading exponents in the United States.

In this issue of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN these gentlemen present their deductions.

By Professor G. Stanley Hall.

The comparative strength, mentally and physically, of children on the basis of the ages of their parents is one of the most complex and important topics in the world. The fullest figures ever made out on the subject were compiled by a Hungarian professor. From his tables it is manifest that the age for the greatest life ability of children is when the father is between thirty-one and thirty-six years old and the mother about five years younger. Other tables on this question have been compiled in England, but not to any great extent. Not even complete enough to draw any concise opinion. In this country our tables are even more incomplete than in England.

In England there is a wider range, and the averages differ considerably. Very often people of fifty have not as vigorous children as those that marry at an immature age.

Another thing has been agreed upon within the last twenty years. Whenever one parent, especially the father, is a good deal over one side of the limit, it is important that the other parent should be a good deal on the other side.

That is, suppose the man is forty-five years old. He should take a wife very much younger, and vice versa. But this especially appertains to the man. One prominent writer says that the best results are obtained when the combined ages of the parents is sixty-four or sixty-five.

In considering fecundity, it is apparent that the number of children born to parents who are under the limit is greater than to those that are over the limit. Tables in Austria and Germany show that the fecundity is greatest when the wife is nineteen or twenty and the other parent five years older. Every year added diminishes the number of children. When a girl is young the fecundity is greatest. At the age of twenty-five man has reached the greatest stage of fecundity. Children born of immature parents are not likely to live.

Children of parents that are slightly under the age of maturity are healthy and happy, but are a little liable not to come to full and complete maturity of body and mind. But a more striking trait in children of parents who are past mature age is that they are rather precocious and nervous.

Francis Galton, of England, has for years been gathering figures on this subject. He is an advocate of "eugenics." Mr. Galton has formed a society in England, which had its first meeting last year. I have a complete report of what was done at the meeting. The purpose of the society is to encourage marriage among the fit. He proposes to aid by [illegible] gifts young people who ought to marry, a slight dower to obliterate the excuse for not marrying that they are too poor. Several large donations have already been received.

Mr. Galton is of the opinion that the people in this country should be interested in this matter, in view of the fact that many graduates of colleges here do not marry at all or marry very late in life, and still more female graduates never marry or enter the stage when they are a long way over the limit.

By Professor Caspar L. Redfield.

Savages marry savages in mere youth and other savages are born, while David was the eleventh son of his father, and David's son Solomon was born when the Psalmist was fifty-two years old. Moses was born 155 years after the birth of his great-grandfather, while the modern Moses—Abraham Lincoln—was the product of a grandmother and grandfather, each the baby of their respective families, and of a father and a mother, each the youngest child of their families. [illegible] Benjamin Franklin's ancestors in the male line on the Franklin side were the youngest children for five generations back, while the father of Audubon was fifty-one years old at his boy's birth and himself was the twenty-first child in his family.

Delving for years into the history of men I have made some classified deductions as to the position in life to be counted upon for children born of parents in certain age groups. Looking for the reckless, adventurous, dissipated, aggressive types of men, I have found extreme youth in their parentage almost without exception, while the great thinkers and philosophers of the world have been born of parents who have reached mental maturity.

The child, under whatever circumstances, is the child of his parents as these parents are at the time of his birth. Which is to say that if the wild young Richard Roe's first son is born within a year of his father's runaway match with John Doe's daughter, who is barely of age, that particular first child has altogether different parents than are those parents who may be responsible for the being of the eighth, twelfth, or sixteenth member of the growing Roe family.

No man should be allowed to marry before he is twenty-five years old, and no woman until she is twenty years at least, while, on the other hand, every man should be married by the time he is thirty, and every woman by the time she is twenty-eight. Regarding these observations, I will say that if persons in the United States were not allowed to marry before the age of twenty-five years, two generations of such marriages would wipe out virtually all the poverty, crime and viciousness of the country.

There are certain possibilities in this philosophy of later marriages which are not to be escaped by one who will investigate as I have done. The keynote to my philosophy is a something which I have styled dynamic heredity. Heredity, as I have found it, involves the two possibilities of structural heredity, which concerns form and size, without regard to force and energy, or this dynamic heredity, which involves force, power and energy without regard to form. The application is that a child may resemble a parent in face and figure, no matter how young the parent may be at the time of the child's birth; while as certainly this same child cannot resemble the parent in brain force and power as a tenth or twelfth child might do after the youthful father had acquired his own brain force and power from a ripened knowledge and experience.

Madonna and Child by Rafael

As a general proposition, I will say the chances of position in life for the children of parents of varying ages promise in this general order:

The child of a father fifty-one years old and more belongs to the group to be described as moralist, philanthropic and philosophic; the child of the parent aged forty-one to fifty years may attain the group of statesmanship; fathers thirty-one to forty years old will have children devoted to music, poetry, art and literature, while the fathers under thirty-one years old will have progeny tending to militarism and the aggressive occupations of the world.

The whole underlying principle [illegible]. When a parent, [illegible] has passed fifty years [illegible] the maximum of his knowledge and experience. He is inclined to morality, philosophy and a greater tolerance of the world and its vagaries. He has time for thinking and for self-analysis. Shall one doubt for a moment that a man becoming a parent at such a time in life reflects his acquired nature in the child? Otherwise, why should a long line of ancestors who are college men be regarded as promising in every way to the culture and mentality of their descendants.

Looking through the genealogies of 236 men whom the world has designated great, I have proved the ratios of chance of these children of fathers at various ages. Twenty-one of these men achieving greatness in theology, philosophy and philanthropy were children of men more than fifty-one years old, [illegible] figures [illegible] eighty-one artists, musicians [illegible] fathers in the age group from [illegible] forty years, while sixteen [illegible] military men were children of fathers [illegible] thirty-one years of age at the time of the children's birth. A table shows these four groups and the tendencies [illegible] numbers in each group, as follows:

	51 and over.	41-50.	31-40.	Under 31.	Total.
Theology, philanthropy, philosophy	21	15	7	5	48
Statesmanship and law	10	33	27	6	76
Fine arts, music and literature	9	25	36	11	81
Military	3	4	8	16	31
Totals	4[illegible]	77	78	[illegible]	236

The basis of all such figures is largely within the last 200 years, and has been taken from genealogies of families in the United States and the English speaking countries. In these last 200 years the ages of parents at birth of children have approximated the following percentages of the births:

Parents, fifty-one years and over	5.01
Parents, forty to fifty years	22.02
Parents, thirty to forty years	40.42
Parents, twenty-nine to thirty years	10.27
Parents, twenty five to twenty nine years	10.16
Parents, under twenty five years	11.25

Since these basic figures were taken from the last two centuries, the percentages are affected by the marked increase in the age of candidates for marriage in the last quarter of the last century. Economic conditions in the great cities have been complained of for causing belated marriages, but I, while acknowledging the economic cause of this, see in it only another beautiful adjustment in the law of evolution. Early marriages tend to the production of paupers and criminals. civilization is too greatly burdened with these types at the present time; economic conditions that are interfering with early marriages will adjust the difficulty in later born and better born children.

If these later children, too, are the better born and the more valuable citizens, so, too, as the ages of the parents increase, there is an increase in the longevity of the children. Tracing genealogies has shown that in families where four sons reach maturity without the interfering factors of war, and crime, and accident, the eldest son [illegible] sixty-one years old, the second reaches sixty-[illegible], the third reaches seventy years and the fourth becomes seventy-one years and over. [illegible] statement that for every [illegible] years [illegible] the part of [illegible] of his children he will add one year to each succeeding child's chances of life. Not only this, but with each increase of the kind in his own age, the disposition is to put the child in a higher ranking position in the world's work and lessen the possibilities of his degenerating into a pauper or criminal.

I have found some remarkable demonstrations of this early marriage evil in the South Seas. The Andaman Islanders are among the lowest creatures in the form of men and there the child wife and the child husband are universal. In the same South Seas are the Polynesians, one of the finest people in the small islands of the South Pacific.

But among the Polynesians the same early marriage rites are observed. This balked me until by further investigation I learned that [illegible] killed [illegible] births were [illegible] of the [illegible] is more [illegible] is the child of [illegible] portion of its life once passed, the chances of the youngest child in a family are greatly better for a long life. But between the ages of twenty-eight and forty years parents are young enough to acquire families promising the elimination of the most vicious that is in human nature and the raising of all the standards of the best that is in life. The philosophy is doubly true that "a man's education should begin with his grandfather," but if that grandfather has become the father before he has education worthy of the name, where are the son and the grandson to profit?

England is demonstrating this fact in her great men of all time. She has found it impossible that one family should produce really great men down any long line. And why? Because it is the first born son, generation after generation, who is married early in the hope of the birth of a grandson early to be in line of accession. The result is that England's great men would have become extinct had not its peerage been fed by those rising from the masses through the virtue of their [illegible].

By Professor William C. Farabee.

Beyond a few general facts, anthropologists know little of the relative strength of children, as based on the comparative ages of their parents. It is unquestionable, however, that generally children of parents who are thirty years or over are stronger than those whose parents are younger. Physically, the woman is capable of bearing a stronger child at thirty than when younger.

Still, anthropologists advise early marriages for the destruction it will bring to the race suicide evil, and the resulting good to the race. We harmonize both beliefs by showing that perhaps the third or fourth child of an early marriage may be somewhat stronger than the earlier children.

To apply any of these general statements of facts to New England in particular might be a dangerous thing, on account of the different races which make up our population. Further investigation of the subject will prove profitable and interesting to scientists.

CHAPTER XIII.

A Protective Measure.

ON the day after the great dance at the Armstrongs on Commonwealth avenue Holland went to Boston.

There were several reasons for this somewhat sudden determination of his, pressing business matters connected with his own as well as his late father's affairs; for it must not be forgotten that Holland was a lawyer, with a very considerable practice, and that the Supreme Court had been sitting for several weeks, and, although his cases were being looked after by his assistants, he had determined, on his succession to the title, to give up active practice at the bar. It had always been his father's wish. And, indeed, there were not many men in the world who, like the late Judge, could maintain his great position and manage his vast property interests, and at the same time carry out the responsible duties of a judge.

But the main reason which influenced him in this sudden determination to emerge from his hermit retirement and go out into the great world again was a resolve which had come to him in the silent watches of the night—a resolve that was bred, perhaps, of an overwhelming and insatiable curiosity, against which he had found it impossible to fight.

Whether Judge Holland's wife and her son were dead or alive, he must know. Whether he determined to live out his life in direct defiance of his conscience, and all the higher promptings of his better nature, or to obey those dictates and keep his sworn word to a dying man, did not affect the question.

So he had decided to go to the great Fergus Braine and set the wheels of the vast private detective agency in motion. Of course, it would have to be done cautiously and diplomatically. He would consult Braine in his capacity of a lawyer, giving Braine the impression that he was acting only in the interests of a client whose name was purposely withheld.

Stephen worked the whole plan of campaign out during the night.

Of late there had been a curiously persistent suspicion in his mind that the mysterious and tragic death of his father—for nothing could ever make Stephen regard the late Judge as anything but his father—was in some measure due or connected with this tragic chapter in the Judge's past life.

The police had been baffled until the other day, when Tagg had suddenly arisen with meteoric suddenness upon the scene, having found a revolver in the bushes opposite the French window through which it had always been assumed the fatal shot was fired. But Tagg, who was now working personally in the train of Detective Gerrard, of the State police, although he was supposed to have a wonderful theory, had never got any further. The revolver had been found, with two chambers discharged, but a minute search in the Velasquez room of the castle had failed to discover either and it was conclusively proved that the revolver found by Tagg was of a much smaller calibre than the heavy bullet which had been extracted by Dr. Hatherley from the deceased, and which had, beyond doubt, caused his death.

Thus the mystery was only deepened and the much talked of case of the Maple[illegible] police only tended to still further confuse the detectives in their vain efforts at unraveling the mystery.

It was on the evening of his arrival in Boston, after he had dined alone at his club, and was writing several business letters, that Armstrong came up behind him and clapped him heartily on the shoulder.

"Stephen," exclaimed the great man, "is it really you in town? Why, we were picturing you buried down at Mapelia."

"I only came up this morning," murmured Stephen, somewhat embarrassed and apologetic.

"And have you seen Mary yet?"

"No, no," faltered Stephen, "I was thinking of calling around to-night."

"You'll find Mary out," said Armstrong. "She has gone to the theatre with my wife. Darch is taking them, and your friend Miss Mort is of the party. Extraordinarily handsome woman, that Miss Mort!"

Stephen assented a little absently. Just then his heart was leaping with a great desire to put everything aside, and go and find Mary. Never before had the thing he had set himself to do, the sacrifice he was going to make, seem so great and so impossible as it did at that moment.

Mary was his—his very own—to claim before the world, and yet he had made up his mind to renounce her, and must indeed do so, knowing what he did and loving her as he did.

"Look here, Stephen," said Armstrong, "you've just got to join the 'Seafoam' to-morrow week. Do you understand? No excuses. It's quite a short cruise, but it will do you worlds of good. Why, my dear fellow, you're looking years too old!"

"I've been through a great deal, sir, since I last saw you," said Stephen.

Armstrong nodded and [illegible] gripped the young man's hand.

"I know. I know [illegible] mustn't [illegible] to ruin your life. Now promise [illegible] the yacht. Do, even if only for Mary's sake. It'll make all the difference in the world to her. Shall I tell her [illegible]"

For a moment Stephen hesitated, but only for a moment. Then all hesitation was swept away. Of course he would go; he must go, even if it would be the last time he could ever meet the Armstrongs.

"Yes," He Said, "I Will Go."

Then the two men smoked and chatted together on a variety of topics, until Armstrong had to leave to keep an appointment with a man at his house, and Stephen was left to his correspondence and his thoughts.

The next morning he called at Braine's Private Inquiry Agency and sent in his card to Fergus Braine, who saw him immediately.

"You are no doubt aware, Mr. Braine," said Stephen, "that I am a practicing attorney."

"It is in a professional capacity that I am seeing you now," he said, "and you will, I am sure, appreciate the position when I say that I am not at liberty to let you have the names of my clients."

"Quite," said Mr. Braine, eyeing Holland very keenly. "What is it that we can do for you, Mr. Holland?"

"I want you, Mr. Braine," said Stephen, speaking slowly, and carefully weighing his words, "to find out for me privately, and without arousing any suspicion, especially in the people concerned, if they be alive, the present whereabouts of a woman and her son, who practically disappeared five-and-twenty years ago."

Mr. Braine sat suddenly very upright. [illegible] instantly assumed quite a [illegible] visit of Miss Mort, and his bargain with [illegible] spoken of. Strange that he had not suspected it at first.

"Yes," he said, "give me all the particulars [illegible]"

"[illegible] very few particulars to give, none, in fact," Stephen said quickly, "concerning the original disappearance, for they are not available. What, however, I do know is this: that in the year 1882 these people were living at No. [illegible] Worcester street, Boston. It is from that point that you must trace them."

"Ah!" exclaimed Mr. Braine, "that ought not to prove so difficult."

"They were living under the name of Lang," continued Stephen.

"What was their real name?" asked Braine sharply; but his question did not take Stephen off his guard.

"Lang," he said, "is their name."

Mr. Braine stroked his long nose.

"I see," he said. "Very good. Are there any other particulars?"

"A few," answered Stephen. And he supplied Braine with the approximate ages of the mysterious Langs, and he had always been brought up to reverence and respect as his mother as well as he could from the portrait that hung in the library of Holland Holme. Meantime, Mr. Braine took copious notes in a strange form of shorthand of his own.

"And in what class of life were these people?" he asked, when Stephen had finished.

"They were gentlepeople," said Stephen.

"Humph! Well, I'll do everything I can, though you must admit the data is very scanty. Are you quite sure that you cannot trust me with further details?" Mr. Braine smiled insinuatingly.

Stephen regarded him coldly.

"I have told you all I know," he said.

"About the original disappearance, twenty-five years ago?"

"That surely doesn't concern us, since we know where they were in 1882," he said, a little nervously. Fergus Braine was beginning to have a disconcerting effect upon him.

We Will Buy

A 50c. Bottle of Liquozone and Give it to You to Try.

We want you to know about Liquozone, and the product itself can tell you more than we. So we ask you to let us buy you a bottle—a full size bottle—to try. Let it prove that it does what medicine cannot do. See what a tonic it is. Learn that it does kill germs. Then you will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do.

This offer itself should convince you that Liquozone does as we claim. We would certainly not buy a bottle and give it to you if there was any doubt of results. You want those results; you want to be well and to keep well. And you can't do that—nobody can—without Liquozone.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a Liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables, and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

In nervous debility Liquozone acts as a vitalizer, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

50c. Bottle Free

If you need Liquozone, and have never tried it, please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle, and we will pay the druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you; to show you what Liquozone is, and what it can do. In justice to yourself, please, accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligation whatever.

Liquozone costs 50c. and $1.

Stomach Heart Kidneys — Slaves of the Inside Nerves

Our lives, from moment to moment, depend on a set of tiny, delicate nerves which are so small that fifteen hundred of them could lie side by side in an inch! Ten times more tender and sensitive than the pupil of the eye!

Yet, night and day, unguided and unseen, these little nerves must keep the stomach, the heart, the kidneys, in healthy action. For these organs have no power—no self control. The power is in the nerves. The nerves are the Masters. The organs are their slaves.

Understand first that we have two entirely separate nerve systems. When we walk, or talk, or act, we call into play a certain set of nerves—nerves which obey our mental commands. That is why the arm can be raised, or the mouth opened, or the eye shut, at the slightest desire. That is why your fingers can delicately pick up a pin one moment, and hold a heavy hammer the next.

But these are not the nerves we are to consider here.

It is the inside nerves that manage and govern and actuate the heart and the stomach, the kidneys and the liver and all of the vital functions. You cannot control these nerves. By no supreme effort of mind can you make your heart stop or start—nor can you even make it vary by a single beat a minute. And so with the stomach and the liver and the kidneys and the bowels—they are automatic—they do their work at a certain set speed whether you are awake or asleep—whether you want them to or not.

It is on these inside nerves that life and health depend. So long as these nerves perform their proper duties we are well and strong. When they fail, we know it by the inevitable symptoms—stomach, heart, liver, kidney troubles.

Thus, we find that most forms of illness are, after all, only symptoms of the real trouble—inside nerve trouble.

For instance, indigestion, sour stomach, heartburn, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles—diabetes, Bright's disease and other kidney disorders—heart troubles, liver troubles, bowel troubles, nervousness, fretfulness, sleeplessness, irritability—all of these ailments are due to this single cause. Painful, disagreeable to be treated as such. They are merely outward signs of inward trouble.

There are different centers and branches of this inside nerve system (frequently called the Sympathetic Nervous System.) But each branch is so closely connected with the others that breakdown anywhere usually means breakdown everywhere.

This explains why stomach trouble develops into heart trouble—why indigestion brings on nervousness—why diseases become complicated. It explains, too, why ordinary medical treatments are wrong—why medicine so frequently fails.

For, despite the discoveries of science, the common remedies of the day are designed to treat the organ not the nerve—the symptom instead of the cause.

My Free Dollar Offer

Any sick one who has not tried my remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—may have a Full Dollar's Worth Free. I ask no deposit, no reference, no security. There is nothing to pay, either now or later. I will send you an order on your druggist which he will accept in full payment for a regular, standard size Dollar bottle. And he will send the bill to me.

C. I. Shoop, M. D.

Don't you, though you may not know medicine at all, see that this is wrong? That it is mere patchwork? That while the suffering organ is enjoying its temporary relief, the nerve that is really sick may be getting worse and worse? Does this not explain to you why relapse so frequently follows a supposed cure? Does this not account for the uncertain [illegible] medicine?

More than thirty years ago this [illegible] came to me:

"If life and health depend upon perfect heart action, upon proper stomach digestion, upon correct kidney filtering, why does not life itself depend upon these life governing power nerves—these inside nerves."

I realized, too, that all ailments which result from one cause may, of course, be cured by one remedy. I resolved not to doctor the organs but to treat the one nerve system which operates them all.

For those who treat only the symptoms need a different remedy for each. Such treatments are only palliative, the results do not last. A cure can never come in diseases of the stomach, heart, liver or kidneys, until the inside nerve power is restored. When that is done, Nature removes the symptoms. There is no need of doctoring them.

My remedy—now know by Druggists everywhere, as Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is the result of a quarter century of endeavor along this very line. It does not dose the organ or deaden the pain—but it does go at once to the nerve—and builds it up, and strengthens it and makes it well.

There is no mystery—no miracle. I can explain my treatment to you as easily as I can tell you why cold freezes water and why heat melts ice. Nor do I claim a discovery. For every detail of my treatment is based on truths so fundamental that none can deny them. And every ingredient of my medicine is as old as the hills it grows on. I simply applied the truths and combined the ingredients into a remedy that is practically certain.

In more than a million homes my remedy is now known and relied upon. Yet you may not have heard of it. So I make this offer to you, a stranger, that every possible excuse for doubt may be removed. Send no money—make no promise—take no risk. Simply write and ask. If you have never tried my remedy, I will send you an order on your druggist for a full dollar bottle—not a sample, but the regular standard bottle he keeps constantly on his shelves. The druggist will require no conditions. He will accept my order as cheerfully as though your dollar lay before him. He will send the bill to me.

Will you accept this opportunity to learn at my expense absolutely how to be rid forever of all forms of stomach, heart, kidney ailments—to be rid not only of the trouble, but of the very cause which [illegible]. Write today.

[illegible] on Dyspepsia — [illegible] on the Heart — [illegible] on the Kidneys — [illegible] for Women — [illegible] for Men — Book 6 on Rheumatism. [illegible] bottle.

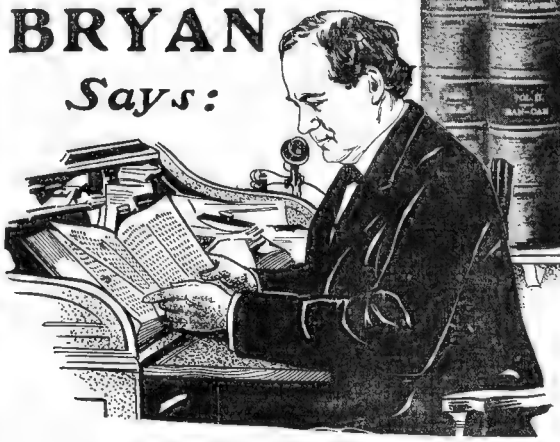
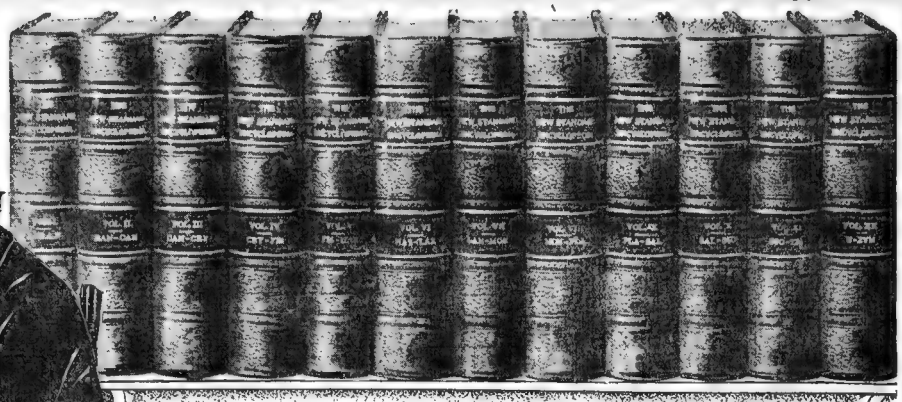
Read What WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN Says:





'The NEW STANDARD ENCYCLOPEDIA AND ATLAS is a model reference work. Without surplus words or unnecessary space, it presents a vast amount of information. It is worthy of a place in any library.

'I heartily approve of the use of reference works. An encyclopedia at the elbow is the handiest of guides, answering at call innumerable questions and illuminating a multitude of subjects.

'The NEW STANDARD seems to me to be admirably adapted for general home use, for busy men and women, as well as for school and college students. The wide and general desire for knowledge, and the means of gratifying such desire, are the bases of intelligence as well as material prosperity.'

W. J. Bryan

Have You Received A Set of Books Like This?

THE BOSTON AMERICAN is distributing to the public several thousand complete sets of the NEW STANDARD ENCYCLOPEDIA, in 12 massive volumes. Over half the number has already been allotted, and the offer will soon be withdrawn. If you need an Encyclopedia, either for yourself or for your children, don't let an opportunity like this slip by.

The American's New Enterprise

THE OBJECT IN DISTRIBUTING THIS GREAT ENCYCLOPEDIA is purely educational. We believe that there should be an Encyclopedia in every home; not one of those cheap, trashy affairs, rehashed from foreign sources, but a first-class American Encyclopedia, accurate, up-to-date and written in the most interesting and readable style.

Such an Encyclopedia is a whole library in itself. It gives in condensed and digested form the collected wisdom of all time. Knowledge spells Success. The men that get ahead are those who have a wide fund of general information. Most of us never had the advantage of a college education. Possibly we are better off for it, but we can with a little application and persistence get the equivalent of a college education out of a good, modern, up-to-date Encyclopedia.

AN ENCYCLOPEDIA FOR EVERY HOME

Former Prices Prohibitive.

Heretofore the best Encyclopedias have been put on the market at abnormally high figures, ranging from $60 to $120—prices which only the very rich could afford to pay. In order to overcome this obstacle, the American has made arrangements with the publishers of the NEW STANDARD ENCYCLOPEDIA for an entire edition of that splendid work, which will be distributed to the public at about the actual cost of manufacture, and on terms within the reach of very income.

Direct From Binder to You.
The Co-Operative Plan.

In entering upon this great educational enterprise, the American acts as a purchasing agent, representing both the publishers and the public. On account of our immense purchasing and distributing powers, we were able to guarantee the sale of a very large edition. The plan is to distribute it by means of a great Co-operative Club, which will entirely eliminate all middle profits. Complete sets are shipped direct from the binders to purchasers. As a result of this great saving, those who join the Club are able to secure this newest and best reference library at a price heretofore unheard of in the annals of publishing.

After looking over the field carefully for the best Encyclopedia, The New Standard was selected for the following reasons:

It is the best Encyclopedia for busy men, for home use, and for school and college students.
It is the work of more than a thousand scholars, professional and business men.
It is full and scholarly in the treatment of subjects, but clear and simple in language.
It is thoroughly up to date, having just been completed at enormous expense.
It is purely American in origin, and in conformity to American educational ideas.
It is the best Encyclopedia for reading and home study.

Description of the Set.

12 MASSIVE VOLUMES.	900,000 TOPICS.
8,500 PAGES.	3,000 ILLUSTRATIONS.
55,000 ARTICLES.	150 MAPS AND COLORED PLATES.

The equivalent of 100,000 volumes boiled down and condensed.

What It Means to You.

The possession of this great Encyclopedia means a great deal to you and your family. It is the most important set of books you could possibly purchase, as it gives you complete and definite information on every subject—history, science, geography, politics, religion, commerce, philosophy, etc.—written in words that all can understand. Any one can get a liberal education out of a good Encyclopedia.

For the children, it answers every question that comes into their inquiring minds, for older people, it serves as a complete home university, supplying the latest and most authoritative information on every subject.

Not Hard to Read.

THE NEW STANDARD ENCYCLOPEDIA differs from other reference works previously published in that its articles are not technical, or hard to read, but are written in a simple, clear and interesting manner. The aim of the editors was to eliminate so far as possible all minute details and weighty opinions, giving all the facts, but the facts only. The advantage of such a work is that it will be read and enjoyed by every member of the family, where larger and more cumbersome sets would lie untouched on the shelves.

HOW TO GET A SET:

It is impossible in this limited space to describe fully the plans and purposes of the Club and the plan of sale whereby members may have the complete Encyclopedia delivered to them at once, and pay for it at the rate of a few cents a day. If you are interested, write to-day for full particulars. Do not put it off until to-morrow; to-morrow may be too late. Only one edition has been contracted for, and when it has been distributed no more applications will be received. This Club was organized for your benefit. No one will be to blame but yourself if you do not get an Encyclopedia now while the opportunity is here. Tear off the coupon and mail it to us to-day. An opportunity like this may never occur again in your lifetime.

FREE—To Those Who Apply Promptly—FREE

If you have no Encyclopedia at all, or if you have one that is old and unsatisfactory, mail the attached coupon, which, as you will note, is not an application for membership, but simply a request for information, and you will receive, free of charge, a beautiful booklet containing full page duogravure portraits of the Mikado of Japan and the Emperor of Russia, double page maps of Japan and Corea and the new Republic of Panama, besides many beautiful colored plates, sample pages, showing the text, etc. With the booklet we will send full particulars about the Club.

This Offer is to responsible men and women only—no children need apply.

PATTERN DEPARTMENT, Hearst's Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Stylish and Pretty Blouses, Frocks and Suits, Specially Selected for this Fashion Supplement and Easy to Make at Home Yourself

No. 2825—The pretty shirt waist shown herewith is one of the newest designs, and its simplicity and good style will commend it to the well-dressed woman. It is a strictly tailored one, with two inch-wide tucks turned toward the shoulder and stitched to yoke depth. The pattern, price 10 cents, is in 6 sizes, from 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

No. 2727—The design shows a combination corset cover and underskirt for ladies and misses. The price of the complete pattern is 15 cents. The fulness may be confined at the waist with ribbon-drawn beading. The bottom may be made with a hem or flounce. The latter is tucked or plain and finished with lace or embroidered edge. The quantity of material required for medium size is 4¾ yards 36 inches wide. The pattern is in 4 sizes, from 30 to 42 inches bust.

No. 2348—There is nothing which embodies more youthful becomingness than the sailor blouse. The accompanying design shows one of the most fetching of the new style sailor blouses. The chemisette is removable. White or blue French flannel or linen will make this blouse very attractive. For a medium size 2¾ yards of material 36 inches wide are required. The pattern, price 10 cents, is cut in 6 sizes, from 32 to 42 inches bust.

No. 2739—A charming surplice waist is shown here. The long puff of the sleeve interrupted by double shirrings at the elbow forms one of the most fetching of the popular puff sleeves. The chemisette of all over embroidery, lace or silk is removable, so that different ones may be worn with the same waist, having either high or round neck. In the medium size 4¼ yards of material 36 inches wide are required. The pattern, price 10 cents, is in 6 sizes, from 32 to 42 inches bust.

No. 2844—The dressy waist shown be... lends itself to proper development in the soft w... like ... of veiling, silks such as taffetas, pongee or the b... crepe mandarin ... closing in ... the sight fulness in the f... tucks at the ... and a few ... a medium size this waist ... wide. No. 2751—Here is a dainty little seven-gored ... skirt closing at the ... an inverted plait. It was designed ... for school wear. Made up in dark ... blue ... or a soft mixed ... it will fill every requirement of the school gown. For the medium size 6¼ yards of ... material are required. The skirt pattern, price 10 cents, is in ... 12 to 16 years.

No. 2811—Here is a graceful frock for a tiny girl. The fulness is confined on the shoulders in tucks, and the full skirt is attached to the little waist, while the suspenders can be used or not as desired. A chemisette of lace completes the dress. The pattern also provides for a V-neck and elbow sleeves. The pattern, price 10 cents, is in 4 sizes, from 4 to 10 years.

Nos. 2780 and 2715—Here is a pretty combination of sack and skirt easy to make at home. The neck may be made high or in pompadour shape, and the sleeves full or three-quarter length. The quantity of material required for the medium size is 9½ yards of 36-inch material. The pattern, price 10 cents, is in 6 sizes, from 32 to 42 inches bust. Pattern No. 2715 is in 6 sizes, from 20 to 30 inches waist.

No. 2810—Smartness and style recommend the frock here illustrated. It is suitable for every-day wear or dressed-up occasions. Both waist and full skirt are tucked, and a soft silk tie with an Eton collar finishes the neck. The material required for medium size is 4½ yards 44 inches wide. The pattern, price 10 cents, is in 5 sizes, from 6 to 14 years.

Nos. 2860 and 2800—Here is a really stunning new bolero costume. To be smart during the coming season the well-dressed woman must have a bolero suit. The jaunty bolero costume shown here is one of the new designs recently seen on the Riviera. The whole was developed in green and blue checked Panama cloth with [redacted] of green silk with applied embroidery of blues and greens. It is simple in construction, and the woman clever with her needle may have as fetching a costume with little expense. This suit in medium size requires 7 yards of 44-inch material. The waist pattern, No. 2860, is in 6 sizes, 32 to 40 inches bust. The skirt pattern, No. 2800, is in 6 sizes, 20 to 30 inches waist. The price of the two patterns is 20 cents.

No. 2829—Every woman realizes the necessity of possessing several separate waists of good style and becomingness. The accompanying design shows one of the new Spring blouse models developed in a golden brown Louisine. The triple plaits extending over the shoulder give becoming lines and abundance of fulness, while the chemisette of cream all-over lace relieves the solid dark effect. In a medium size this waist requires 3⅞ yards of 27-inch material. The pattern, price 10 cents, is in 6 sizes, from 32 to 42 inches bust.

Please fill in the blank spaces carefully and correctly in order to insure prompt delivery of patterns ...

THE "1905" SHIRT WAIST SUIT AND A SMART SEPARATE COAT

HERE is the smart new "1905" shirt waist suit, undoubtedly one of the prettiest variations of this style of suit ever designed. The price of the two patterns, waist and skirt, is 20 cents. The popularity of the short skirt has brought into favor the many-gored modes, which form ripples or flutes at the lower edge, the smooth effect about the hips making it becoming to stout as well as slender figures. Wide tucks, standing out on the shoulders, lend a pleasing feature to the waist. The chemisette tucker of lace matches the collar and generous cuffs. The quantity of material required for the waist, medium size, is 3 yards 42 inches wide; and for the skirt, 5¼ yards. The waist pattern, No. 2708, is in six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust; the skirt pattern, No. 2707, is in seven sizes, 20 to 32 inches waist.

IT would be difficult to imagine how the woman of to-day could get along without the much favored separate coat. Worn with the shirt waist and skirt, it carries with it an indisputable air of smartness. The accompanying illustration gives an excellent idea of just how pretty and smart looking the coat really is. It is most becoming for a tall woman. The number of the pattern is 2757 and the price ten cents. The fronts may be cut-away in shape, and the vest omitted if desired. Made in fine black broadcloth, with waistcoat of same material, or a light blue or white and a neat little velvet collar, this model will prove a pleasing accessory to any woman's wardrobe. For the medium size 4½ yards of 44-inch material are required. The pattern is in six sizes, from 32 to 42 inches bust.

THE WEATHER.

For Boston and vicinity: Sunday rain and colder toward evening; Monday fair, brisk to fresh westerly winds, becoming northerly.

Did President Roosevelt Scorn the Declaration of Independence

BOSTON AMERICAN TO PROF. MUNSTERBERG

Professor Hugo Munsterberg, [illegible] Detroit, Mich.

[illegible] Roosevelt [illegible] called [illegible]

BOSTON AMERICAN

HIS REPLY.

Detroit, Mich., March 18.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.:

There is not a word of truth in the statement that I have said that President Roosevelt called the Declaration a mass of glittering generalities. These words were used by another gentleman [illegible] meeting but not by me. The whole affair was a [illegible] club meeting, and I did not say anything concerning the President at all. [illegible] the Constitution which is not contained in my book on Americans. The reports are a grotesque distortion.

PROF. MUNSTERBERG IS QUOTED AS SAYING SO.

Harvard Professor Says He Depended on Privacy When Making Address in Detroit, and Deprecates Publicity

Did President Roosevelt say that the Declaration of Independence was "a mass of glittering generalities?"

Professor Hugo Munsterberg, of the chair of psychology at Harvard, was quoted as having declared in a speech in Detroit that President Roosevelt made this remark to him.

In the interest of accuracy the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN wired to Professor Munsterberg, in Detroit, asking exactly what he said on this point.

In his reply to this question Professor Munsterberg says that the words were used by another gentleman at a private dinner, but he does not say, as reference to the answer printed alongside the picture will show, just what words he did use.

Now the question is: What did Professor Munsterberg say on this point?

Called It "Generalities."

Below is given the original dispatch from Detroit. In it Professor Munsterberg is quoted as saying: "President Roosevelt told me, I regard the Declaration of Independence as made up of glittering generalities."

In addition to this original dispatch a second from Detroit is [illegible] shows that the newspapers of Detroit were not able to ascertain just what Professor Munsterberg did say. He takes defence behind the fact that he was at a private dinner and presumed that his words would not be published.

Here is the original dispatch:

Detroit, March 18.—Professor Hugo Munsterberg, head of the Psychology Department of Harvard University, friend of President Roosevelt, created a sensation at a dinner given by the Cosmopolitan Club by assailing all Republican forms of government.

He is quoted as declaring: "President Roosevelt told me, 'I regard the Declaration of Independence as made up of glittering generalities.' You will never hear me quote the Declaration of Independence."

Professor Munsterberg is said to have asked the reporters present not to quote him on this.

The report says he was bitterly disputed by other speakers who refused to believe that President Roosevelt had uttered such an expression.

Here is the second dispatch received late last night:

Munsterberg Talks.

Detroit, Mich., March 18.—Professor Munsterberg has been protected from reporters all day in his quarters in the hotel. At 6 o'clock entrance was gained and he was asked as to his authority for the statement. After inveighing against the local reporters for quoting him as they did, he said:

"I have already said in my book that President Roosevelt never quoted the Declaration of Independence in any of his speeches" and the professor turned to the page.

"But did you say that in your speech

Santo Domingo Inquiry May Be Ordered as Result of Mrs. Reader's Revelations.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 18.—Mrs. Eleanor Lewis Reader, thirty-one years of age, once a typewriter, later practical head of a syndicate that could secure big concessions from the smaller governments, including one contract that involved five million dollars, has stirred up the United States Senate and exposed what Senator Morgan declares to be [illegible] connected with the San Domingo [illegible] of 1903. Now this young woman has brought herself before the august Senate. This statement Mr. Cromwell vigorously denies.

Senator Morgan, who is interested perhaps because Mrs. Reader is from Alabama, wants a Senate inquiry into this affair with San Domingo. KANSAS FORCES THE WARFARE ON STANDARD OIL MONOPOLY

MISS TARBELL SAYS NO TIME SHOULD BE LOST.

Tells Kansas Oil Producers That They Must Adopt Business Methods and Not Waste Effort in Mere Talk

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Independence, Kan., March 18.—At the biggest convention of the kind ever held in the State the oil producers of Kansas to-day decided upon the ways and means for carrying on the war against the Standard Oil trust for the next two years.

The organization effected early in the Winter, at Topeka, to fight for legislation, was made permanent, and headquarters will be maintained here during the campaign which is to be made before the next meeting of the Legislature.

J. M. Parker, secretary of the State association, will have charge of the work here, and H. E. West, president of the association, will keep his headquarters at [illegible]. A noticeable feature of the convention to-day was the fact that it was more like an assemblage of business men than a mere gathering [illegible].

The speeches delivered were devoted to the business end of the situation. While the Standard Oil Company was abused to an extent which would satisfy the bitterest enemy of the monopoly, the producers [illegible] lost sight of the fact that [illegible] to win the fight [illegible].

Governor Hoch Present.

Despite the inclement weather which has prevailed in this section of the State for forty-eight hours, an unusually large crowd attended the meeting. Every train arriving this morning brought its quota of producers and sympathizers and the little city was filled to overflowing long before noon.

[illegible] of invitations sent out by the producers [illegible] ment of the convention [illegible] who [illegible] was especially well received by the producers [illegible] had [illegible] arrived [illegible] this morning was almost as much of an attraction as the Governor. This is her first trip into the Kansas oil fields and the producers, who are familiar with her writings, were very cordial in their [illegible].

[illegible] visitors were Senator Dumont Smith, Representative P. P. Campbell, Representative Charles F. Scott, Senator W. S. Fitzpatrick, Lieutenant-Governor Hayes, State Treasurer Kelly, Speaker [illegible] Baker, F. B. Jewett, Warden of [illegible] Penitentiary, ex-Governor [illegible] of North Dakota, and Frank S. Monnett of Ohio.

Read Miss Tarbell's Letter.

Invitations were sent by the Oil Producers' Association to John O'Brien and President W. J. Young of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, but both sent letters of regret.

"Second, it puts a stop to the prohibitory and discriminating rates on oil freight.

"Third, it aims to stop the cutthroat competition in the markets.

[illegible]

Must Get Down to Business.

[illegible]

"It is keeping quiet and doing business [illegible]

[illegible]

Must "Play the Oil Game."

[illegible]

"If you are to succeed in your oil fight you must follow up legislation by doing business and sawing wood, as we say in the East. My advice to the Kansas oil producers, who are dissatisfied with the Standard Oil Company, is to play the oil game as well as the Standard Oil Company plays it, and play it like gentlemen, with due regard for the rights of men something the Standard has never done. When you do this you will succeed in what you have undertaken. Stop sizzling and play the game is my advice. IDA M. TARBELL."

In his speech before the convention Governor Hoch said in part: "The issue in [illegible] defined and clearly understood. [illegible] that this is not a war upon the Standard Oil Company [illegible] upon its methods. It is not [illegible] upon this great corporation. It is [illegible]

"It is not an attempt to drive the Standard Oil Company out of this State. [illegible] compel it to be decent. This great corporation has invested large sums [illegible] this State. It is entirely welcome here. We would not jeopardize a single dollar of its investment, nor rob it of a penny of legitimate profit.

Fight Till Victory Is Won.

"We do not protest against its presence here. We do not envy it its prosperity, we [illegible] protest against a monopoly that [illegible] producers and customers alike [illegible] and nether millstones [illegible] greedy self [illegible] reserves of wealth, with which [illegible] has enclosed this State and [illegible]

"And in this contest we will put every dollar of our material resources, every bit of our manhood and womanhood, and every particle of governmental power, and we will fight it out on this line regardless of difficulties or temporary defeats, until victory shall finally crown our efforts.

"Let me in the second place emphasize and re-emphasize the statement I have repeatedly made hitherto, that this is not [illegible] but the very reverse of [illegible] A student for many years of historical and philosophical socialism I have emerged from these investigations thoroughly and profoundly convinced that socialism is a sporadic which would put to social world and the moral world also ultimately to sleep.

"It will dwarf humanity and retard all progress. This oil refinery movement of ours, I repeat, is not a socialistic movement. It has the semblance of socialism but its soul is that of competition.

Will Spring Up Like Magic.

"Its guard is socialistic, but its body competitive. It is not like socialism, an attempt to destroy competition, but an attempt to make competition probable and [illegible]

"It is not an attempt to create a monopoly; it is an attempt to destroy one. In my judgment, Mr. Rockefeller, and I mention him merely in his representative capacity, is doing more to multiply Socialists and make socialism popular than all the professional propagandists of this fascinating fallacy in the United States are doing, and the Standard Oil Company is in its essential character the most gigantic socialistic concern in the country.

"Its aim and end is the aim and end of socialism, destruction of competition, and in our battle against it we know we are battling for and not against the competitive system, and no superficial alarmists can convince us to the contrary.

"If we succeed in this movement, and I believe we will, independent refineries will spring up like magic, welcomed and fostered by the State, and when they shall have increased in number and in productive possibility so that they can stand alone and compete in the open market with every competitor the State will be glad to close its refinery and leave this business to private enterprise, where it legitimately belongs."

A Fight for the People.

Letter from W. R. Hearst to the citizens of Kansas, who are striving to overthrow the Oil Trust

H. E. WEST, President the Kansas Oil Producers' Association, Auditorium Hall, Independence, Kan.:

I consider it a great honor to be invited to address your meeting, and through you the people of Kansas.

Kansas to-day is making a fight, not for herself and her citizens alone, but for all the people of the United States.

The fight in which Kansas leads is the fight upon which this nation's very existence is based.

At the end of the eighteenth century the people of America refused to be taxed without their consent. They fought and won their fight. Now at the beginning of the twentieth century the people of the United States again refuse to be taxed without their consent, and the fight which began in the East more than a hundred years ago begins now in the West in Kansas.

The men of the Revolution would not be taxed against their will by a one-man power across the ocean.

The people of Kansas refuse to be taxed without their consent by a one-man power in this country.

There is not a State in the Union but feels gratitude to the people of Kansas for their courage in throwing off the yoke of Trust government. For every State in the Union suffers from that same misgovernment by the Trusts, and by the very Trust that Kansas is fighting.

In New York, Boston and Chicago the public is fighting against extortion, based on monopoly and resulting in a tax on every household.

The gas and electric lighting companies of these cities are simply a branch of the Standard Oil that is fought in Kansas.

Where the oil is produced the producer is opposed by the Standard Oil, and where light is distributed in gas or in lamps the consumer is oppressed by the same Trust.

The fight that you have so well begun in Kansas is not a mere effort to secure profit for individual oil producers. It is not a mere effort to reduce the cost of living to the consumer of Trust products.

The fight against the Trusts and the combinations of trusts is primarily a fight to maintain, or rather to restore, American ideals.

What are these ideals? First, the independence of the citizen, permitting him to live subject to no man's will or control, with power to go where he likes, do what he likes, benefit himself and his business, and in so doing add to the prosperity of the whole country.

Second, equality before the law.

American Ideals Attacked.

Third, equal opportunities for all, which means the opportunity for ability to obtain proper recognition and reward; thus contributing to the fullest extent to the development of the nation.

Individual independence, equality before the law and equal opportunity—those are the fundamental American ideals, and every one of them is attacked by that system of Trust government against which Kansas has rebelled.

What becomes of individual independence under a system which subordinates to its will the workmen, the small business man, the producer and the consumer, all working, producing, buying, existing, subservient to the will of the Trusts? Is that man independent who must conduct his business subject to rules made for him by the Trusts, buying and selling only what they permit him to buy and sell, buying and selling at prices which they fix?

Is the producer independent who must sell his product only to the Trust at prices fixed by the Trust, under penalty of absolute ruin?

Is the workman independent who can sell his labor in an entire industry only to one employer, and who must accept what pay is offered him, with the alternative of idleness or ruinous strikes?

What about equality before the law? Does it really exist?

Trusts are beginning to control the legislative bodies which make the laws and the judicial offices which construe and apply them.

Chicago workmen are enjoined against doing certain things. They violate the injunction and are immediately put in jail without trial by jury or the right to appeal.

The Chicago Beef Trust, enjoined against doing certain things, violates the injunction also. No one is arrested. The trust owners are invited to appear at their leisure and explain matters.

Is that equality before the law?

Is it equality before the laws when the man who steals a dollar goes to jail always, and when the trust owner, who breaks the criminal anti-trust law, stealing millions, goes to jail never?

Does any man maintain that equality of opportunity exists in this country?

Crushed by the Trust.

You oil producers of Kansas cannot put your produce before the people of the United States without being crushed out of business by trust competition.

What happens to the individual oil producer happens more and more to individual effort in all directions.

The trust control of railroads, boats, pipe lines, in short, of all means of distribution puts the producer at the mercy of the Transportation Trust.

Industries are absolutely monopolized, the most important in the country. To attempt competition means to be underbid absolutely and ruinously by a Trust that can afford to undersell or give away goods in one place, simply raising the price in other places where its control of the market is undisputed.

Passive endurance of wrong is the curse of a nation, and the greatest menace to free institutions.

The quality of patient submission has been displayed to an alarming extent by the American people of late.

"Let me make some money and let him who will rule me," seems to have become the American business man's motto.

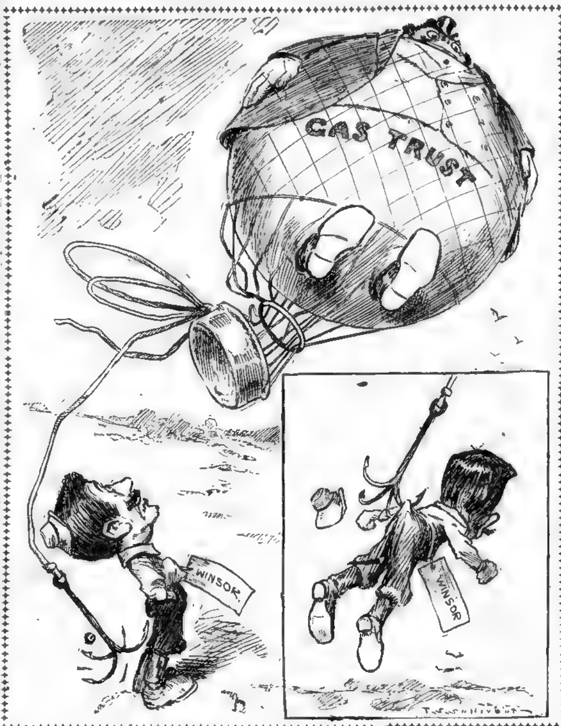
But the country learns that in Kansas at least the American spirit of independence and revolt is not dead.

This country has not been such a failure as to suggest giving up those very principles on which the national greatness is founded.

I congratulate you on your fight to maintain the American idea, and I know that all American citizens join me in the hope that you may achieve the success that your courage deserves.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

GAS TRUST MAGNATES FEAR POWER OF PUBLIC OPINION



WATCHING THE GAS BALLOON GO UP

ROBERT WINSOR AND ASSOCIATES ARE IN GLOOM.

Beginning to Realize That Legislature Cannot Be Relied Upon to Back Them Up in Their Capitalization Scheme

After hearing a chain of arguments several weeks long from economists, citizens' leagues, business men, attorneys and representatives of thousands of private citizens, on the one hand, and the Boston Gas Trust standing alone on the other, the Committee on Public Lighting of the Legislature expects to finish its hearings during the coming week, and make its report to the Legislature within a week thereafter.

"The committee hopes to finish the hearings Tuesday," said Chairman Cole of the House committee, "and will surely finish on Wednesday. We shall then be able to go over the facts and arguments carefully and should be able to present our reports sometime the following week."

The general feeling on the part of the public that in the light of all the agitation and publicity that has attended the hearings on the "gas grab bill," there is little probability that a majority of the Legislature will be willing to go on record as favoring it, has chased from the faces of the Gas Trust members and their servants the smiles that seemed permanently set there when the fight was young. During the past week the realization that all their expenditure of time and money, all their united lobby, might prove naught against the weight of public sentiment has made them much more serious than in the early days of the battle.

Not as Suave as Usual.

Even Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody & Co., organizer of the Massachusetts Gas Companies and recognized as being one of the nerviest operators of stock concerns in New England, is a little less suave than usual when he speaks of the gas fight.

Mr. Winsor may have the feeling that he, himself, is somewhat to blame for the publicity that has attended his firm's scheme to water the stock of the Consolidated Gas Company, for it was his letters to investors, signed by the name of the firm and showing the $1,300,000 earnings of Massachusetts Gas stocks during the year past, that first supplied to Mayor Collins and to the hundreds of citizens who requested the BOSTON AMERICAN to take up the fight, the necessary evidence that proved that the price of gas in Boston should be reduced. In the light of these letters, which were put before the Gas Commissioners as evidence, the Gas Trust could not make a strong fight, and was obliged to fall back upon flat refusals to produce books, simple and unsubstantiated denials of the facts produced by Professor Bemis, the BOSTON AMERICAN'S great gas expert, and smooth but unconvincing arguments; and the admission by the Gas Commission of the case as the Trust desired to put it in and had to put it in, after these letters, was the strongest factor in arousing public indignation and consequently bringing the whole issue before the Legislature backed by overwhelming popular sentiment.

The movement for legislative reform of existing law, especially for the repeal or substantial amendment of Chapter 417 of the Acts of 1903, which, when first suggested by the BOSTON AMERICAN soon after the citizens began to discover the attitude of apparent hostility on the part of a portion of the Gas Commission, was laughed at by the gas interests, has developed until it has assumed proportions never before reached in any movement for proper laws in the State. Not a day passes now that some new citizens' association or newspaper somewhere in the State does not come out in favor of the anti-stock watering precedents of Massachusetts and against the "gas grab law."

May Call on Commission.

"I have never heard it claimed," said a Senator from the western part of the State Friday, "that the anti-stock watering laws of 1894 were improper. Yet if we allow this Chapter 417 to stand upon the statutes we should, to be consistent, repeal those anti-stock watering laws. There is no reason why we should make an exception of the Massachusetts Gas Companies. If stock watering is right for them it should be right for all the corporations in the State; if it is against the policy of the State in other cases, it should be so in the case of the gas interests."

It is common belief at the State House that before the Committee on Public Lighting makes its report it will ask the members of the Gas Commission to appear before it and give their opinions. If this is the case, Chairman Barker, who originally recommended the passage of Chapter 417, will have an opportunity to explain his reasons, General Schaff, who has stood for a "square deal" during all the hearings before the commission, will have an opportunity to present his ideas of a fair capitalization of the consolidated gas companies, while Commissioner George will have the chance, if he desires it, to assure the legislators, as he did the representatives of the citizens of the State at one of the gas hearings, that "the law says we shall settle this thing, not the people."

Given Thorough Publicity.

The general public has had an opportunity to become thoroughly familiar with the actual facts in this question; much more familiar than is usually the case with matters before the Legislature. There has never been a piece of attempted bad legislation in Massachusetts so thoroughly exposed. The publicity given the arguments of the able attorneys who have appeared representing the Public Franchise League, the United Improvement Associations of Boston, the public, through the BOSTON AMERICAN, and other individuals and organizations, has made it possible for "the man on the street" to talk intelligently on this question of gas capitalization and its effect on a reduction in the price of gas.

Of late many so-called "conservative" interests, some of them on State street and connected with banking and other financial institutions, recognizing that the precedents established by [illegible] would make all Massachusetts corporation securities less valuable, have come out in favor of a repeal or at least an amendment that shall limit the total amount of capital stock to the aggregate of the constituent companies.

It seems to be a general opinion about the State that the Committee on Public Lighting is made up of men a majority of whom are beyond the reach of the tremendously powerful gas lobby that has been gathered to defeat repeal. Various sections of the State have expressed their opinions so strongly that even if this were not so it would be a brazen politician who would brave popular sentiment after he had voted against his constituents in cold blood for the Gas Trust.

Expect Boston to Be Solid.

It is confidently expected that the vote of the Boston delegation will be solidly in favor of repeal or substantial amendment when the question comes before the Legislature as a whole. As a leader at City Hall said one day last week:

"Even allowing that there were any men in the Boston membership of Senate or House who were susceptible to gas influences, it isn't likely they would care to deliberately commit political suicide. And the chances of re-election of any man who threw his constituents down in this matter would be pretty slim."

"These matters are of the greatest importance and interest," says Senator Moseley, chairman of the public lighting committee, "and the committee will try to do justice to all parties. I always vote on questions the way I think is proper and right. I voted for the picketing bill, against the strongest pressure to vote against it from big concerns in my district, and I shall use the same freedom with the gas question."

70 CARS TAKEN OFF SUBWAY DIVISION, PUBLIC SUFFER.

Order of Boston Elevated Company Results in Inconvenience to Women Shoppers. Standing Room Only Rule

By an order of the Boston Elevated Company, seventy surface cars were yesterday morning taken from the subway division of the North Cambridge, Arsenal street and Watertown lines and run through Main street through the West End to Bowdoin, Adams and Scollay Squares. Hundreds of women shoppers were forced to wait from five to fifteen minutes in Cambridge for cars bound for the subway.

The new order was made at the instance of the Railroad Commissioners, who, it is claimed, desired to do away with the blockade of surface cars along Boylston street, between the entrance to the subway and Massachusetts avenue.

When told of the complaint made by Cambridge people throughout the first day of the new order of things, Harvey White, representing General William A. Bancroft, president of the Boston Elevated Company, said last night to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN:

"The change was made in the hope of relieving the constant blockade of cars along Boylston street. We had been informed that there also was a demand among the people of North Cambridge and Watertown for a direct route to Scollay and Adams squares, and so we decided upon the plan which was put into practice Saturday morning.

"Cars should still continue to run through Cambridge and Boylston streets at frequent intervals to accommodate the crowds."

Throughout the day yesterday every car leaving Harvard square for the subway was crowded with people before it began its trip down town, and crowds of people were standing at each corner waiting for cars that contained standing room only. Complaints were heard on all sides.

SUPERIOR MERIT.

Remarkable Curative Properties of a Remedy for Indigestion and Stomach Weakness.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a preparation for the cure of dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion and stomach trouble, owes its great success as a cure for these troubles to the fact that it is prepared for disease and weakness of the stomach and digestive organs only, and is not recommended or advised for any other disease.

It is not a cure-all, but for any stomach trouble it is undoubtedly the safest most sensible remedy that can be advised with the prospect of a permanent cure. It is prepared in tablet form, pleasant to taste, composed of vegetable and fruit essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal, every one of which act effectively in digesting the food eaten, thereby resting and invigorating the weak stomach, rest is nature's cure for any disease, but you cannot rest the stomach unless you put into it something that will do its work or assist in the digestion of food.

That is exactly what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do, one grain of the digestive principle contained in them will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs or similar wholesome foods, they will digest the food whether the stomach is in working order or not, thereby nourishing the body and resting the stomach at the same time, and rest and nourishment is nature's cure for any weakness.

In persons run down in flesh and appetite these tablets build up the strength and increase flesh, because they digest flesh-forming food which the weak stomach cannot do, they increase the flow of gastric juice and prevent fermentation, acidity and sour watery risings.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be found at all drug stores at 50 cents per package.

TALK OF BRINGING SUITS AGAINST TEACHER.

Headmaster of Newton Street School, Who Permitted the Proceeding, Tells the Story of Affair to Sunday American Girls of the West Newton street High and Latin School will to-morrow ask an explanation from Miss Emma George, a teacher in that school, of the finding of a watch, alleged to have been stolen in a classroom and because of which nearly seventy-five girls in the school were searched. Later she found the watch at home, it is asserted. Parents of various girls in the school threaten to get legal redress for what they consider the indignity placed upon their daughters.

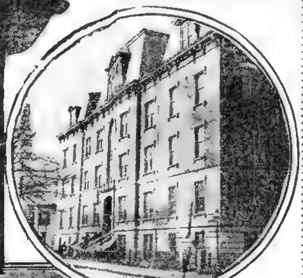
Miss George, who lives at No. 474 Massachusetts avenue, declined positively last night to make any statement to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN as to how the watch was found. She is prostrated at her home, partly because of the affair, and sent out this signed statement to a reporter:

I am not willing to write or give any information on the subject as far as I am concerned in it. As far as the school is concerned I do not feel authorized to do so.

Many of the girls who were searched suffered so acutely from what they consider an insult and a reflection upon their honesty that they are confined to their homes. To-morrow, however, says Miss Jennie Loitman, of No. 70 Allen street, who with sister Rosa was searched, will seek to ascertain how and under what circumstances Miss George found the watch.



Question of Right.

The question of the right of making such a search is now being investigated by the parents of the girls. They maintain that the principal of the school had no authority to suggest a course which would lay all open to suspicion unless they consented. Now talk of suits against Miss George and Headmaster Tetlow, who permitted the search, is rife among parents. ... Mr. Tetlow at his home ... Roxbury, and ... School. ... Several have said they will consult lawyers to see how far the rights of teachers are superior to those of pupils. The teachers who, it is said, actually made the search are Misses Anna Shorey, Elizabeth Richardson, Laura Richardson and Miss Foster.

An eminent attorney of Boston stated last night that the parents of the girls in the school could seek and obtain redress in the courts for the action of Miss George and Mr. Tetlow. Mr. Tetlow's statement that the search was not compulsory, he said, was not in itself sufficient to absolve the headmaster and the teacher from liability in court; the mere fact that the persons in authority had suggested such a search compelled the girls to submit. Battery and false imprisonment were two of the points he brought out in his statement, made exclusively to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Meanwhile the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has obtained statements from Mr. Tetlow, Miss Loitman and Acting Superintendent Menard, which are given below.

By John Tetlow,

Headmaster of the Newton Street Girls' High and Latin School.

On Wednesday, March 15, one of the teachers of the Girls' High School, after leaving recitation room 8A, where she had been conducting a lesson, and returning to her classroom, missed her watch and asked one of the girls of the section which had just been reciting to return to room 8A to get it. The girl who went on this errand failed to find the watch on the table, where her teacher supposed she had left it, and reported that the watch had disappeared.

In the meantime another section under a different teacher had entered room 8A, so that appearances indicated that some member of this second section must have taken the watch. The head teacher, without making any accusation whatever, indeed, after expressly disclaiming the intention of making any accusation, pointed out that the shortest and surest way of establishing the innocence of all the members of the section would be for them to submit to be searched, a suggestion that was promptly and cordially acquiesced in by the girls themselves. The watch was not found.

On reaching home the teacher who supposed that her watch had been taken found it lying on her dressing table. She had not taken it to school at all.

By Miss Jennie Loitman

Of No. 70 Allen street, one of the girls who were searched.

On Monday, the thirty girls who were searched in room 1B on account of the disappearance of Miss Emma George's watch will, in a body, go to Miss Shorey and demand an explanation of the affair.

My sister Rosa and I were in the class of girls who were searched.

Of course we had to say we were willing for if we refused it would look strange. Though we considered it an insult to suggest such a thing.

By this time it was 12:20 and the recess gong sounded. We had to give up our twenty-five minutes for lunch. Miss Shorey and Miss E. Richardson locked the doors, searched each girl thoroughly. They patted our pompadours, looked in our blouse fronts and shoe tops. They looked in our lunch boxes one by one as we filed out to eat our lunch, which they finally gave us time for eating. Some of the girls were very indignant.

Next morning Miss Shorey told us that Miss George had found her watch under circumstances that exonerated every one of us.

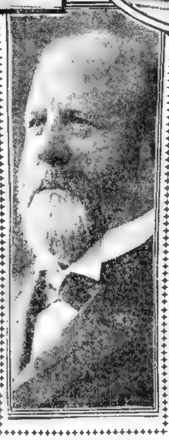
By S. J. Menard,

Acting Superintendent of Schools.

All we know about the trouble in the Girls' High and Latin School is what we have read in the newspapers. No information has come to us through official channels.

No complaints have been received from any of the parents of any of the students, and I have received no report of the occurrences referred to in the newspapers from the head master.

Under the circumstances I must decline to discuss the subject.



SEARCHED AND SEARCHERS.

Miss Emma George, ... Newton school teacher whose lost watch caused the searching of a class of ... girls is shown in upper part of the picture. Below are Miss Jennie Loitman and Miss Rosa Loitman, two of the girls who were searched. On the right ... is Headmaster John W. Tetlow who ordered the search.

Lawyer Says the Schoolgirls Have Action Against Teachers

"Any pupil of the Girls' High and Latin School on West Newton street who was detained and searched by the direction of Teacher George or Principal Tetlow, in an effort to recover the watch of Miss George, which was supposed to have been stolen, has an action for damages at law against both Miss George and Mr. Tetlow.

"To detain them after school house, except for school purposes, was an improper restraint, and constitutes false imprisonment; to search them was in law a battery, and for both damages may be recovered.

"The headmaster's statement that no girl was detained by compulsion is not material. The compulsion need not be physical, but merely by suggestion, and be just as effective. The master or teacher of a school, by a simple order, being in authority, may restrain a pupil of her liberty as absolutely as if the doors were locked and she were forcibly searched."—Statement of a Boston lawyer to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Miss George Unwilling to Give Information

COL. TAYLOR, FORMER BOSTON MAN, SHOT IN INDIANA.

Slain by Attorney for Wife, Whom He Had Threatened to Kill on Sight—Grand Army Man, Youngest Union Soldier

Special to the Sunday American.

Vincennes, Ind., March 18.—Colonel Akers J. Taylor, formerly of Boston, where he married Hulda Carr, was shot and killed to-day by Louis A. Meyer, attorney for Mrs. Taylor, who sought a divorce. She had her husband arrested for alleged misconduct and after his conviction he resigned from the City Council and went, it is supposed, to Boston. He was met on the street there last month by a Vincennes electrical engineer. A month ago he returned here and reopened his saloon. It is asserted that he telephoned Meyer and Samuel Williams, national populist chairman, also an attorney for Mrs. Taylor, that he would kill them on sight. He met Meyer as the latter left the postoffice, beat him unmercifully and knocked him down. Meyer shot Taylor twice at close range and the wounded man died in fifteen minutes.

Taylor enlisted in an Indiana regiment when fourteen years old and claimed he was the youngest Union soldier in the country. He was a member of the G. A. R., the Eagles, and a prominent Democratic politician. For twenty years he was in the circus business. He was born in Kentucky and was fifty-five years old.

EARL ROSEBERY AND REDMOND DIFFER

London, March 19.—Earl Rosebery, in a speech made at Esher last night, declared that if John Redmond, the Irish leader, believed that a Liberal Government in the next Parliament would propose home rule for Ireland without an appeal to the constituencies on the subject, "We differ as far as the two poles."

He declared that if Mr. Redmond believed the question of home rule would be one of the Liberal planks in the next election, they differed widely. On the point of dual governments, he said the great mass of the English nation was opposed to Mr. Redmond's views.

LENTEN SERMONS IN THE CHURCHES OF HUB TO-DAY.

Clergy of All Denominations Select Subjects Suitable to the Tone of the Season of Prayer and Penitence

Lenten services are in Boston churches to-day and with few exceptions the subjects selected by the pastors of the different churches fit in well with the subdued tone of the present season.

At the Old South Church in the evening Hamilton Wright Mabie, the author, will speak on "The Religion of a Man of Letters." Special vespers will be held at the Arlington Street Church at 4 p. m.

At Tremont Temple Rev. Dr. P. S. Henson will speak in the morning on "Feast and Famine." Rev. Charles A. Crane, pastor of the People's Temple on Columbus avenue will speak in the evening at his church on "Whiskey That's All." At the Dudley Street Baptist Church Rev. Dr. Bustard, the pastor, will speak in the morning on "The Use of the Tongue" and at the evening service on "The Ten Commandments in the Twentieth Century."

WILDENFELS' LOSS BY FIRE $100,000

Marine experts sent here from New York to examine the cargo of the German steamer Wildenfels, which was damaged by fire at Mystic Wharf Wednesday, announce that the loss will amount to $100,000. One lot of 200 bales of skins, valued at $40,000, is totally ruined, and other valuable cargo is damaged beyond salvage.

It is feared that the water poured into the hold entered certain compartments which have not yet been examined.

The steamer will sail for New York on Tuesday or Wednesday.

BEST MARKET HERE FOR VEGETABLES

The Spring exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be opened on Thursday. The last of the Saturday morning meetings was held yesterday. Vegetables was the topic of discussion.

W. W. Rawson of Arlington, one of the speakers, said that the best market for vegetables and the best products were to be found in Boston. The use of the electric light increases a crop 15 per cent.

Other speakers were Varnum Frost, J. C. Stone, B. P. Ware, W. N. Craig and George Whitaker.

PE-RU-NA CONQUERS CATARRH THE WORLD OVER

The Population of the Earth is 1,400,000,000 One Million Die Annually of Catarrh.

ALL over the world Peruna is known and used for catarrhal diseases. The Peruna Girl has traveled 'round the globe.

Her face is familiar everywhere that civilization reaches.

Universally Praised.

From Africa to Greenland, from Manchuria to Patagonia, the face of the Peruna girl is familiar and the praises of Peruna as a catarrh remedy are heard.

Successful in North and South.

Peruna crossed the Equator several years ago, to find in the Southern Hemisphere the same triumphant success that has marked its career in the Northern Hemisphere.

A Standard.

Peruna is a standard catarrh remedy the world over.

It cures catarrh by eradicating it from the system.

Permanent Cure.

It obviates the necessity of all local treatment and its relief is of permanent character.

Without a Peer.

No other remedy has so completely dominated the whole earth as Peruna.

In Every Tongue.

In all languages its glowing testimonials are written.

In all climes the demands for Peruna increase.

An Extensive Laboratory.

To supply this remedy to the whole world taxes to the utmost one of the best laboratories in the United States.

A Word From Australia.

Walter H. Woodward, Bombadier Royal Australian Artillery, Hobart, Tasmania, writes:

"I suffered for several years with a distressing condition of the head and throat, caused by continual colds.

"My head and nostrils were stopped up most of the time, and there was a discharge, and my sense of smell was affected badly.

"After two weeks' use of Peruna I found this condition quite changed, and so I continued to use this remarkable medicine for over a month.

"I am very glad to say that at the end of that time I was cured and felt in fine health generally, and am pleased to give Peruna my honest endorsement."

From Hawaii.

Prince Jonah Kalanianaole, delegate in Congress from Hawaii, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I can cheerfully recommend your Peruna as a very effective remedy for coughs, cold and catarrhal trouble."

A Cuban Minister.

Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening tonic, and is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

From All Quarters of the Globe.

We have on file thousands of testimonials like those given above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast number of grateful letters Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving from all quarters of the globe in behalf of his famous catarrh remedy, Peruna.

RUSSIAN ARMY NOW FACES CAPTURE.

Linevitch Fights Fiercely in Rear Guard Action in Attempt to Save the Shattered Remnants from Total Annihilation

LINE OF RETREAT IS CUT BY THE JAPS

War Will Go on Says Cassini

By Count Cassini,
Ambassador from Russia to the United States.

My government is prepared and determined to prosecute the present contest in Manchuria to a successful conclusion. There is no disposition to ask for peace or to consider terms ... at this time, even should Japan waive the matter of an indemnity. It is true that our arms have met with reverses, but our resources are not exhausted and victory is not with our opponents. The war will go on.

Many exaggerated reports have been printed in this country concerning the hitch in the negotiations for the proposed new French loan of $125,000,000. I have no doubt that my Government will be able to consummate this loan as soon as the more financial details can be successfully adjusted.

My Government never borrows money unless it knows full well that it will be able to meet every obligation it assumes. This has always been true. Even in the trying days of the Crimean War our monetary obligations were faithfully met. It is possible, you will understand, that certain persons and interests should desire if possible to undermine at this time the credit of Russia in the world's financial market.

bars and bayonets, as remote and absolutely aloof from the people as if he were in another planet."

FIGHT CONSCRIPTION.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent says:

"If the command to mobilize is obeyed, the war will be prosecuted indefinitely, despite the failure to float foreign loans, but all symptoms point unmistakably to the spirit of resistance growing among the people. Men are mutilating themselves for military service by chopping off fingers in such wholesale manner that Grand Duke Vladimir has turned his attention to the matter.

"In a word, I am personally convinced that an insurmountable obstacle to the continuation of the war will be found in the dogged determination of the Russian people to prefer the risks of open disobedience at home to certain death in Manchuria or Siberia. This consummation will mark the simultaneous ... of the ... abroad and ... in Russia."

STRIKES RENEWED.

A dispatch from Lodz says that owing to rumors of an approaching mobilization, the workers in the woollen mills there have struck. The Seventy-fifth Brigade Artillery has been withdrawn from Lodz and will be dispatched to Manchuria.

The directors of the Vistula railroad at Warsaw have asked for troops to guard the bridges between Siedlce and Markin, in consequence of the receipt of letters threatening their destruction.

ON TO HARBIN IS SLOGAN OF VICTORIOUS JAPS

Tokio, March 18.—"On to Harbin" is the popular clamor in Japan to-day. Annihilation or capture of the Russian army, now fleeing north from Tie Ling, is regarded as a certain conclusion of the campaign not only among the people but in official circles.

Hence the cry, "On to Harbin." This means that Japan is anxious to push her advantages gained on the battlefields of Mukden and Tie Ling over thousands of dead.

As a matter of fact the evacuation of Tie Ling by the Russians was a great surprise to the military experts here. Considering the advantages the position offered, they believe that its surrender shows the demoralization of the Russian army. There is no place beyond offering as many advantages as Tie Ling, and in the opinion of the experts, it is doubtful if Harbin can afford an effective stand.

The successive victories of the last two weeks have brought even the conservatives, who at first opposed any movement much farther north into Manchuria, to believe that no time should be lost in following up the success achieved so far. Harbin is regarded as the natural objective point of the Russians, and the Japanese are now firmly convinced that this place, which has been used as the Russian base of operations, must be captured. Whether the Japanese should attempt to penetrate farther into the territory once dominated by Russia is a question that will not be answered until Harbin is taken.

If popular sentiment is allowed to govern, there is little doubt that the order to push on to Harbin will be given as soon as the present army which the Japanese have been pursuing for so many days is completely disposed of. Japanese optimism cannot conceive that this will take any great length of time.

300 ARRESTS OF REVOLUTIONISTS BY POLICE OF MOSCOW

St. Petersburg, March 19.—The secret police of Moscow have discovered the existence of an organization in that city which has been acting in conjunction with a Russian Revolutionary Committee, having its headquarters in London. Three hundred arrests have been made of persons alleged to be connected with the organization. A large quantity of bombs and weapons were seized, together with many documents and letters relating to the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius.

Harvard College Society Will Produce Bright German Play in Elaborate Style

"Deutscher Verein" of University Announces "Der Raub Der Saberinnen" in Brattle Hall Friday and Saturday

Franz and Paul von Schönthan are the authors of "Der Raub der Sabinerinnen." The production will be an elaborate one. The play is of the rattling farcical type, unhampered by probability and in Germany before its adaptation and translation into English was a great success.

The story tells how Martin Gollwitz, a professor in a small town, wife and unmarried daughter, Paula, who are away on a visit, consents to the production of a Roman tragedy entitled "Der Raub der Sabinerinnen," which he had written when a student and had recently discovered among some old manuscripts. ANXIOUS ABOUT OVERDUE BOHEMIAN

At a late hour last night no word had been received from the Leyland liner Bohemian, five days overdue from Liverpool, and friends of Boston people who are returning from abroad on the liner are uneasy concerning their safety.

The Leyland line officials believe that the Bohemian is in no danger. Aside from a possible breakdown of one of the engines, the line officials can only advance the theory that perhaps the steamer Hungarian, which is known to have left Glasgow for Portland in a crippled condition, has been met and is being towed by the Bohemian.

Landed Big Contract.

After Mrs. Reader, then Eleanor Rawles, gave up typewriting, she went to London, in 1899. She joined the firm of J. G. White & Co. The Sultan of Johore came to London with the $5,000,000 contract for the Johore railroad up his sleeve. He ... Miss Rawles socially. J. G. White & Co. got that contract.

Miss Rawles joined the Sprague Multiple Control Company. The London underground tube had a case of shivers that a lot of people thought they could cure. The Sprague Company was trying to get the job when Miss Rawles joined it. It got it very soon afterward.

Then Mr. Reader, who had considerable experience himself in business and diplomatic work came along and married Miss Rawles. They went to Peru, where the young woman quickly settled a revolution and was appointed agent in the United States for that country.

Then Mrs. Reader took some mining concessions for reward and came back here to arrange the San Domingo affair.

Mrs. Reader now has an office at No. 45 Wall street. It is on the ninth floor and on the door it says: "Cerro del Pasco Tunnel and Mining Company, E. Rawles, President."

NOVEL SOLVES BOUND GIRL MYSTERY.

Former Employer Says That Her Favorite Book Told of Heroine Being Drugged and Later Rescued by the Hero

Will the lurid pages of a dime novel solve the mystery of Louise Syde, who was found bound hand and foot in a vacant lot in Waltham.

It is known through Mrs. Frank Creelman, of No. 10 Blaine street, Allston, for whom the mysterious maiden worked, that she had an insatiable appetite for novels, the more exciting, impossible and gruesome the better. No peaceful tale of life in a country village would meet her mental requirements.

"The Squire's Heir," "For Love and Honor," "A Midnight Marriage," "Her One Great Love," "Sweet Anna Greyson," and "No Wedding Bells For Her," were the garish titles which appealed to her. Over and over again she would read these books, hurrying through her work that she might join her heroes and heroines of the printed page and ... with them in the realms of fiction.

It was "The Squire's Heir," which made the greatest impression on her. In the parlance of novel readers, it's a "grand story."

The villain binds and gags a girl and leaves her in the woods, where she is found later. The drugging is referred to in these words.

Drugging in Novel.

Charlie stared at him.

"Oh, what do you mean by this drugging business?" he exclaimed. "Cyril, who the Dickens, could have drugged me?"

"You, yourself, could, I suppose. Come, I'm not blind."

"Drug myself!" cried Charlie in astonishment. "What the dickens should I drug myself for? But I can see the mood which you are in—you old Pharisee. Get to my clothes and I'll soon fathom my movements yesterday. I wonder where ... Cyril ... given to Elsie ... I'll go to her first—Ring the bell!"

Cyril did not stir. Charlie jumped out of bed and ran across the room, but Cyril's hand was on the bell first.

"Stop this fool's game!" he cried angrily. "What do you take us all to be? If the squire is imposed upon I am not. I have stood by you, Charlie, in all your weakness until now, but after this I give you up."

"Hang it all, Cyril, leave me to dress!"

"I could be blind to your fooling of that silly little Jessica and—"

"What on earth—"

"But when it comes to murder—"

"Murder? Whatever are you talking about?" and something like ice seemed to touch Charlie's heart, though he knew not why.

"If you meant to kill Elsie, you—"

"Kill Elsie!" Charlie shouted. "Are you mad? My darling! Cyril"—and he grew quieter—"you quite frightened me. It shows how the beastly drug has acted on my brain."

Spoke of Trying Suicide.

Often Louise, who called herself also Hazel Syde, talked to Mrs. Creelman about this book.

"What would the police do if a girl bound and gagged herself?" she asked one day. And another time she said: "Would the police do anything if a girl tried to commit suicide and did not succeed?" adding as an afterthought, "What would they do if she gave another name?"

For six weeks she was employed at Mrs. Creelman's. During that time she said that her mother had married a teamster named Briggs and lived in Northampton. ... [illegible]

First she told Mrs. Creelman that she had been an inmate of the Little Wanderers' Home, her father being dead and her mother dying when she was six years old.

Afterward she talked so intimately of her mother that Mrs. Creelman asked her how she remembered so much if her mother died when she was only six years of age. Ingenuously she replied:

"You won't think me bad if I tell you my mother is living? She was married a short time ago to a man named Briggs, a teamster, at Northampton."

Going to church seemed to be her chief diversion outside of novel reading. Three ... she ... the Baptist ... [illegible]

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate-coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them ... [illegible] Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

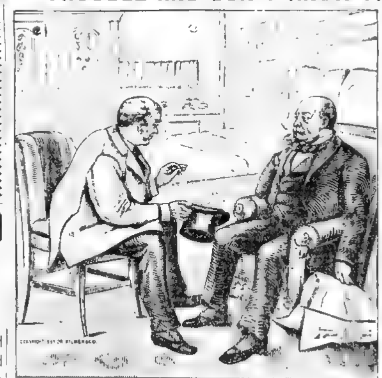
THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT



To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "The American" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease; therefore, when through neglect or other causes kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and need attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better, they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root will set your whole system right, and the best proof of this is a trial.

53 Cottage St., Melrose, Mass.

Dear Sir: [illegible] I was in the Army [illegible]

I. C. RICHARDSON.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but it promptly cures kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, [illegible] poor digestion, [illegible] nervousness, heart disturbance [illegible] bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, [illegible] rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, [illegible] wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE.—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Boston Sunday American. The genuineness of this offer is guaranteed.

"COMMON SENSE"

Better Than Doctors.

THOMAS A. EDISON, the inventor, in mapping out the problems of the future, gives first place to the necessity of fighting the bacteria which give us our diseases. Next to the actual bacteria of disease, the mosquitos and flies are the most dangerous enemies of man. The mosquito with its bite injects into our veins malaria, yellow fever, and other fatal troubles. The fly, with spongy feet, collects the invisible germs of disease, spreads them over our food and poisons us with typhoid, cholera and other plagues of the human race. The bacteria of disease we can see only through microscopes. These little organisms can point to victories by the million, which lie in such numbers in our cemeteries. Thus far scientists have not been able to fight these bacteria very well. The best thing we can possibly do individually at present is to keep ourselves in such a state of health as will enable us to fight the bacteria with our own vitality.

GOOD, RED BLOOD OUR AMMUNITION.

The blood which flows through our veins and arteries should contain healthy red blood corpuscles which are capable of warding off the attack of disease germs if they get into the system. While we keep our blood in good condition and our little army of fighters in order we can resist fairly well the attacks from the outside. In preparing ourselves against bacterial attacks there are many important things to be thought of—proper nourishment of the blood, nerves, lungs, heart and liver. Important to us is proper food for the stomach, pure air for the lungs, exercise and cleanliness at all times. Good wholesome air taken into the lungs helps oxidize the blood and make it strong. Sunlight is also important for our well being. If our stomach is "out of whack," if the blood does not get the proper nutriment out of the food eaten, we at once weaken our defensive forces and the germs of catarrh, consumption or grip readily enter.

Dr. Pierce, the eminent physician of Buffalo, N. Y., says, "If each person will consider his system as an army of men which he controls as a general, and will see to its proper provisioning and that it has plenty of ammunition in the shape of good, red blood, he will be able to overcome the enemy in the shape of the germs of disease." Every healthy person has five million red blood cells or corpuscles to every cubic millimeter of blood. The number of red blood corpuscles in the average human being is so great that it is almost incomprehensible. However, their numbers increase with health or decrease with illness or mal-nutrition. The best tonic for increasing the red blood corpuscles and building up healthy tissue is to doubt Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine has been on the market for over a third of a century and numbers its cures by the thousand.

A tonic made up largely of alcohol will shrink the corpuscles of the blood and make them weaker for resistance. A cod liver oil makes the stomach groan because it is irritating. What is needed is an alterative extract made of roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol, that will assist the stomach in assimilating or taking up from the food such elements as are required for the blood, also an alterative that will assist the activity of the liver and cause it to throw off the poisons in the blood. When we have accomplished this we have put the system in a fortified condition so strong that it can repel the germs of disease which we find everywhere—in the streetcars, the shops, the factories, the bedrooms, wherever many people congregate, or where sunlight and good air does not penetrate.

Along with its use one should take exercise in the outdoor air, get all one can of God's sunlight and air, and practice a mild breathing exercise each day. This "Medical Discovery" gives no false stimulation, because it does not contain alcohol or a narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. Instead of a cod liver oil, against which the already sensitive stomach will declare open rebellion, this tonic has a pacifying action upon the sensitive stomach and gives to the blood the food elements the tissues require. It maintains nutrition by enabling one to eat, retain, digest and assimilate nutritious food.

"I have decided from experience that no doctor or medicine can help one so much as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes William A. Snowdon, of Portland Light Infantry, Uniform Rank—Knights of Pythias, 512½ Congress Street (Suite 31), Portland, Maine. "It is simply a wonderful remedy. I was fairly given up by the doctors two years ago with lung trouble. I had no cough for about two hours every morning and frequently during the day. My lungs were sore and inflamed and nothing seemed to aid them but your blessed remedy. It soon relieved the cough, strengthened my entire system, and in five months I was restored to perfect health. Thanks seem but a slight return for all the good your medicine has done for me. I certainly wish you good luck and continued success."

THE BEST GUIDE.

If women want to know how to take care of their health they should always have in the household "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," a book of 1008 pages written by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. You will find valuable information concerning the organs and functions of the body, prevention of sickness, simple home cures, as well as a careful honest discussion of the great problems of marriage and maternity. Dr. Pierce sends this great book free to all who ask. Send thirty-one cents in postage stamps to cover cost of mailing the cloth-covered volume.

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. Persons making false statements concerning its ingredients will be prosecuted.

Week of Speculative Unsettlement Closes With Final Prices Irregular and Uncertainty as to Developments

LAWSON MOVEMENT IN "RANGE" CHECKED

Copper Magnate Issues Statement That He Is Glad to Be Relieved, and Declaring War on All "Fake" Copper Booms

A week of speculative unsettlement closed yesterday in the stock market with final prices irregular and the traders divided as to what way the prices would swing the coming week. Perhaps opinion was evenly divided as to whether the reaction will extend further or will give way to a resumption of the upward movement.

Much depends upon the course of the money market. Yesterday's cut of $4,1[illegible] 175 in the surplus reserve of the New York banks brings the total down to $5,154,175. These figures compare with a surplus of $[illegible] held on the corresponding date last year. Two years ago, however, the surplus amounted to [illegible]. [illegible]

Some issues are heavily oversold, and the attempts of bears to cover their short contracts will cause numerous spasmodic and sharp advances. These, however, must be short lived, until the bankers proceed with their formal campaign.

From the appearance of the market at the close yesterday rallies are overdue in several important issues. Fear that the stock transfer tax law may pass will furnish abundant pretext for sales on the rallies. Conservative brokers are advising their customers to attempt nothing but quick turns for the present.

STORY OF A GOLD MINE

DAYS OF THE COMSTOCK BONANZAS REVIVED

About Thirty Miles South of Goldfield, Nevada, the Treasure Vault of the World, Lies the Old Gold Mountain Mine, Believed by Mining Engineers to Be One of the Coming Great Gold Mines of Nevada's Newly Opened Up Mineral Zone.

[illegible] the War Department, containing a full report of the explorations [illegible] in Nevada and Arizona that were conducted in March, 1871, by First Lieutenant George M. Wheeler of the United States Corps of Engineers, the following [illegible]

"Gold Mountain District, Nevada.

[illegible] that the OLD GOLD MOUNTAIN [illegible] horse furnished the power, the mines were worked at a profit.

High Grade Ore Is in Sight.

The Old Gold Mountain Mining Company's property consists of [illegible] about 120 acres, as follows: The Central, the Smasher, the Lucky Ji[illegible] [illegible] the Wine West [illegible]

[illegible] 3,100 feet of work has been [illegible] and the value of [illegible] tons of tailings on the dump [illegible] $20,000.

A Great Milling Property.

[illegible] and the ore is free milling. Water has been developed [illegible] and there is plenty of wood to be had at $[illegible] per cord.

Development work has just been commenced by the company and it will be carried on extensively and with vigor. A mill will be installed at an early date. With the railroad shipping point within thirty miles at Goldfield, it is assured before the Summer is over, all ore that assays over $75.00 per ton can easily be shipped at a profit, and with the water and fuel facilities near at hand, the mill, which will be erected presently, will handle at a profit the hundreds of thousands of tons of low grade ore that is now exposed, and need only to be brought to the surface to be handled at a profit.

In the Heart of the Mineral Belt.

The Old Gold Mountain Mining Company's property lies midway between Goldfield and Bullfrog. Bullfrog properties have been under development less [illegible] have directly produced ore that it has paid to transport seventy miles by mule team and then ship by railroad to the smelters at Salt Lake City.

Mining engineers describe the great mineral zone of Southwestern Nevada is extending from Bullfrog on the south, north through Old Gold Mountain, Tokop, Goldfield and Tonopah, to Sodaville, and of all the great mining properties [illegible] mining engineers are a unit that that of the Old Gold Mountain Mining Company is the that has the greatest prospect before it of becoming a great producer.

Famous Mining Men at the Helm.

W. J. Douglass is president of the Old Gold Mountain Mining Company. He is [illegible] of the Tonopah Milling and Mining Company [illegible]

[illegible]

S. H. Kitto, treasurer, is the well known cashier of the Nye & Ormsby County Bank, of Goldfield, Nev. [illegible]

There is not [illegible] director of the company who is not well versed in Nevada mining history and does not know all the [illegible] mining profession. Practical mining men in Nevada are not [illegible] company may readily be said to be in the hands of practical mining men, [illegible] which assures for it management and development on practical lines.

Capital Is Needed.

[illegible]

[illegible] of the company have supplied the cash with which to buy the property [illegible] they are willing that the money for development purposes shall be supplied by the sale of treasury stock. The opportunities for investments of [illegible] mining camp are such that it would [illegible] of a Croesus to back them all.

[illegible] of gold ore was shipped out of the Goldfield [illegible] during the past year from mines owned [illegible] that [illegible] small blocks of stock at the start for development purposes [illegible] the money of outsiders [illegible]

[illegible] within a year [illegible] properties in which capital is already invested will [illegible] that outside capital will have little opportunity [illegible] the profits of those interested in Goldfield now will [illegible] that those on the ground will be able to hold and develop between themselves [illegible] have demonstrated to be worthy.

If you want any stock in the OLD GOLD MOUNTAIN MINING COMPANY [illegible] to Miles-Sutro Co., Goldfield, Nev. [illegible] of 15 cents per share for whatever number of shares you want.

Miles-Sutro Co. [illegible] the famous [illegible] Miles-Sutro Co. refer by permission to the Nye & Ormsby County Bank, of Goldfield, and to John S. Cook & Co., bankers, Goldfield, Nev.

The capitalization of the Old Gold Mountain Mining Company is $750,000. The shares are full paid and non-assessable. Their par value is one dollar [illegible]

The Miles-Sutro Co. is also fiscal agent for the great HEARST-JAGGERS Gold Mine of Goldfield. Particulars of a great "ground floor" offering of stock about to be made can be had on application.

Cured of Piles

After Suffering More Than Twenty-Five Years.

TRIAL PACKAGE MAILED FREE

"Until about two years ago I had had piles for about thirty years, at times bleeding and very painful. I got a ... cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure at ... drug store and used it and was entirely cured, ... another box in case I needed it, and as the piles did not return in six months I gave the remedy to a friend of mine who wanted the doctor to operate to cure him. My friend said he would use the "pyramids" but he knew they would do him no good, but they cured him of piles of twenty-five years' standing. I am free from piles to-day, and have been since using Pyramid Pile Cure. I was Captain in the Civil War." James Adams, Soldiers' Home, Cal.

The majority of people labor under the impression that an operation is necessary in severe cases of piles, or hemorrhoids, and are very skeptical regarding the remedial virtues of any medicinal compound. Testimony like the above should certainly have a tendency to dispel this impression, although it is odd that such a fallacy should prevail, and still more odd that so many people should think an operation effects a permanent cure whereas the contrary is more often the case.

Just send your name and address to Pyramid Drug Co., 890 Main St., Marshall, Mich., and receive free by return mail the trial package in a plain wrapper. Thousands have been cured in this easy, painless and inexpensive way, in the privacy of the home. No knife and its torture. No doctor and his bills.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural ... [illegible]

SHIP SIGNALS 'HAY MUCH BETTER.'

Code Message from Cretic, Off Sandy Hook, to the "Boston American," Conveys the Good Tidings of Secretary

COLLAPSED WHILE BOARDING STEAMER

Wheeled to Gangway and Had to Be Carried to Stateroom. Condition a Matter of Deep Concern to the Administration

"G. I. B."

This code message, meaning "Much better," was signalled from the Cretic off Sandy Hook late yesterday, in reply to a message from the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN inquiring as to the condition of Secretary of State John Hay, who was suddenly taken ill just before the White Star liner left her pier in the North River.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 18.—Secretary of State John Hay is such a sick man that he nearly collapsed from the exertion of walking from a carriage to the gangplank of the White Star liner Cretic, on which he had booked passage so that he might spend six weeks on the Mediterranean in an effort to regain his health. Mr. Hay's condition was such that it alarmed the members of his family who were with him. He had proceeded only a few steps on the pier when his legs gave way, and he would have fallen to the floor if he had not quickly rested himself on a bag of freight.

A rolling chair was secured and he was gently placed on it and carried to the boat. His companions then took him by the arms and aided him to walk down the gangplank. The secretary was ghastly white and showed his weakened condition. His condition has been studiously kept from the public heretofore, even the name of the ship on which he would sail and his destination being withheld.

Mr. Hay had planned to sail on the Cretic, with his wife and Henry Adams of Washington, a personal friend, for a six weeks trip of absolute rest on the Mediterranean. He arrived at the dock at 11.55 o'clock in a cab accompanied by his wife. Mr. Adams was waiting at the dock for him. Beside him were Clarence Hay, a son, and Mr. and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., the latter being the Secretary's daughter. Henry White, the newly appointed Ambassador to Italy, was there also. None of these sailed, however.

Mr. Hay has planned to be away for six weeks for perfect rest. His son said he could not tell his father's plans, as they would be made when the Mediterranean was reached.

HOTEL BEACON FIRE GIVES LODGERS SCARE.

Sixty Inmates Startled and Many Driven to Street as the Blaze Mysteriously Appears in the Bathroom

Fire of mysterious origin, which started in the second floor bathroom of the Hotel Beacon, corner of Beacon and Somerset streets, shortly before midnight, startled the sixty lodgers and drove many of them to the street.

One of the lodgers gave the alarm from the box in front of the Parker House. Guests of the larger hotel were brought to their windows when engines piled up on Tremont, School and Beacon streets.

For several minutes there was excitement in and about the Beacon.

The loss will be about $50.

FARLEY, ENEMY OF UNIONS, BADLY BEATEN, ILL.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 18.—[illegible] Farley, strike breaker and union smasher, is sick in bed at the Hotel Astor. He has not been out of his room since early Tuesday. It is reported that his illness is the result of a beating he received from two strangers at Broadway and Forty-second street.

Farley's friends will not admit that he was attacked.

Some of Farley's own strike breakers say that he was waylaid in the shadow of the high fence surrounding the Knickerbocker building and was fearfully beaten.

EX-GOVERNOR LUCE, OF MICHIGAN, DIES

Cold Water, Mich., March 18.—Ex-Governor Cyrus Gray Luce died at his home here today. He was born in Windsor, Ohio, in 1824. His father was a native of Connecticut and his mother came from Virginia. He was elected Governor in 1886 and was re-elected in 1888.

10,000,000 IN THE RUSSIAN EMPIRE STARVING.

Professor Reussner Declares Recent Popular Upheaval Was Not Due to Political Reasons, but to Hunger

Berlin, March 18.—Professor Reussner, a recognized authority on Russian affairs, in an interview today declared that 10,000,000 inhabitants of the Russian Empire are literally starving.

[illegible] per cent of the population, he said, are unable to purchase the necessities of life. Mortality from starvation is increasing by leaps and bounds. In some districts it was reported the enormous [illegible] per cent monthly.

The peasants are living like animals, devouring hay, fodder, rats and mice. The awful popular upheaval in the empire, he declared, is not due to any political reasons, but to pure hunger.

$80,000 OUT IN FORGED BONDS

Lisbon, March 18.—The Portuguese authorities have discovered that a large quantity of counterfeit government bonds is in circulation. Eighty thousand dollars' worth of the bonds have been found in the possession of various banking houses.

HINTS AT VETO OF $600,000 FOR MOTH WAR.

Governor Douglas Will Stand for $300,000 but Declares the Amount Asked for Is More Than Will Be Needed

Governor Douglas has plainly and positively told the promoters of gypsy moth [illegible] that he will not [illegible] appropriation for the suppression of the [illegible] and has intimated that he will use his veto power if his wishes are disregarded. The Governor is in favor of wiping out the moths, but he is not in favor of having the work become a part of the financial burden of this year.

The moth fighters want to pass a bill providing for the appointment of a commission of three to have charge of the work for the State, and to secure an appropriation of $600,000, to be spent in bunches of $200,000 a year for three years. The Governor does not believe three men are required to oversee this work, and does not believe more than half the amount asked for will be needed.

He favors a one-man commission, and also favors making the infested cities and towns pay more than the cities and towns that are free from the moths. He will favor a bill calling for about $300,000 that includes a provision that the money shall not be available until next February.

SOUGHT A WATERY GRAVE TO END MISERY.

Such Is Theory of the Boston Police Respecting Norman W. Scott, 68, Who Disappeared Leaving Note for Daughter

Despondent from continued ill health, Norman W. Scott, sixty-eight years old, of No. 619 Massachusetts avenue, wrote his daughter a farewell note and then escaped from [illegible] Atlantic avenue wharves into the harbor.

This is the theory of the Boston police [illegible] disappeared from his home some [illegible].

His daughter, Miss Henrietta Scott, found this note on her table:

[illegible] I am only a burden to everyone. Be good and sometimes pray for me. Your loving father,
NORMAN W. SCOTT."

Miss Scott rushed to the street where she found her father [illegible] and wearing only his rough working clothes and leaving his wallet and money behind him, he had written the note and started to carry out the impulse then.

The daughter pleaded with her father to return to the house. He refused. The last she saw of him was his slight bent figure walking slowly down Massachusetts avenue.

In a letter to his wife, who is visiting in Portland, Scott had intimated that he intended taking his life by jumping from one of the Eastern Steamship Company's Port and [illegible] steamers. The steamer leaving here Friday evening carried no passenger answering Scott's description.

Scott was a machinist and a fancy iron worker. Until health compelled him to quit work he had been employed at the Boston Theatre as an expert machinist.

SALEM GIRLS WIN.

Salem, March 18.—In a decidedly interesting basketball game the Salem High School young ladies' sextet defeated the Wellesley High School team by a score of 28 to 12. Miss Crosset, of Salem, did exceptionally fine work.

HARVARD STUDENT OF 19 MARRIES GIRL OF 17.

Pretty Little Romance Culminates in the Wedding of Harold Blodgett and Miss Lucy Mackintosh, Gloucester

Another pretty little love affair, which Wednesday night [illegible] in the marriage of a seventeen-year-old girl and a nineteen-year-old boy, is now added to the list of marriages with a tinge of romance which have taken place in Boston and vicinity during the past few weeks.

This time the bridegroom is a Harvard student, Harold Gower Blodgett, the nineteen-year-old son of Harold Blodgett of Springfield. Miss Lucy Beth Mackintosh, [illegible]

The marriage was performed by the Rev. A. A. V. Binnington, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Gloucester, in the parlor of the [illegible] No. 12 School street, Gloucester [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Mackintosh and Miss [illegible] of [illegible] and Miss [illegible] of Boston present.

[illegible] Miss Mackintosh first was at her father's camp on the Annisquam river.

The parents of both gladly consented to the [illegible] At the present time the young Blodgetts are staying [illegible] When a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter called at the house [illegible] Mrs. Mackintosh was with her [illegible] and was surprised that there should be any interest in the matter. [illegible] appeared she explained:

"Why, we didn't elope. It was just a plain, every day marriage. I don't see any thing out of the ordinary in that. It doesn't concern any one but my husband and my self."

KILLS HIS SON WITH A BLOW OF A POKER

Montreal, March 18.—W[illegible], an fifty-five years old, killed his seventeen year old son, William Phelan, Jr., this morning, with a poker as the boy lay in bed.

Wife of James T. ("Shorty") Cunningham, Former Boston Politician, Sues Lizzie Dempsey for $100,000 Damages

Mrs. Isabel Cunningham, wife of Joseph [illegible] Cunningham, formerly known in Boston as "Shorty" Cunningham, politician, has sued Miss Lizzie Dempsey, said to be formerly of South Boston, and now of New York, for alienation of her husband's affections, according to dispatches from New York to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Mrs. Cunningham sues for $100,000 and also prays for an injunction to restrain Miss Dempsey from using the name of Mrs. [illegible]

"Shorty" Cunningham fourteen years ago was a leading figure in Democratic city politics. He was close to Mayor Mathews and directed affairs in Ward 10, where he was chairman of the Ward Committee. At that time he was manager of the Hotel Oxford.

MRS. CHARLES HENRY A FIGURE AT RECEPTION

Mrs. Charles Henry, of New York, in Her Court Robes, Which Caused a Sensation at British Royalty's Reception.

AMERICAN WOMEN PRESENTED TO EDWARD VII.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, March 18.—The second Royal Court was remarkable for the many beautiful dresses worn by the American women presented to the King and Queen. One of the most attractive was that of Mrs. Charles Henry, who was formerly Miss Julia Lewisohn, of New York, and who was presented by Mrs. Adair, another prominent American hostess in London.

It may interest the AMERICAN'S women readers to know that Mrs. Henry's court gown was of Brussels lace, the long double skirts edged with two deep flounces of old rosepoint, and a small old point lace figure dotting the entire skirts of the Brussels lace. The bodice had a deep point in front, and across the bust were folds of tulle on one side and a garniture of old point lace on the left side. Over this was worn the train of white satin, the entire train embroidered in tiniest silver sequins and crystals, the latter in a diamond setting.

The train was suspended from the left shoulder only, and was fastened to show the outline of the bust. The entire left side of the train was embroidered in a design of roses shading from palest pink to creamy white, with long sprays of delicate diamond embroidery, while the train was lined with soft shell pink satin. A high tiara of diamonds and three ropes of pearls were the only jewels worn with the exception of two big single pearls that fastened the head dress of tulle and the three white ostrich feathers. Mrs. Henry inherited a fortune of several million dollars, and while she entertains lavishly, both in her town and country houses, she is one of the most generous helpers of the poor in England. On her estate at Margrave, one of the most picturesque spots in the Upper Thames Valley, she has built a cottage home for the poor. Here all the Summer long she sends down relays of London's poorest children for two weeks' enjoyment of the country air.

It is told that the recent [illegible] expedition passed through the country of a [illegible] tribe whose ruler was known [illegible] whose real name as was found on acquaintance was Casey—Timothy Casey. In the Crimean war, before Sebastopol, an English soldier threw himself upon an insolent Turkish sentry who had refused to let him pass without the password, and the Englishman's blood could not bear his being dictated to by a dirty Turk. DOGS KEPT ON WHICH TO TRY ALL THE FOOD

Special Cable to Sunday American.

St. Petersburg, March 18.—The confinement to which the imperial family is subjected on account of threats of personal violence is telling on all of them, but particularly on the Czarina's little girls, who are no longer allowed to go out with their father, gamboling about the park with their dogs and tame animals.

The Czar himself ordered that the children never be allowed outside the palace doors when he is taking the air. Remembering the sad fate of the little Princess of Hesse, who swallowed the dose of poison intended for him, he fears he risks his children's lives if he should go out in their company.

The Dowager Czarina, who learned to cook while protecting the life of her husband, Alexander III, has once more taken her place in the kitchen. She is assisted by an expert chemist, and has a little herd of dogs, [illegible], every day mongrels, rabbits and sheep to experiment on. Preferably the imperial family uses only groceries, wines, etc., that come in sealed boxes from Berlin, London and other capitals. If native goods are employed they are subjected to a double test. First the chemist takes them in hand, [illegible] they are fed to the various [illegible] animals. If the chemist and the [illegible] agree that the stuff is not dangerous, then the Czar and his little family are permitted to eat in comfort.

It has become almost a fixed idea with the Czar that his son's life is threatened. His Majesty fears that the loss of his son, whom he so long vainly expected, would cause the outbreak of a revolution in every corner of the empire, even among Conservatives, and for this reason every one in any way connected with the imperial family is surrounded by hosts of spies, who in their turn are watched by a second series.

Copenhagen, March 18.—This photograph of Mme. Maxim Gorki, with her two sons, was taken this Winter and has just been received by a friend of the famous author in this city.

The health of Gorki gives rise to the gravest anxiety here.

The famous author had long before his arrest been suffering with consumption, and in the damp room in the Peter Paul fortress, where he was kept imprisoned, he contracted an attack of intermittent fever which refuses to give way to medical treatment.

There is a movement afoot here among the many admirers of Gorki to ask [illegible] Christian to use his influence with the Czar to permit the consumptive author to take permanent residence at Yalta [illegible] southern shore of the Crimea, where the climate may prolong his life.

London, March 18.—If you haven't got the money to buy a motor car yourself, you may become a "paying guest" of somebody in society who has a car. That is the suggestion contained in the following advertisement which has appeared in the personal columns of all the London papers:

"MOTOR TOUR ON CONTINENT. Lady [illegible] an [illegible] of motoring abroad [illegible] three weeks for [illegible] [illegible] would have seat in car for £20 ($100) [illegible] costs of trip and back."

CHOATE'S FAREWELL GIFT TO ENGLAND IS A WINDOW.

Retiring Ambassador Will Present Stained-Glass Memorial to John Harvard to the Cathedral of St. Savior's

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, March 18.—As a farewell gift to the people of England Mr. Choate has decided to present a magnificent stained glass window to the Cathedral of St. Savior. What makes the gift unusually appropriate is the fact that it will remind Englishmen that an Englishman founded one of the most prominent educational institutions of the United States, Harvard College.

The window is to be placed in the cathedral in memory of John Harvard who was christened in the baptistry of the church. The Rev. John Harvard, M. A. of Emanuel College, Cambridge, became a dissenter and emigrated to America and when he died in Charlestown, Mass., on September 14, 1638, he left by his will half of his estate, about $4,000, and his whole library to the seminary in the wilderness.

The work on the memorial window is being done by the [illegible] artist [illegible] John La Farge. It is [illegible] on the way and the window will be placed in position before Mr. Choate returns to his native country.

Vienna, March 18.—Baron Szeknicki has not been declared insane as his loving relatives wished him to be because he chose to wear a "turtle" suit at home. The Baron is rich and eccentric, but is neither obliged to give up his money nor go to an asylum. He says he wears, for convenience sake, at home a leather suit, patterned after the natural dress of a giant turtle, and after the court heard his argument it decided that the Baron's relatives had no case. Szeknicki proved that there was no harm whatever in his passion for turtle suits.

London, March 18.—The few Americans who have been in Monte Carlo this season have returned to London in disgust. They declare that the place is ruined by the invasion of a bad class of people.

The fashionable centres undoubtedly this year are Rome, Cairo and [illegible] in Switzerland, which has been [illegible] full of representative Americans. Monte Carlo is not the only place on the Riviera which has been dull.

Even Cannes has suffered in one way or another. Several well-known hostesses have absented themselves from there. Nor will the expected arrival of Mrs. Arthur Paget brighten up the entertainments. Mrs. Paget, although determined to be once more to the fore during the London season, has only just had the steel supports removed from the knee and will only be able to hobble with the aid of a crutch. This, however, will not prevent her from giving gorgeous dinner parties at Belgrave Square for royalties, big and small.

London, March 18.—The War Office has found and bought a wonderful [illegible] gauge [illegible] for use in gun fittings. It is the invention of Dr. T. E. Stanton, who claims that the deviation of any part will not exceed one thousandth part of an inch.

To effect this marvelous accuracy it has been necessary to construct a special [illegible] [illegible] in the laboratory [illegible] between [illegible] degrees of [illegible] temperature of sixty degrees.

As even the presence of a human being would cause such a variation in the temperature as to affect the delicate operations, large glass panels have been built into one side to permit of inspection from the exterior.

The Crown Princess, her future mother-in-law, is compelled to spend much time in the south owing to her health and almost the only [illegible] Princess Margaret will find there is Princess Charles of Sweden [illegible] [illegible] some eight years ago.

MILK TRUST IS THREATENING ALL EUROPE.

Group of Capitalists with Unlimited Millions Plots to Secure the Absolute Control of the Great Necessity of Life

AGENTS AT WORK IN ALL THE GREAT CAPITALS

Special Cable to Sunday American.

Paris, March 18.—It looks [illegible] Europe is soon to be at the mercy of a trust which bids fair to surpass [illegible] of its American origin.

A group of English, French and Swiss capitalists has formed a milk trust which is reaching out for the control of the European supply of milk. Already the company absolutely controls the European supply of condensed [illegible] this is only a beginning. Agents of the new [illegible] are endeavoring to [illegible] the companies which supply all the large European cities from London to Vienna and Rome with fresh milk and with the [illegible] behind the enterprise the accomplishment of these plans will soon be a fact.

The capital now invested in condensed milk factories belonging to the new trust is nearly $10,000,000. These factories are scattered all over Europe, but the largest are in Switzerland, where several of them use over 2,000 gallons a day. The only country where the trust has found it impossible to gain an entrance is Denmark, where practically all the farmers have united and formed one great national cooperative concern, which both supplies the local population of the cities and towns with milk, and also produces the millions of pounds of fine Danish butter exported annually, which forms one of the main sources of revenue for the country.

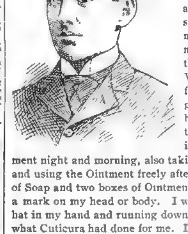
TORTURING SKIN HUMOR

Whole Body Mass of Itching Sores and Scales. Awful Suffering for Fifteen Years.

CURED BY CUTICURA

"I take the liberty to drop you a few lines to let you know of my wonderful cure by Cuticura. My head was one mass of scabs, and my forehead was covered down almost to my eyebrows. I had to wear my hat all the time. My legs, arms, and body were covered with spots in size from a pin-head to as large as a silver dollar. A white, crusty scab would form and itch, and words cannot express how I suffered for fifteen years. I tried many doctors and all kinds of treatments, but could get no help, and thought there was no hope for me. While in Michigan last summer a friend told me to get Cuticura. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and in three days my head was as clear as it ever was. I applied the Ointment night and morning, also taking a hot bath three times a week, and using the Ointment freely after the bath. After using one cake of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was completely cured, without a mark on my head or body. I was so pleased I felt like taking my hat in my hand and running down the street to tell every one I met what Cuticura had done for me. I shall never use any other soap but Cuticura. If any one is in doubt about this, they may write to me."



717 Washington St., Allegheny, Pa. H. B. FRANKLIN.

COMPLETE TREATMENT, $1

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take Cuticura Resolvent (Liquid or Pills), to cool and cleanse the blood. This pure, sweet, and wholesome treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep, and points to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure of the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humors, eczemas, rashes, and irritations, from infancy to age, with loss of hair, when all else fails.

Millions Use Cuticura Soap

Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, purest and sweetest of emollients, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery.

Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

PUZZLE IS GETTING MORE POPULAR WITH ARMY OF BOSTON BASEBALL FANS

Hundreds of Letters Daily Received By the Sporting Editor.

The great baseball puzzle of the BOSTON AMERICAN, which has been keeping the fans busy for nearly two weeks, appears to be getting more popular every day. The [illegible]

Baseball Puzzle. What's the Answer?

Two teams, A and B, are playing. A is at the bat in the last half of the sixth inning. The score is 5 to 4 in favor of B. Two men are out, a man on second and another on third. The batter hits the ball into fair territory, but it is not a hit. There is no putout, no base runner hit by the batted ball, no assist or no error, and yet A wins the game by a score of 6 to 5. What was the play.

Readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN are invited to send their answers to the problem to the Sporting Editor. The first one to solve it will receive two grand stand tickets for himself and best girl for the opening game at the Huntington Avenue Grounds on April 21. Write on only one side of the paper, and send full name and address.

I Fulfil Every Promise and Never Hold Out False Hopes.

THE FEAR THAT YOU COULD NOT BE CURED may have deterred you from taking honest treatment, or you may have been one of the unfortunates who have been treated in vain by inexperienced physicians, FREE TREATMENTS, FREE TRIAL SAMPLES, PATENT MEDICINES, ELECTRIC BELTS and other similar devices. Such treatments cannot and will never cure you, nor will these maladies cure themselves. When I offer you a cure, and am willing to risk my professional reputation in curing you, and have such FAITH AND CONFIDENCE in my continued success in treating these diseases that I WILL NOT ACCEPT A DOLLAR UNTIL YOU ARE PERMANENTLY CURED and satisfied with a lasting cure, what fairer business proposition can be offered to the sick and afflicted? This should convince the skeptical, as I mean what I say, and I do exactly as I advertise, as I am sure of SAFE AND POSITIVE CURE in the shortest possible time without injurious after-effects. My charges will be as low as possible for conscientious, skillful and successful services, and my guarantee is simple and true. NOT A DOLLAR NEED BE PAID UNTIL CURED.

Herreshoff Doesn't Want His Boats in Kaiser's Race

New York, March 18. The famous schooner yacht Ingomar, owned by Morton F. Plant, has been placed on the market to be sold so that she might be a contestant for the Kaiser's Cup. It was only a case of a few minutes after the announcement that the boat was for sale that a well known business man of this city submitted a bid for her, but the owner, after a conference, placed the figures so that that purchase and entry was out of the question.

When this fact became known a rumor was started in yachting circles to the effect that the Herreshoffs didn't want to have a boat of their build entered in the race. The conference with Mr. Plant was said to be none other than John B. Herreshoff, president of the great yacht building firm at Bristol, R. I., and the reason was said to be the alleged trouble between members of that firm and Emperor William.

Want to Beat the Kaiser.

For five years the Emperor has wanted a Herreshoff boat, but never had one. The Herreshoffs, it is said, have gone out of their way to beat the Kaiser's yachts, and of all the entries for the Kaiser's cup there is not one of the Herreshoff build.

Arthur F. Sykes, owner of the [illegible] formerly the cup yacht Colonia, was declared to be a likely entry for the [illegible] Yacht Club, but suddenly Mr. Sykes cleared her out of the race. Every boat from the Bristol yards which has ever been mentioned as a possible starter has been declared out.

The incidents which led to the reported differences are of two years standing, but it is said that recently the Herreshoffs had for the second time refused to build a boat for the Kaiser.

As far back as 1902 John B. Herreshoff guaranteed to build a boat for Cornelius Vanderbilt that would beat the Kaiser's Meteor.

Mr. Vanderbilt then had the cutter Rainbow and the deal fell through.

LOST HEART OVER 'PHONE; WEDS PRETTY HELLO GIRL

Mrs. Arthur Shinners, formerly Miss Gertrude Reilly.

SWEET VOICE WON LOVE OF GLOBE THEATRE MAN.

Arthur Shinners Married to Miss Gertrude L. Reilly as the Result of a Romance Begun in Summer of 1904

Rippling musically over the telephone wires the dulcet tones of Miss Gertrude Letta Reilly soothed the ear and thrilled the heart of Arthur G. Shinners, theatrical agent of the Globe Theatre.

Even after he had hung the receiver on its hook and left the telephone the tones haunted him. That was last August.

"It's only the midsummer madness," declared Mr. Shinners, and determined to forget the voice.

But every time he used the telephone his memory was refreshed.

Finally he met the voice's owner. Her pretty face, her charming manner proved fitting accompaniments to the musical tones which had thrilled along the wire.

It was love at first sight, and ended by the young people making a trip March 2 to the Rev. C. A. Crane of the Temple Temple, where they were wed.

The telltale wedding ring betrayed them, and a day or so ago the story was made public.

Mrs. Shinners has been known for two years as the prettiest girl on the Oxford exchange. She is but twenty years old, graceful, vivacious and in type a decided brunette, with brilliant coloring.

Congratulations have been showered upon the young people, who will soon be at home in their fine cottage in their house, at No. 83 Harvard street.

PEACE SPREADS HER WINGS ABOVE FALL RIVER.

All Signs Point to General Meeting Half Way of Mill Hand and Manufacturer. End of Troubles in Sight

Fall River, March 18.—There are signs that an industrial peace has settled over the city. They point to the coming together of manufacturer and millhand on a half-way basis for each, where differences will be amicably settled without the necessity of strikes.

"It is time that Fall River had peace," said President Borden, of the Manufacturers' Association, in discussing the case with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "It is time also that with peace there should come to Fall River some evidence of the badly needed prosperity of the country.

"In all cities the sentiment prevails that the end of the trouble has come. There is now but one question on which manufacturers and hands have not wholly settled, to the satisfaction of the employers, at least. That question is the matter of forty-six hours being regarded as a standard week. The manufacturers have yielded on the question of eight hours per hand instead of ten, and the signs are that the one question will be settled in an equally satisfactory manner.

All of the weavers employed by the Stafford mill, who have been on strike, have voted to return to their rooms on Monday morning. Secretary Whitehead, of the Weavers' Union, believes that the forty-six yard basis will be settled. The Fall River Iron Works mills have settled the matter, and he believes that the others will have to.

BLOOD POVERTY

The Greatest of All Afflictions, Breaks Down the Health and Invites Disease.

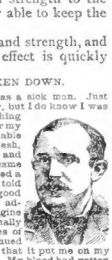
Blood poverty, or Anaemia, is due to a lack of health-giving properties in the blood. Instead of being rich, strong and pure, it has become infected with some poison or germ which has destroyed the rich, red corpuscles that furnish nutriment and strength to the body, and is reduced to such a weak, watery state that it is no longer able to keep the system in health or ward off the countless diseases that daily assail it.

Every part of the body is dependent on the blood for nourishment and strength, and when this vital stream of life becomes impoverished and run-down, the effect is quickly shown. The destroying of the red corpuscles takes the color and glow of health from the cheek, and we see pale, sallow faces, chalky, washed-out complexions, weak constitutions and a general broken-down condition of the health.

Blood poverty is often due to an inheritance, parents transmitting it to their children, and those so afflicted live a life of suffering and disease. They do not possess the natural energies that belong to their more fortunate companions who are blessed with a healthy, strong blood supply; they have weak bodies, soft, flabby muscles, brittle bones and scrofulous affections of various kinds. They are also more susceptible to Catarrh, Rheumatism and other blood troubles, because their blood does not possess the strength necessary to purge the system of the poisons and impurities which produce these diseases.

HEALTH ALMOST BROKEN DOWN.

Gentlemen:—For several years I was a sick man. Just what was the matter I do not know, but I do know I was indeed a sick man and could get nothing that would bring me out. Last winter my trouble was at its worst. I was unable to work for several months, lost in flesh, had no ambition or energy whatever, and was extremely nervous. I really became alarmed about my condition, and asked a friend of mine what I should do. He told me S. S. S. had done him a world of good in some chronic trouble and strongly advised me to begin it. I did so. Imagine my glad surprise to find I was actually improving after using a few bottles of the medicine. Of course I continued with the medicine, with the result that it put me on my feet again and made me a well man. My blood had gotten very poor and weak, and I would have broken down and lost my health entirely had I not taken S. S. S.



Wooster, Ohio. J. Y. McCLURE.

Long continued sickness is another cause of blood poverty. The blood becomes infected with the germs of disease, and when the body begins its work of recuperation, the blood, because of its impoverished condition, is unable to furnish the system with the nourishment and strength necessary, and Old Sores or Ulcers, skin diseases or some other blood disorder follows. Persons whose blood is poor and weak will find that if the trouble is not corrected there will be some serious blood disease later in life.

When the system is suffering from blood poverty it is in a very weakened condition and should be treated with a remedy that is not only thorough, but very gentle in its action. This is one of the qualities possessed by S. S. S.; it is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, and contains no strong minerals or harmful drugs to further derange or damage the health. It is the greatest of all blood medicines. S. S. S. not only purifies the blood of any and all poisons and germs, but gives it tone and vigor to supply the entire system with strength and nourishment. It carries to the blood the health-giving qualities it needs, and by its use it is made rich, pure and strong, and all evidences of blood poverty pass away. Every lost property is restored and health is firmly established.

SSS

The full, round face, glowing with healthy color, returns, the constitution is strengthened and the entire body reinvigorated by this great vegetable medicine. S. S. S. cures all diseases arising from a poisoned as well as an impoverished blood, and cures them permanently. It is the remedy approved by the best people all over the country for the past forty years, and nothing equals it in the treatment of blood poverty. Write for our book on the blood, and if you are suffering from any blood trouble our physicians will give you any special medical advice you wish. No charge is made for the book or advice.

AN OPPORTUNITY is presented to a man of energy and intelligence to engage in an enterprise based on recently patented inventions for improved heating and ventilation, supplying pure air to breathe, for cooking food without poisoning it with gas fumes, for instantaneously heating hydrant water in current for the bath, instead of having to use water that has been standing on dead animalculae and other rotten matter in stationary boilers; the three articles, covered by strong patents, are so far superior to anything in the line that they are practically free from competition; every opportunity for full investigation; free options to holders of stock in the parent company—The Consolidated Inventors' Corporation—and a nominal fee to others upon rights of all unsold States and foreign countries. The Great Gold Belt on the Salt Lake Railroad—An Extension of the Gold Fields of Nevada.

The Vanderbilt mining district, situated on the Salt Lake Railroad, near Ivanhaugh, San Bernardino County, Calif., on the Nevada State line, has the greatest surface indications of any mining region yet discovered. It is exceedingly rich in gold, silver, copper and lead. In early days it was operated in by such well-known mining men as Mackay, Flood and Campbell, the ore being rich enough to pay to haul by wagon to Salt Lake City at a large profit, several large mines being developed, paying a large profit from the grass roots. Like Tonapah and Goldfield, the expensive wagon haul the long distance to Salt Lake City to a smelter causes the camp to be neglected. The completion of the Salt Lake Railroad will bring this rich old mining region into active operation again. The Mining Trust Company has secured in groups 26 of the best claims in the district, and has ore from the surface which assays $15 to $400, $500, $712 and $1,000 to the ton. The Mining Trust Company owning these properties will develop them on the club plan, limited to one thousand members, who will each pay $1 per month toward the development, shipping of the ore and expenses. The officers and directors of the company are selected from the club members and applications are coming into the company from all over the country. Here is a genuine chance to make a fortune by investing $1 monthly.

The company is a close corporation, owned by Mr. George Noble Todd, a well-known mining operator of means, who has been for many years a large depositor with the Farmers and Merchants' National Bank of Los Angeles. One-half of the net proceeds derived from the sale or working of the company's properties will be paid to the 1,000 club members. The club membership is being rapidly filled, nearly six hundred applications being made to date.

In making application for membership send $1 for each membership you desire, P. O. order, with your address, that certificate may be mailed you. Address THE MINING TRUST COMPANY, Laughlin Building, Los Angeles.

THE NEW STYLE BUST!

HIGH BUSTS is fashion's decree. If you want "the style" as regards the form divine, "elevate your bust" says the Boston American, March 15, 1905, in its leading "Fashion News." The full, plump, voluptuous woman is the style, the rage, and here to stay. Costumers and Modistes must follow "the style." The only salvation for the thin, scrawny, slabsided, bosomless, no-hipped woman, who has sense, is Dr. Conway's Bust Tablets, which restore, enlarge and develope the breasts every time, making them large, plump, firm and natural. How's this for fact? Dr. Conway: Tablets came all right, began taking them right away and truly think even you would be surprised to see the change in me. Bust measures 3 inches more and am so happy, etc. Mrs. [illegible] J. H., Grove st., Concord, N. H., March 1[illegible] $1,000 if 'tis not genuine. Dr. Conway's [illegible]blets is, on all earth, the only remedy [illegible]kes the Bosom Large, Plump and El[illegible] enlarge the bust 4 to 10 inches [illegible] forfeit $1,000. MAINE "GONE DRY," SHIPS LIQUOR BACK TO BOSTON BY THE CARLOADS ON EVERY VESSEL

HUNDREDS OF BEER AND ALE CASKS ON WHARVES.

On every steamer and every freight train coming into Boston from Maine and cities in Maine there are consignments of liquor from dealers to the wholesalers in Boston, from whom the intoxicants were purchased.

Maine has gone dry again; dryer even than during the famous crusade four or five years ago. The Sturgis prohibition law, which puts even the druggists out of business so far as selling anything that tastes or even smells of alcohol, has gone into effect.

The sheriffs of the various counties have sworn in special deputies to assist them in enforcing the law. The dealers have taken the hint and without exception they are getting rid of any stock they have on hand and are waiting developments.

Four Carloads on Dingley.

When the steamer Governor Dingley came in to-day she had all of four carloads of ale and beer in her hold. The liquors were in barrels and in cases, all marked to wholesalers in Boston. They were from Portland Liquor dealers who are closed up.

"Every steamer coming from Maine will have a full cargo of ale and beer," said Captain Oliver, of the Dingley, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"When we left Portland the docks contained little else in the line of freight. They looked like the shipping rooms of big breweries. The cargoes were still arriving when we left."

Side by side with the cargoes which were arriving from Portland there were others which were going to Maine cities. Some of these cases were marked "ginger ale." Others contained various kinds of "flat water." But not one package held anything that in any way resembled malt or alcoholic beverage.

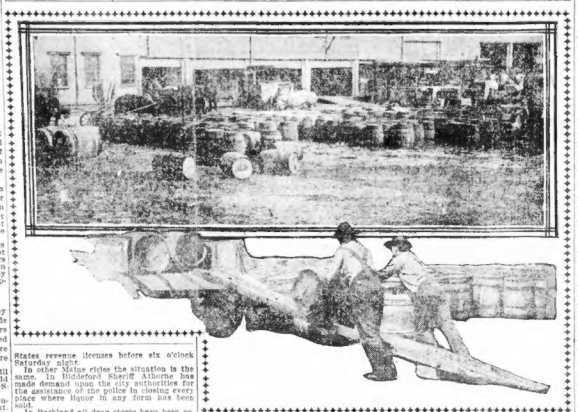
Every Saloon Closed.

When the news that liquor must go was received in Portland the liquor dealers were thrown into consternation and there was a hustle to get rid of all the goods on hand. All of the thirty-five saloons which were running have closed their doors.

Sheriff Pennell says that he will make Cumberland County dry enough to suit the staunchest prohibitionist and has made a demand for three additional liquor deputies. He has also notified all the drug stores to return or deposit with him their United States revenue licenses before six o'clock Saturday night.

In other Maine cities the situation is the same. In Biddeford Sheriff Atherton has made demand upon the city authorities for the assistance of the police in closing every place where liquor in any form has been sold.

In Rockland all drug stores have been ordered to suspend selling liquor on prescriptions signed by physicians.



Scenes on wharves when incoming vessels from Maine discharged cargoes of ale and beer sent back from Maine, which is enforcing prohibition more rigorously than ever.

ARCANUM OBSERVES RAPID DEVELOPMENT

A public meeting of Royal Arcanum members, their wives, relatives and friends, to celebrate the order's rapid growth in Massachusetts, will be held in Tremont Temple Wednesday evening. A concert by a brass band, with singing by the Amphion Club of Melrose and a male quartet, will precede the formal exercises.

Attorney-General Herbert Parker will be one of the speakers, and the list of guests will include Supreme Regent A. S. Robinson of St. Louis, Mo., and Supreme Chaplain Rev. E. H. Letsenring of Chamberburg, Pa.

PAWTUCKET DOWN ON PROPOSED ACTS

Pawtucket, R. I., March 18.—The Pawtucket Christian Temperance Union here has prepared a protest against the proposed police and school commission acts for this city, and copies are to be forwarded to the Senate and members of the House asking them to do all in their power to defeat them.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF PUBLISHER

Providence, R. I., March 18.—Charles F. Dennison, publisher of the jewelry papers and well known throughout New England, died this afternoon at the Rhode Island Hospital as the result of disease and burns sustained in an unknown manner yesterday at his office.

NO LABOR TROUBLES SAYS COLORADO'S NEW GOVERNOR.

Jesse McDonald Declares for Industrial Peace in the State, and He Will Strive to Promote Law and Order

Denver, March 18.—Governor Jesse F. McDonald, a stringent Republican, is for industrial peace in Colorado first, last and for all time. He is opposed to strikes where violence or intimidation is used and he anticipates that no faction will be allowed to force trouble upon the State during his tenure of office.

Governor McDonald is entirely acceptable to the Mine Owners' Association and Public Utility Corporation, and the former believes he will adopt vigorous measures to defeat the aims of socialistic labor leaders if they attempt to create turmoil.

Governor McDonald made this statement: "I have just assumed office and would prefer to have my acts as Governor speak for themselves. I was elected Lieutenant Governor on a platform that called for the maintenance of law and order and I will endeavor to the best of my ability to carry out this and every pledge given by my party.

"What I can do to further the State's interest will be done. It will be my chief aim to have an economical business administration. I am a Republican, but I shall recognize no factions in the Republican party and shall strive to promote peace and law and order within the boundaries of the State."

HENRY REED, SUGAR MAGNATE, BURIED

Funeral services for Henry H. Reed, the Boston millionaire, who died last Tuesday at the Grand Central Hotel, New York, were held yesterday afternoon at the Reed home, No. 10 Roanoke avenue, Jamaica Plain, Rev. Charles F. Dole, pastor of the First Congregational Society, Unitarian, and a personal friend of Mr. Reed, officiating.

The pall bearers were P. B. Gannett, president of the Revere Sugar Refining Company; S. N. Eldredge, president of the State Bank; W. D. Hosking, president of the Otis Elevator Company; and Hon. Charles S. Hamlin.

Burial was in Forest Hills cemetery. There were no services at the grave.

BRISK START MADE ON MAINE'S NEW RAILROAD.

Construction of Bangor and Aroostook Branch to Stockton Springs Harbor Begun at Various Points on Line

Bangor, Me., March 18.—Construction work on the new Seaport Railroad, the Bangor & Aroostook's branch from Lagrange, in Penobscot County, to Stockton Springs Harbor, Penobscot Bay, has begun, and several hundred Italian laborers are now employed working in the clay cuts in the town of Frankfort.

It is the intention of the contractor to have 200 men to the mile in that district from May to the end of the Summer. Crews are at work in West Bangor and at La grange, and new gangs are coming in every day. It is expected that the force will be increased to about 2,000 men next month.

At Rockport the Maine Central is pressing made on the construction of wharves.

It has been decided that the Seaport line shall cross the Maine Central at Hermon Center, six miles west of Bangor, on an overhead bridge twenty-five feet above the Central's tracks, while connection between the two roads will be effected by spur tracks.

At Rockport the Maine Central is preparing to greatly extend its wharves.

MEMPHIS TO OWN ITS LIGHT PLANT

Memphis, Tenn., March 18.—The Lower House of the General Assembly has passed the bill introduced into the Senate by Gilbert D. Hale, of Memphis, and passed by that body, providing for an issue of $1,000,000 in bonds for the purpose of acquiring municipal ownership of the lighting plant.

The House amended the bill so as to strike out the clause calling for a referendum of the bond issue to the people of Memphis.

PROVIDENCE CITY CLERK APPOINTEES

Providence, R. I., March 18.—City Clerk Clark appointed two assistants in his office to-day. George Clifton, now second assistant, is promoted to first assistant, and Harry Simons, a clerk in the United National Bank, will enter the office as second assistant.

Is Expected to Remain the Governor of Wisconsin, to Carry on War and Send a Substitute to Washington

Washington, March 18.—Governor La Follette's unique act in declining to come to Washington on March 4 to qualify as United States Senator is still discussed as a mystery, but the latest news from the Wisconsin Governor seems likely to produce even more wonderment.

It is said that he contemplates declining the Senatorship, remaining Governor, and appointing one of his State leaders to take his seat in the Senate. His object in doing this would be twofold. One result would be to show that the presence of La Follette in Wisconsin is needed to fight the railroads to a finish, he stands ready to be there to the end.

CRUISER NEW YORK OUT OF COMMISSION

The United States cruiser New York has been taken out of commission, pending extensive repairs which were begun on her yesterday at the Navy Yard. The officers of the cruiser have been instructed to proceed to their homes and await orders.

All of the time-expired men have been discharged. The men with short terms of enlistment will be transferred to the cruiser now being fitted out at the Navy Yard.

Mattings

There is every indication that matting will be very high this spring, owing to the excessively wet season, which destroyed 50% of the straw crop, and further, to the fact that a large proportion of the weavers have been drafted into the army.

We have bought a tremendous quantity, the surplus stock of one of the large New York importers, at 50% of its present value. We did not expect to be able to offer a single roll this season at the prices we name for this lot.

We especially recommend these values to you:

Lot 1. HIGH-GRADE JAPANESE MATTINGS, all in carpet effects, and chiefly in blues and greens, regular 35c. grade, all to go in rolls of 20 or 40 yards only, at $3.00 and $6.00, which figures but, per yard 15c
